It was a largely attended and very brilliant affair. Charlottetown is one of the most delightful summer resorts in the provinces, and a large number of visitors from the States have been there the past season.

—An attempt was made last Sunday

—An attempt was made last Sunday night to break into A. L. Rhynd's shoe store. The glass in a side door was cut, but was not broken out, and the thief is supposed to have been frightened away by Mr. Rhynd, who visited the store a little after 12 o'clock, and remained a short time. The burglar was evidently in want of shoes and knew Mr. Rhynd's reputation for keeping a first class stock. Great changes have been made in the store this week, as it had grown too small for the increasing trade. The work room has been moved to an addition in the rear, the store enlarged nearly double its former size, all the wood work inished in cherry, new chairs and rugs added, and preparations made for a large fall trade.

—Thomas Weston, Jr., made the open air address before the Y. M. C. A. meeting last Sunday p. m. It was prepared especially for young men, and was listened to with great attention by a large number of young men and others. His subject was "Watch—be steadfast in the faith—quit you like men—be strong." We need to watch against dangers and temptations; to have faith in God, and hold tenaciously to it: to be manly and noble, and despise what is low and mean. We mast have strength of character; we need the grace of God, and this will enable us to cultivate all the elements of strong and vigorous character. We must have courage, perseverance, preparation for our life work, and a steady progress onward and upward. Mr. Weston illustrated his points very tellingly, quoting facts from actual life in the present and the past, to enforce his principles. His references to the Christian faith of the great Gladstone were very happy, showing how simple in piety he was, visiting a sick crossing-sweeper and praying with him, and talking with a boot-black in an inquiry meeting about the interests of his soul. Next Sunday Professor J. B. Taylor, Principal of the Berkley School, Boston, will speak on the bank grounds. He is a fine speaker, and all will be interested to hear him. All are invited.

TO SETH DAVIS.

ON THE ATTAINMENT OF HIS 100TH BIRTH

DAY.

Men linger and men live. The sum of days Embraced in our earth dwelling signifies But little as we tread the devious maze Of intricate involment which outlies Before our vision vexed, or turn our feet With strange perplexity, now east, now west, Onward or backward, till, the round complete, We reach the goal of an eternal rest.

One hundred years of striving and of toil May point accomplishment or failure, and the wick consumed and the exhausted oil May reach extinguishment, with record grand, Or, as a summary of futile years, In which the thought of self and selfish ends, I when the weet recompense—though sweat an tears Gain such award as mere ambition lends. Nor does it matter if the strile attains

The passing meed of place, or power, or laud—
These are, at best, but temporary gains,
And may be but the progeny of frau.
The rounded life, which shall for time endure,
Leaving its impress, though to memory lost,
Forgetteth self, and fixed—sergnely sure—
Helpfully tols, nor counts reward or cost.

Most honored friend! We do not celebrate
The empty vanishment of five score years—
This, of itself, we may not emulate,
Though we may scan the lesson which inheres—
The upright walk; the vigorous command.
Which held in check all dravings for the base,
These we extol and these, at either hand,
Sustained thy steps and nerved thy sturdy pace.

Age stayed his hand—the imps of his domain Could work no havor in thy frame of steel; Nor touch the altar of the conscious brain Which no excess had weakened. The shod heel Of Vice struck and was blunted; the foul squires Of Death could find no vantage for his lance. Health—the glad guest of moderate desires—Dwelt in thy breast, glowed in thy countenance

And thus thy life has been to us a boon—
Its vista showing glad encouragement—
The morning's rigor, the warm sun of noon,
The starlit eve—when manhood's day was spent—
All these inciting to like patient toil,
Like faith in man, like humble trust in God.
The seed has fallen in prolific soil
And bloom and fragrance gem the vernal sod.

The farmer boy, the mason and the sage
Were excellent in their appointed field;
Each thorough in their work. From youth to age
The harvest time has brought abundant yield.
The school wherein you studied was the best;
And reading as you journeyed, rock and stream Revealed Dame Nature's secrets to her quest—
Secrets which ne'er unfold in Learning's dream

The college wall shuts out the golden light Of the glad sun, and dulls the eager sense Which drinks the ether of the mountain height, Communing with the First Intelligence. Petal and frond and stamen teach the eye, And through the eye, the mind, a lesson grand; While the gemmed mysteries which dot the sky Brightly attest the Architect who planned.

And thus brought face to face with Nature's plan, Order and taste begat a second sense—Such ever follows her commune with man, Thus aptitude was crowned by love, and hence The highways broadened and stretched straight and true,

The sapling rooted, and, its leafy spread, In time so veiled the sunlight peeping through That the wayfarer blessed thee as he sped.

Iomes grew on sound foundations, marts of trade. The church, the school, creations of thy skill, The church, the school, creations of thy skill, Upreared their fair proportions near the shade Of lofty trees—monuments of good will. Who plants a tree enricheth not himself, But all mankind; and thy gifts far and wide Attest thy love for others. Greed and pelf Plant for a crop, and drop no seed beside.

Unlike the cloistered scholar, mixing free
With earnest men you saw the world's default,
The moral blindness that can never see
The evil at his feet but would exalt
Some threadbare method, and thus stay the hand
That sought to rend the veil from Folly's face,
To root out sin and from it purge the land,
Emancipate a world, or free a race.

Today, on course of steel the missives ride
That bring the reverential words of cheer;
The legislator thrusts his act aside,
The statesman and the merchant gather here,
And from their brows the crown of honor lift
To lay at their beloved teacher's feet;
"these," they all cry, "Plear Master, were thy gifts,
The grain you sowed has grown to golden wheat."

On the receptive surface of the mind Memory deeply graves the youthful scene; The academic walls, the thought refined By pedagogic alchemy. And green As memory's tendrils, gratitude and love For him who shaped and trained the budding thought Entwine and rise with ripened heads above
The hallowed spot where the old master taught.

Veteran soldier! Of all living men,
E The first who dared and suffered in the cause off temperance, with vigorous voice and pen Declaiming the unrighteousness of laws
Which gave protection to the greedy knave,
Who doled perdittion as a publican,
Debased the freeman, bound him as a slave,
And rooted from his breast the pride of man.

For four score years, whenever men have stood United with regard to moral right, We find enrolled within their brotherhood This carnest, steadfast, never-flinching knight.

He drank of the communion from the cup Touched by the lips of Massachusetts slaves; He saw the blood-stained banners folded up, And laid fair flowers upon our soldiers' graves.

And laid fair nevers upon our sections of the read the heavens, studied out the course of its revolving worlds, and with skilled hand, In mimicry of Nature's mighty force, Wrought models to instruct his youthful band; And, bringing heaven's mysteries down to earth, Taught them to love the Parent of all love, Led the mind upward, and, with thought's new birth, Ushered the way to loftier fields above.

Knowledge is power—and its grand ultimate Owes little to thought crystallized in books. Would'st know? Then rock and tree investigate, Seek Nature in her most secluded nooks, Drink of her waters, breathe her ambient air, Bathein her sunlight, wrestle with her storms When sombre darkness, lightened by the glare Of the electric flash, is dense with forms.

When the Omnipotent rides on the wave Bearing its foam-crest onward to the shore.
And the wind demons frantic shriek and rave,
The proud oak bends, the sullen surges roar.
The page is open—he who runs may read—
Each pebble is a volume wondrous rare;
Ten thousand centries cluster in a weed,
The modest violet's heart ensurines a prayer.

Thine hundred years is but the passing breath Which dulls the glass in which we contemplate the work of the word rows stretch of time. In life or ceath, The ebb and flow of this, our mortal state, May not be magnified to such extent. As elevates the anthill on the plain—For mortal fame is but an accident, Levelled and lost beneath the centuries' rain.

Build, then, upon the Rock of Ages; look Heyond the stars, beyond the burning am,
Beyond the stark, beyond the burning am,
Beyond the study of Bane Nature 1 took,
To the imperishable scroll of duty done.
This aged friend, true soddier, teacher wise,
Secures the guerdon of immortal days;
This glory, far too bright for mortal eyes,
Greets him who strives, who waiteth, who obeys.

And this, reparding as a sacred trust
The charge of life confided to thy care,
Has been thy time
Toward all men, allotting each his share.
Toward all men, allotting each his share.
Thine hundred years have basked in golden light.
And tinctured with its brightness all thy days;
Their warmth is dimmed, but in the silvery night
God's stars make clear and cheerful all thy ways. So may it be, as onward, to the end, Thy steps less fir.a and sturdy than of yore,
Thy willing feet toward the Eternal trend,
Thy willing eyes look gladly to its shore.
Thou holdest faith, and hope sits at her gate;
And neath her brooding wings some bright eyed one

Of charity's sweet nestlings will await
To join the chorus: "Welcome! and well done!"

His One Hundredth Birthday.

The one hundredth birthday of Mr, Seth Davis, so long looked forward to by his many friends, occurs to-morrow (Saturday) and will be celebrated by a large number of his old pupils, besides a host of friends from Newton and other places. A general invitation is extended to all who are interceted healths. ested, besides the special invitations to old

The exercises will be held at Mr. Davis's residence on Watertown street, West New-ton, if the weather is pleasant, as it mom-isss to be, and seats will be arranged on the spacious lawn for those who attend. Mayor Kimball will preside, and the speakers will be ex-Governor Rice. Prof. D. B. Hagar of Salem, and Allen Kingsbury of Wellesley Hills, old pupils of Mr. Davis; Mr. N. T. Allen of West Newton and ex-Mayor J. F. C. Hyde. Poems written for the occasion by Dr. S. F. Smith, Henry Lemon and Thomas Drew will be read, and there will be singing by the pupils of the Davis School under the charge of Mr. Walton, musical instructor in the schools.

If the weather is stormy the exercises will be held in City Hall. A large number of congratulatory letters from old pupils have been received, several whose addresses were not known having been heard from, and indications point to a very large attendance.

THE CORNER STONE.

EXERCISES AT THE NEW BUILDING OF THE NEWTON CENTER BAPTIST CHURCH.

The corner stone of the new Baptist church on the corner of Beacon and Centre streets, Newton Center, was laid last Saturday afternoon with appropriate ceremonies. As the day was clear and cool, a large number of people gathered to witness the event, the street being filled with teams, the settees provided crowded with people, and even the scaffoldings and building stones utilized as seats. Prof. J. M. English called the assemblage to order, and the exercises commenced with singing by a sized seatest prof. J. M. W. Walton, tenor, and Horace M. Walton, bass. Aptenor, and Horace M. Walton, bass. Appropriate Scriptural selections were read by Rev. H. F. Colby, D. D., and after singing by the quartette the following interesting historical address was read by Rev. O. S. Stearns, D. D:

If have been requested to sketch in as few words as possible, the appearance and history of the two houses of worship hitherto occupied by the Baptist church in Newton Centre. The history of the church as given by Dr. Clark in the "Centennial Anniversary," 1880, and completed in the manual by the present accurate clerk of the church, Mr. McIntyre, will be deposited in the box. A sketch of the new building, drawn by the building committee, will likewise be deposited there. Those who wish a fuller history of the church and society will find it in the History of Newton by Dr. Smith. But those who are to open the box a century or more hence, may wish to picture to themselves the places where picture to themselves the places where their fathers were wont to meet, and in sacred adoration worship the true and liv-

It would be fitting that I should say some words of cheer and hope. It is a transition hour with us. With the laying of this corner stone the clock strikes the hour of departure. We pass from the old to the new. The thoughts, plans, prayers and aspirations of years are now taking shape in the massive walls around us, and shape in the massive wails around us, and soon they will welcome us to our religious home. We are to leave a dead past and enter upon an era of greater possibilities. I might praise the dead for what they achieved, and exhort the living to look into a grander future and gird themselves for the task. I might dwell upon the glory which belongs to a house of God, and urge you to make ready in heart and spirit for the coming of the Shechinah. But you need no praises, and would not profit by exhortations. In erecting this house we are performing no act of benevolence; we are simply caring for ourselves, our children and our children's children. We believe in one God, revealed as the Father and the Son and the Holy Spirit, and we would honor Him with our substance, by erecting in His name an honorable place, in which His honorable name shall be honored and adored. Like the builders of the Tabernacle, we have brought our gifts, not grudgingly, but willingly, not as a sacrifice but as a free-will offering. "Every one whose heart stirred him up to come unto the work to do it," has laid his gift upon the altar, and his "gift has been accepted with the premise which is before you, but with the promise which is before you; but the edict has not yet gone forth, "Let neither man nor woman make any more work for the offering of the sanctuary," because there is enough and too much. Though with greatful hearts we record the fact that the $75,090 needed for the new house has been pledged, more will be needed, and more will be offered or I mistake the achief in the hearts of the build. take the nobility in the hearts of the builders. The dead speak to us to-day; the noble venerable dead; they who gave of their poverty for the plain buildings in which they assembled, and he who left us but a few years ago, whose generous gift was a pledge of his undying love for the spot on which we now stand, and his undying wish that this sanctuary should go up. They have passed on; but their deeds come cehoing to us from the skies, and in their deeds are these cheering words: "Be strong, be of good courage, quit you like deeds are these cheering words: "Be strong, be of good courage, quit you like men."

There were a few Baptists in Newton prior to 1760, but most of them, if not all, were members of Baptist churches in Boston. Like other Bautists of their day, they were taxed for the support of the minister of their own choice and belief. They paid the town, as well as for the minister of their own choice and belief. They paid the town's tax, under protest, until they were released from the unjust claim in the year of Independence. 1776. During the fo-called "Great Awakening," which began in 1749, under the preaching of Whitfield, a New Light or separate church was formed in Newton with Nathan Ward as its pastor, but several of its members having changed their views with reference to baptism, its proper mode and its scriptural subjects, they were baptized on profession of their faith, still retaining their connection with the separate church. The majority of the church, however, becoming Baptists, Mr. Ward not sharing their beliefs, resigned his seven years' pastorate, and the Baptists, financially poor but spiritually rich, for nearly 29 years were accustomed to assemble for worship on Lord's day, and at other times, in dwelling houses and a school house, aided in the services by laymen and visiting ministers, as circunstances permited, seeking to maintain the doctrines and ordinances of Christ, as they understood them. These 20 years were preparatory to a gathering of the brethren in the house of Elisha Fuller, June 6th, 1780, "to know," says the record, "each other's minds relative to forming a new Baptist church." At this and two other subsequent meetings, articles of church-building, or what might be termed church-conduct, for they were destitute of doctrinal, statements, were adopted, and on the memorable July 5th, 1780, in the house now occupied by Luther Paul, some 35 or 39 persons assented to them in the presence of a numerous congregation, and they were recognized as the First Baptist church in Newton. The confession was probably that of the Second Baptist church in Boston, now Warren avenue.

But they had no house of worship. They were poor in this world's goods, but with in faith. They held their meetings in the house where they were organized into a church, then owned by Noah Wiswall, paying a small sum for the privilege, worshipping also in mild pleasant weather, under the noble, now venerable elms in front of the bouse. To defray expenses, a collection was taken up weekly, as the Lord had prospered them. Six months after their organization as a church, Jan. 17, 1781, the society which had already been formed voted to erect a house of worship on land given by Mr. Wiswall opposite the residence of Henry Paul. By this vote the building was to be 35 feet square, but the building committee preferred something less rigid in its proportions, and, with the assent of the society, its dimensions were changed to 40 feet by 32. The estimated cost was $1000. According to the chronicle, the seats were rough boards resting upon carpentr's horses, the pulpit, capable of holding two persons, was of the same material, unplaned boards, and there were twenty wall pews and 24 pews back of the body seats. Honor was given to the honored. The largest subscription was dignified to the highest position, or the best pew, and no person could own a pew who had subscribed less than $10. The house was rather barn-like in its external appearance, was cold in winter and seemingly comfortless at all times. Fourteen years massed away before it was favored with a stove, at a cost of $40, and then so fearful were they of the intruder the society passed a special vote as to its exact location and the window through which the funnel should find its exit. Five subscriptions between the years 1751 and 1788 were necessary for carrying on the work, and not until 1792 was there a pulpit whose appearance indicated the sacredness of the spot. Its cost was about $50. Ten years later, in the summer of 1802, the house was enlarged by an addition to the west end of 17 simply sups. One of these galleries was set apart for the men, the other for the women.

If we descend into the basement we shall find a room with a swinging partition for baptismal purposes, and around the walls fixed seats, backless benches filling the rest of the space. This room was used for the more social religious purposes of the church, but it was damp, unhealthy, and cold. At a date I am unable to fix, the suffering here being no longer endurable, a more convenient, appropriate vestry was built on land near by, now owned by our faithful Sunday School superintendent, Brother Armington. It was subsequently converted into a dwelling house, and is now located on Clark street. Such was the first house of worship of our fathers during a period of a little more than fifty years. Here the people of God for many miles around, some on foot, some on horse-back, and some in carriages were accustomed to gather Sabbath after Sabbath, to listen to the word of life as it fell from the lips of Pastors Caleb Blood and Joseph Grafton, and "up each other's minds by way of remembrance," as every six weeks, with special preparation, and under the special laws of their covenant, they surround the table of the Lord in holy communion. And here the good old preacher Gratton preached his parting sermon by being borne from its walls to his grave, pastor and house closing their service together.

During the last twenty years of the period inty referred to the abuse has been as a surround to the period inty referred to the abuse has been as the period inty referred to the abuse has been as the period inty referred to the abuse has been as the period inty referred to the abuse has been as the period inty referred to the abuse has been as the period inty referred to the abuse has been as the second and house closing their service together.

Gratton preached his parting sermon by being borne from its walls to his grave, pastor and house closing their service together.

During the last twenty years of the period just referred to, the church had become the mother of churches. Seven Baptist churches had been formed in the region around Newton, some part of whose constituent members, and in four or five instances the larger part.had had the home of their first love with her. Father Grafton said of one of these depletions, cheerfully but plaintively, "When the bees swarm, they always leave honey enough in the hive for those that remain to live on;" but there was so little honey left in the hive, after the last depletion, the formation of the Baptist church in Newton Upper Falls, some were disposed to break up the old hive and abandon it. Not all however, A few choice souls remained. They were reenforced by the officers, students and friends of the Institution, which had recently come to stay among them. The light on the Hill prevented the light in the valley below from being put out. And not withstanding they were a feeble folk in numbers and resources, they resolved upon a new site and a new house, the site the epot on which we now stand; the house the house we have just left. The spot was selected mainly for the accommodation of the Institution, and the house who farger propertions than the needs of the church at that time, for the convenience of the anniversaries of the beautiful lake to this location doubtless changed the centre of this ward of our beautiful city. The village would naturally have grown picturesquely around the lake, instead of apart from it as now. But it was not so to be. And notwithstanding the two came preferred the old spot, the building went up and on the 22d of Dec. 1830, it was dedicated to the worship of the God of their fathers. It was not dedicated, however, free from debt. Friends from other places rendered much aid, but promises were made which were unfulfilled, and for many years the little band struggled on amid fear a marriage the wife of Ebenezer King, from whom she inherited the land, and grandmother of Lucy Ann White, our present highly esteemed post-mistress. The lot then given was much larger than that we now occupy. The house contained 76 pews. There were three aisles. There was a row of single pews along the north and south walls, and six wing pews on either side of the pulpit, those on the left being assigned to the students of the Institution. The front of the house was bare of ornament, with broad steps the entire width of the building, and a small square tower with a short pinnacle at each corner. The pulpit, unlike the former one, was large enough for a minister's council, the front part of it sufficient for the pulpit of the reconstructed building twenty years afterward, behind which was a heavy drapery trimmed with little bells, reminding one of the young observers of "the bells and the pomegranates on the high priest's robe."

Opposite the pulpit was a gallery for the organ and choir. The house was painted white, with green blinds. The windows were long and plain. The house presented a cheerful, welcome appearance, and was deemed in that day a model for cheap, economical houses of worship for the Baptist churches throughout the country. At least tradition has it that Pastor Willard at the meeting of the Boston Association following its dedication so commended its graceful architecture.

Such was the house as I recall it when I came to Newton in 1844 as a student, and listened once more to the familiar voice of my four years' pastor in college. The impression of the house upon the eye was very pleasant; it was well filled; the singing was spirited, the choir composed chiefly of students, and the preaching was lucid and Scriptural.

But the part of the house most precious to my memory was the vestry in the basement. There I first knew this people as pastor; there on bended knees we poured

But the part of the house most precious to my memory was the vestry in the basement. There of lifest knew this people as pastor; there on bended knees we poured out together strong supplications and tears. There we first assembled at the table of the Lord. There Zion travailed and brought forth children, some still remaining and some having passed on before whom the Lord shall count when He writeth up His people and say "This one was born there." Plain, unattractive, damp, unhealthy, to me it was a most sacred place, until bec. 2, 1800, the well-known chapel opened its doors, and by its seasons of refreshing revivals became equally memorable as the birthplace of souls.

Of the house as remodelled and reopened Jan' 31, 1856, I need say but little. The entire front was chaped and took the form in the cut contained in the Centennial Memorial. The design of the architect was to place a cross on each of the towers, but the one on the north tower was cut off to gratify the anti-Romanist feeling of a good deacon [Stone], and the stump was dubbed a smoking cap. A bell was put into the south tower at the same time. The clock, "presented by Reuben Stone, 1827," the unique biography of which by Dr. Clark, can be found in the History of Newton, took its old place on the front of the gallery opposite the pulpit. It was a harmless, noisciess clock. It did not strike—it simply admonished. The auditorium was enlarged, the pews were rearranged and changes were made in the rear of the pulpit. After the house was rededicated the pews were sold at auction, and it was found that the buyers had left the middle pews out in the cold. They had chosen to take the Word sidewise. There was no audience in front of the preacher. Perhaps the choice was made from a feeling of unworthiness; perhaps from a desired to reserve the choices was made from a feeling of unworthiness; perhaps from a desired to reserve the choices was made from a feeling of unworthiness; perhaps from a desired to reserve the choices perhaps to avoid the appearance of ra other denominations on themes akin to the gospel of Christ. More than 750 full graduates of our Institution have here received the blessing of Alma Mater and have gone forth into all the world to herald its instructions. By us as a church ten have received license to the Christian ministry. all but one of whom have been ordained to the work elsewhere, and within the walls of these churches ten have been conservated to the work and prayer and the laying on of the hands of the presbytery. And from these walls have been born the lamented dead—one pastor, three professors, two or more deacons, and many more whose names were recorded in the Lamb's book of life.

And now as we say farewell to the past and lookout into the future, let me say to the living in the language of the prophet Hagai, changing it somewhat: "Be strong all ye people, saith the Lord and work, for I am with you, saith the Lord of Hosts, according to the word that I covenanted with you. The silver is mine, and the gold is mine, saith the Lord of Hosts. The glery of the latter house shall be greater than the former, saith the Lord of Hosts; and in that place will I give peace." And to those who centuries hence shall remove this corner stone and unseal this box, let me use the words of the angel to the church in Philadelphia: "Hold fast that which thou hast that no one take thy crown."

hast that no one take thy crown."

THE BUILDING COMMITTEE.

Following the address the report of the building committee was read by the chairman, Mr. James S. Newell. The welcome fact was disclosed that the entire amount necessary for the construction of the church, $75,000, had been raised and that the society was free from debt. Honor was done to the late Gardner Colby, who bequeathed $25,000 to the society if a new church should be built within ten years, costing not less than $50,000. At a special meeting of the parish held Mar. 1, 1886, it was voted to adopt the plans of the building committee, James S. Newell, Dwight Chester, Mellen Bray, Chas. S. Young, and Daniel B. Clafflin.

Atanother meeting, Oct. 12, 1886, the contract was awarded and work was begun at once. The money has been raised by contributions varying from 10 cents to $6,000, and coming from 324 persons. At 5.13 p. m., the corner stone was laid by Mr. Newel, a hermetically sealed copper box having been previously placed in the cavity. The box contained the report of the centennial anniversary in 1880, the manual of the cithurch, the report of the centennial anniversary in 1880, the manual of the church, the crown of the old church the school, report of the Sunday school at Thompsonville, photographs of all the pastors of the church except the first, photograph of Mr. and Mrs. Gardner Colby, photograph of Mr. and Mrs. Gardner Colby, photograph of Mr. and Mrs. Gardner Colby, photograph of the interior of the Old church, the last calendar of worship, general catalogue of the Newton Theological Institution for 1886, historical address delivered at the 50th anniversary in 1875, memorials of Dr. Ira Chase, H. F. Ripley and Gardner Colby, minutes of the Boston South Association, 1886, Missionary Magazine for July, 1886 Baptist Home Mission Monthly for July, 1887, the latest copy of the Watchman, Dr. Stearns's historical address, the report of the building committee, the names of the contributors to the building fund, and the architect's card. We build on Christ, our corner-stone, That rock of ages we adore; Glory shall crown His name alone, Rock of our faith, eternal, sure.

Each stone we lay shall speak His praise, And spire and pinnacle shall rise In solemn grandeur, holy grace, A grateful tribute to the skies.

In faith this corner-stone we lay, In hope the house of God we rear; Here God will answer when we pray, Jehovah shall be worshipped here.

And when in silent dust we sleep,
This sacred stone shall still record
That we and ours the covenant keep,
That we and ours confess the Lord.

An Electric Railway.

The electric railway now running at Los Angeles is pronounced a great success. They claim that an electric railway can be built for one-third of the cost of a cable built for one-third of the cost of a cable road, and be run at much greater speed and less expense. They have run as high as 20 miles per hour, but the usual speed is from 10 to 12. The field where electricity is being employed is evidently enlarging daily, and its possibilities are something marvelous.—[Oakland, Cal., Times.

THE TORTILITA MINES.

THE HARTFORD POST ON THEIR GREATNESS. One of the Richest Mining Properties in the World-Special Desparch.

One of the Richest Mining Proporties in the World.

Hartford, Ct., Aug. 17, 1887.

The Post of this city prints in today's issue a full page article on the Tortilita Gold and Silver Mines of which Mr. Joseph H. Reall(who is being urged for Vice-President on the ticket with Cleveland as the representative of the Agricultural and Laboring interests), is president. The Post shows that the Tortilita Company have one of the greatest mining properties in America, and it estimates that with the forty-stamp mill that is now being arranged for, which will crush 180 tons of ore per day, that the company can carn over one hundred thousand dollars per month net, or over one hundred per cent, per year on its capital stock, which would make the shares that are now selling to subscribers at $2 each, the par value, at the company's office, 57 Broadway, New York, worth over $20 each, while this result can be again doubled by additional stamps as the company have an inexhaustible supply of rich ore. A second Virginia City is predicted in connection with the Tortilitas, as the company have twelve developed and proven mines out of which over $150,000 in bulliou was taken while the exploring and developing work was going on, which, together with the prices now being realized for the shares so soon after they were put upon the market, are unexampled facts in the history of mining. The Post pronounces the Tortilitas one of the best and cleanest-cut enterprises that the public was ever invited to invest in. The stock is attracting much attention throughout New England, and is being largely taken for investment by bankers, merchants, farmers and by working men and women. It is announced that the subscription books will close in a few days preparatory to the stock being called on the Consolidated Stock Exchange. The offices of the company are at 57 Broadway, New York, and the mines are in the richest mineral district of Arizona.

The venerable gentleman whose letter we here introduce is the oldest and one of the most respected citizens of Bridgeport, Conn. On the occasion of his ninetieth birthday, in March, 1887, nearly a thousand people of that city personally called on Mr. Thompson to offer their congratulations. He has resided in the house now owned and occupied by him on Water street, for about sixty years. His faculties are apparently as strong and clear as ever.

faculties are apparently as strong and clear as ever.

I am now a very old man. If I live ten years more—which it is quite possible I may—I shall have been exactly one century in this world. In my ninety years I have seen and passed through a great deal. Of course I have outlived nearly or quite all who started life with me. Although I may be supposed to have much of the wisdom that comes of experience, I have found out recently that one is never too old to learn something new. The weight of infirmities that naturally attend so advanced an age as mine would seem to be burden enough, but added to this I have suffered considerably of late from malaria. I first became aware of the complaint by a feeling of unusual fatigue, a sense of nervousness, attacks of headache and pains in the limbs. In fact I may go further and say there was not a spot on my body the size of your thumb nail that did not ache. There was a bad taste in the mouth, I slept badiy, and my appetite was uncertain and poor. I would have chils running up my back, and at times would have chils running up my back, and at times would have considerable fever. My stomach, too, seemed to be out of order; there would be some distress after eating, and between the periods I perspired a good deal more than was natural after any unusual exertion.

This state of things made me uneasy and anxious, and I consulted a physician who prescribed quinine. By the way, I should mention that I had a good deal of aching in the back, as though I had done a hard day's work or carried a load too great for my strength. I took quinine in large doeses for a long while, and with very disastrous effects. I took twelve grains a day, and sometimes increased the dose to thirty grains a day, and it was not long before I began to feel the effect of so darge a quantity of this powerful and dangerous drug. It seemed to stupify me as certain poisons

There was also roaring and other very unpleasant and annoying sounds in the head-ran not sure but it is better to endure malaria than to run the risk of trying to cure it with a med cine like quinine. cine like quinine.

When the immediate effects of the quinine passed off there would be a great depression of spirits, a feeling of languor and fatigue and a general dis-turbance of the nerves, trembling of the hands and marked weakness and prostration.

This was the second attack of malaria I had ever had in my life. The first occurred in Ohio seventy years ago, when I was a youth. The last I attribute to the malarial influences here on the shore of Long Island Sound, of which there seems to be more than there was many years ago.

At all events, what with there seems to be more than there was many years ago.

At all events, what with the malaria and the quinine together, I was in miscrable condition when Kaskine, called the new quinine, was first men tioned to me as a remedy for malaria. I tried it merely because I wanted to do something; and, as quinine did more harm than good, I was obliged to take the chance of some strange drug or other. I can now honestly say that Kaskine has helped me wonderfully. It has broken up all my worst symptoms, and it has caused me to gain in strength and increased my weight from 160 to 182 pounds. Nothing that I have taken has done so much towards reestablishing my health. It has not produced any of the bad effects of quinine, and I am sure it will take the place of quinine everywhere as fast as people become acquainted with its merits. My deafness is now very much better and I hear with very little trouble. In conclusion you may say to the public that I most cheerfully testify to the healing and curative virtues of Kaskine, which is worthy to be known as the new quinne.

THE POLITICAL FIELD.

The remarkable stagnation in local politics will probably be somewhat lessened by the return of the political leaders, who have been discussing the situation by shore and mountain, but so far there promises to be no opposition to Mayor Kimball if he should consent to run again. His popularity is even greater than last year, and his administration is so satisfactors the interests of the city are so Garage. year, and his administration is so satisfactory, the interests of the city are so carefully looked after, that there is no desire for a change, and he can probably be relected as many times as Mayor Doyle of Providence. It is said that the Republicans this year will not make a separate nomination, and as Mayor Kimball is as good a Republican as there is in the party, it is not easy to see why they should. When there is no reason for a change it is foolish there is no reason for a change it is foolish to make one.

In regard to representatives, Mr. Walworth has well earned the honor of a second term, and will be renominated with out any doubt. He took a prominent part in legislative proceedings, and was on the right side of the questions that came up. In regard to the other representative no candidates have been mentioned as yet, and it is not known whether Mr. Wood would accept another term or not. His experience was of great advantage at the last session, and he was justly regarded as one of the most influential members of the

As far as state politics are concerned, Newton people are fairly well satisfied with Governor Ames, and will offer no opposi-tion to the renomination of the whole state ticket, which seems to be the program already marked out. Newton can be depended on for a big Repulican majority, depended on for a big Repulican majority, no matter who is nominated on the other side, although there promises to be an unusually large prohibition vote here this year, owing to the cowardly policy of the majority in the last legislature. The remedy, however, would seem to be to nominate Republicans who will have the courage of their convictions, instead of joining any third party movement. joining any third party movement.

COLLECTOR SALTONSTALL'S SIDE.

Collector Saltonstall will have the sup-port of the people, irrespective of party, in his trouble with the Democratic smelling committee. He says that he has a very indefinite idea of the politics of the men under him, and if the civil service law was designed for any purpose, it was to remove public offices from the control of local poli-ticians. The civil service law, he says, an official is bound to obey as much as any other law. In an interview with a Boston Post reporter, Mr. Salconstall defines his position as follows:

Post reporter, Mr. Saltonstall defines his position as follows:

"I consider that the very existence of this republic depends on this or a better law. It has its faults, and can be improved, but on the whole is efficient, and I have found it so in its workings. With one or two exceptions I have not drawn a single man from the civil service lists that has not proved not only acceptable, but eminently so, for the position to which he was appointed. The party that succeeds in carrying out and making permanent a thorough reform of the civil reform service and in redeeming the country from the spoils system should and will, in my estimation, receive the gratitude of posterity. And it is with this conviction that I desire this great glory for my own party. Moreover, I believe it is upon this issue that the next presidential election will be decided, and the party which the people believe will be truest to this reform will succeed."

Unfortunately, Collector Saltonstall seconds:

form will succeed."
Unfortunately, Collector Saltonstall seems to be directly at variance with the majority of his party on this question, and the country has seen how impossible President Cleveland found it to conduct his administration in opposition to the wishes of his party. There are a few honored Dem-ocrats, like Mr. Saltonstall, who are carnest believers in reform, but events have proved that it is impossible to bring the party up to their level. If recent reports are correct, the Democratic civil service commission-ers, even, are unfriendly to reform prin-ciples when they keep Democrats "out in the cold," and if that party is to continue in power the outlook for reform is not very encouraging.

THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS

About the dullest kind of literature is that included under the head of annual school reports, and perhaps it is only natural that it should be so, as most re-ports are merely routine affairs. However, once in a while, we discover a report in which the writer rises superior to his sub-ject, and infuses it with his own personality, that the casual reader is not only interested but instructed as well.

Of such a character is the annual school school report. In the beginning, Mr. Bartlett says that while the Taunton schools compare favorably with those of other cities, he will omit the usual congratulation on the "high standard of efficiency," which phrase is employed by men who wish merely to please. The results attained are very meagre, and this is not the fault of the teachers, but of "too much educational agitating, experimentis not the fault of the teachers, but of "too much educational agitating, experimenting and change;" "there is too much diffusion of energy," "there is too much changing of reasonably satisfactory text books, for new ones that are shorn of all difficulties and filled with pretty pictures; there is too much supplementary reading, through which the pupils scamper to cull through which the pupils scamper to cull the funny parts, and, as they must finish just so many books, there really isn't time to dwell on elocution and expression.' short, to sum the matter up, the public schools are conducted too much in the interests of the publishing houses.

The frequent additional requirements of the law, he says, are to make the work of superintendents, teachers and pupils more burdensome, and as a natural sequence, more unsatisfactory. It is impossible to meet the requirements literally and, for instance, "there cannot be a high school principal who is capable of fulfilling the demands of the law."

the demands of the law."

The recent text book law, Mr. Bartlett says, has a very injurious effect, both on supervision and teaching. The superinten-dent's time is required in the details of a book-seller's trade, and porter's and expressman's work. There is a saving in the first cost of the books, but the ultimate saving is imaginary. The superintendent has to take the time he should be spending in the schools, in handling and opening cases and in running errors to the cases, and in running errands to the schools. Then the teachers are burdened with the task of receiving, counting, numbering, recording and countless other de-tails, and the teaching is robbed of just so much valuable time.

As Taunton is a city of about the popula-tion of Newton, the foregoing comments will apply equally well here, as the same will apply equally well here, as the same causes operate here against the boasted "high standard of efficiency." We need fewer changes, merely for the sake of change, in texts books, courses of study, and other details of school work. The old saying that "a bad workman quarrels with his tools" is just as true in school work as in any other trade. It is also true that the more complex the school system is made, the more unsatisfactory are the results accomplished.

THE STATE TAXES.

There has been some inquiry as to the reasons for the great increase in the state tax this year. One reason is found in the labor agitation, which has broken up industrial contracts in prisons, which formerby brought into the state trensury large sums of money. The revenue from this source was largely reduced last year, and there will be another great reduction this year, as our wise legislature has directed that several contracts soon to expire shall not be renewed. The last legislature also that several contracts soon to expire shall not be renewed. The last legislature also passed an act, prohibiting contract labor in prisons, reformatories and houses of correction, and also forbidding the use of any machinery in such institutions not propelled by hand or foot power. The several thousand able-bodied criminals in these institutions will evidently soon do nothing for their support if this kind of legislation is kept up, and the taxes will be correis kept up, and the taxes will be correspondingly increased. The state charities are also increasing at an amazing rate, and it is well to bear in mind that the great majority of criminals and paupers come from the immigrants, who are yearly pour-ing into the state in great numbers. The legislation on these matters seems to be wholly in the interest of the labor agitators, and against the interests of the labor agitators, and against the interests of the tax-payers

Newspaper Directory.

Newspaper Directory.

C. S. Gosse, of 44 Kilby street, Boston, has just issued a neatly bound "Directory of the American Press," which contains a complete list of the newspapers in New England, the Middle, Southern and Western States, with their circulation, time of issue and class. The book will be found a handy one for advertisers to have, and it has evidently been prepared with considerable care. Mr. Gosse does not claim that the figures representing the circulation of the various papers are absolutely correct, but thinks they are as reliable as any that can be obtained.

Judging from the way the Newton papers are rated, we should say that the figures were sufficiently accurate for the date the book was given to the printer, about three months ago. At that time there was a difference of about 200 in the circulation of the two Newton papers, but as the Ghaphic has gained a large number of regular subscribers since then, there is probably less than that difference now. Mr. Gosse is highly recommended by those who have had dealings with him, as a reliable agent, and his directory certainly contains much valuable information. and his directory certainly contains much valuable information.

Mr. Davis's Birthday.

[Saturday Evening Gazette.] Of such a character is the annual school report of the city of Taunton, whose superintendent, Mr. J. S. Bartlett, seems to take a very practical and common sense view of the public school question, and aims to make his report something more than a mere formality.

The policy he is endeavoring to adopt in the Taunton schools is "simplicity and flexibility," and not a mere effort at display, and the report itself only contains about half the number of pages of our office as usual, now. Mr. Davis was for many years principal of a private school at West Newton, and since his retirement from teaching has been largely interested in real estate in that city. A goodly number of his pupils of both sexes still survive, and some are expected to participate in the celebration of his approaching birthday. It is understood that the public exercises will take place on the lawn in front of Mr. Davis's residence if the weather be fair, and if not fair, that they will be in the City Hall. Among those who will make addresses will be the Mayor of the city, ex-Governors Rice and Claffin, the Hon, J. F. C. Hyde, of Newton; Pof. Hagar of Salem, and Mr. Allen Kingsbury of Wellesley, nearly all of whom were for longer or shorter times pupils of Mr. Davis. The occasion will undoubtedly call together a large concourse of the friends and acquaintances of the venerable and esteemed centenarian.

She invited in a large number of children from Nonantum and other places, and formed a club with the name of the Loyal League club. A regular organization with constitution and by-laws was formed, the members all signing a pledge to use no oaths or vulgar language, ueither alcoholic liquors nor tobacco; and to seek to perform as many acts of kinpness as possible. A fine play-ground on the premises was arranged for them. At their meetings, which were quite frequent, all the formalities of a well-conducted club were scrupulously attended to,—of itself (an invaluable discipline for the children. Any breaches of the pledge were then considered, the lads themselves proposing a fine in such cases, and the members were called upon to mention any acts of thoughtfulness or kindness that they had performed for others since the previous meeting. The re sults have been very satisfactory to the older people who have aided the members of the club in their songs and sports, and the example thus set is worthy of imitation.

—An unusually large Prohibition caucus was held in the police court room, City Hall, Monday evening. At 8 o'clock Dr. Levi Parker of West Newton called the meeting to order. Dr. Parker stated that he felt obliged to resign the office of president of the Prohibition League to which he had prev.ously been elected. Although he was repeatedly urged to withdraw his resignation, he refused to do so, and Judge R. C. Pitman was elected chairman for the evening, no president being appointed. F. F. Davidson was chosen secretary. The object of the meeting was to cleet delegates to the state convention at Worcester. Sept. 7. On motion of G. L. Bean, a committee of five were appointed to retire and mominate the delegates. The committee were: G. L. Bean, Dr. Levi Parker, F. F. Davidson, James Cutler and N. C. Pike. The delegates elected were: Ward 1, J. N. Bacon, H. J. Wood, Clark Morehead; Ward 2, G. L. Bean, E. J. Cotlon, G. K. Littlefield; Ward 3, C. F. Tuttle, Edward Upham, Dr. Levi Parker; Ward 4, Rev.W.R. The Boston Traveller, in a sketch of modern poets, says: "Miss Louise Imogen Guiney has a kaleidoscopic genius that is a perpetual surprise, if not, indeed, a perpetual delight. It is a form of genius that defies prophecy. Just as one turns a little impatiently from some bit of her versethat is fantastic rather than truly imaginative, she flashes back some strong and noble poem like her recent "John Brown" or "Bankrupt," which appears in Scribner's Magazine for September, and is copied in the Traveller of this issue. Miss Guiney has a high degree of the inspirational temperament. Whether her vision will "turn out a song or a sermon," whether it will be something or nothing, defies exact calculations. She is tender, careless, mirthful, sad, superficial, and profound, all in a breath, But her genius is always spontaneous, delicate, electric, perhaps most of all electric; and her future is one to be awaited with genume interest.

GRANDPA HARRIS'S INVESTMENT.

It was a bright summer afternoon, and on a quiet hillside a sexton was busy filling in a grave, while a meagre funeral train was leaving the gate, and two men stood gazing sorrowfully at him as he worked.

One of the men had silvery hair, and he leaned heavily on his staff, while his frame shook with emotion as he ever and anon wiped his eyes with a coarse handkerchief. The sun was shining brightly, a soft south wind stole through the branches of the trees, and the tall weeds nodded to each other above the grassy hillocks, the cricks shirmed mountains in the grass, and ets chirruped mournfully in the grass, and the drowsy hum of the locusts came from the grainfield near by.

"I'm desprit sorry for you, Mr. Harris," said the younger of the two men, a roughlooking farmer, as he drew the back of his hand across his eyes. "It's hard to bury so good a woman as Mrs. Harris was."

Yes, Polly Ann was a good woman and we'd lived together fifty years in our little home yonder. We've had a good many sor-rowful days," and he pointed to half a dozen little hillocks near the new-made grave. "We had some hard times, but amidst it all we had a deal of comfort, and somehow it seems as if the light had gone out of my old life now," and with a sob he turned from the mound the sexton was just smoothing off.

Down the hill slowly went the two in Down the hill slowly went the two in silence till they came to a little red house covered with flowering vines, the wooden gate stood open and as the old man entered it, the other said kindly:
"Well, keep up a good heart, neighbor; it's never so dark but what the sun shines somewhere, you know, good-bye," and he passed on. The old man passed up the passed on. passed on. The old man passed up the sobble-stone walk bordered with beds of bright flowers; roses bloomed under the windows, tall hollyhoocks stood like groups of sentinels in the corner of the yard, while a fragrant honey-suckle clambered over the porch, and one ambitious vine had reached the low caves, and shook its plumes from the corner of the wooden spout around which it had twined. A narrow entry way led into a cheery kitchen where the sun was peeping in through the clustering vines, and lying in flocks of silvery light on vines, and lying in nocks of silvery light on the yellow painted floor, and the snowy curtains drawn to either side of the tiny windows swayed in the breeze. Hanging his hat on a wooden pin behind the door, the old man sat down in a tall armchair by the window, glancing piteously at the vacant one opposite him. A large matronly cat came purring around his lap; the old man buried his wrinkled face in her soft fur and sobbed like a child.

"Now don't feel so bad, Mr. Harris,' said the kindly voice of a woman, one of the neighbors, who was quietly getting things to rights; "you know it's all for the best or the Lord wouldn't have done it." "Yes, I know, but oh! there's a soft spot in my poor old heart today. I know, too, she is better off. I'm not weeping for her but for myself." And he raised his head and wiped away the tears.

"Where is Betsey Jane?" he asked. "O, she went straight home; said she couldn't stop nohow, she'd got to churn, and Pete had some hay to get in." The old man sighed. His wife was dead, and his only child so immersed in house hold cares as not to have time for one sym pathetic word to her aged father in his

Slowly the sun went down the western Slowly the san went down the western sky, twilight gathered over the scene, the little house was enveloped in shadows, and on the brown hillock on the hillside the damp dews fell. Mr. Harris was not left alone. A kind neighbor and his wife remained with him, and in the morning when he arose he found breakfast waiting. After the house was put in order, the neighbor went home and the old man was sitting went home and the old man was sitting alone in the sunshine, when a wagon rattled up to the door, and a woman of some 40 years came bustling up the walk.

"I'm in a great hurry this morning, father, but I came up to secure the silver teaspoons, and some other thing mamma gave me, before any one else got their clutches on to them."

The old man looked up half indignantly.
"I think your mother didn't design you to take them until I was done with them."

"What do you want of them, I'd like to know? You won't live here alone, will you? besides there are some pewter ones you can use."

you? besides there are some pewter ones you can use."
Opening the pantry she began to count out the half-dozen little teaspoons, and select a few articles of old-china and glassware, that had been carefully kept and prized by the late mistress of the house, together with a few snowy tablecloths and towels. The old man watched her with sorrowful eyes as she went about the small rooms, selecting whatever was of value and packing them up for removal, saying, "mamma gave them to me." When she had finished he said: "Sit down, Betsey Jane, I want to talk with you a bit."
"I haven't time, father; I must go home and get dinner. Pete and the hired man will be in a desperate hurry."

"But who will get dinner for me now?"

"Well, I don't know. I reckon you can get in with some of the neighbors to work for your board. You know we can't have you up to our house, we've got so large a family. If you hadn't squaudered your means, you'd have had something to help yourself with, and you might have hired a housekeeper. As it is now, I spose Squire Prince will serve a writ on you tomorrow, and attach what little stock you have. Jones has failed to pay that note you was fool enough to sign with him, and of course you must pay it. I never could see what ever possessed you to do so foolish a thing."

"Poor Jones was in trouble, his wife was sick, his crop had failed, and he was going to lose his place, and I helped him raise some money."

"Yes, and now will lose your own home. Mamma's sicknoss was dreadful expensive and what with doctor's bills, hired help and inneral expenses, it will take all Squire Prince don't gobble up to pay them."

The old man sighed: "Well, Jones is honest and he will pay the amount of the note if he lives: he has a large family to support and I'm all alone now. It won't matter much what becomes of me the few days I stay here now, but it will he hard to give up the old home where I have taken so much comfort." And he brushed away a tear as he spoke.

"Then there was the Charley Dill you brought up, and threw away five hundred dollars to save him from going to jail, and the ungrateful scamp has never paid it back, and the Lord only knows where he is now. I'd have seen him rot in jail before I'd have done it."

"He was young, and it was his first offence, and he went west and became a respectable man, and he wrote me two or three times how grateful he felt. The good book says: "Cast your bread upon the waters, for thou shalt find it after many days."" responded the daughter, as she respectable man, and ne wrote me two or three times how grateful he felt. The good book says: 'Cast your bread upon the waters, for thou shalt find it after many days.'" 'I haven't much confidence in such old saws,' responded the daughter, as she picked up her bundles and carried them out to the wagon, mounted to her seat, and as she was gathering up the lines, said, 'Well, good-bye, father, I hope you won't be as bad as I feared." She drove off, leaving the old man stauding in the sunshine, looking wissfully after her. Re-entering the house, he took his hat and staff and went slowly up the hillside, and seated himself by the new-made grave, leaned against a mossy stone, and for an hour wept silently. He was aroused by the voice of children. "Grandpa Harris, ma' has sent us to tell you dinner is ready, and you must come right to our house and eat with us." It was the same kind neighbor who had spent the night with him, who now called him to her hospitable board.

With feeble steps he followed his little guides, who prattled merrily as they danced along, looking every few steps to see if "grandpa," as they lovingly called him, was coming, too.

So the summer glided away and Mr. Harris remained alone in his little cottage. Squire Prince had taken the stock to liquidate the note given by Mr. Jones, and he had been obliged to part with his few acres of land to meet the other demands, but the little house and garden plot were still his own. He managed to cook his frugal meals himself, though the neighbors were very kind, and many a loaf of bread or crisp pie found their way to his table. The children delighted to see Grandpa Harris, and do little chores to help him, or share some little delicacy with the lonely man.

Every pleasant day he passed an hour or two by the little hillock on the hillside. Mr. Grane, the carpenter, made a rustic bench, and put it under the slade of an elm whose branches drooped over the tiny graves near by, and here the old man would sit thinking loving thoughts of the one gone from him. Th thoughts seemed to centre in herself and family.

When the chill winds and cold rains of autumn came, old Mr. Harris was lonely indeed, his visits to the hillside had to be abandoned for days together, and he would sit quietly by the little window that looked toward the spot now so sacred to him, with no company but the cat; he recalled the pleasant hours of the past, and with a heartache remembered when she was the light of his home.

November had come, with its wailing winds, beating rains and lowering skies. Now and then a balmy day like summer would tempt the old man forth, and through the crisp dead leaves that rustled under his footsteps he would pass to his resting place, but the chill air would soon drive him to his climney-corner again. One day his daughter called on her way to the village to dispose of her butter and eggs. It was only a week before Thanksgiving, and the old man had been thinking of the many pleasant festivals of the past, and how lonely the day had been to him, and he said something like this to his daughter. daughter. "You must be used to it by this time,"

"You must be used to it by this time," she said. "Peter's folks have invited us to spend Thanksgiving with them this year. I couldn't think of going to the trouble to get up a dinner at home. I presume some of the neighbors will livite you to dinner." And she harried away while her father wiped a tear from his eyes, as he looked up the hillside.

A day or two after a lady with an invalid daughter of eight years arrived at the little hotel, and after securing a room and seeing the little girl made comfortable she summuned the landlady.

"Do Mr. and Mrs. Harris live near here?"

"Lawk, marm, Mrs. Harris has been dead five months or more."

"I'm sorry," said the lady in a disappointed tone.

"Was she any relation to you, marm?"

asked Mrs. Burgess, in a sympathizing voice.
"No, but Mr. and Mrs. Harris were friends of my husband."
"Well, the old man is iiving, and a pretty lonely life he has of it, I can tell you." And the voluble little woman detailed all the gossip about him and his loneliness.
The lady listened quietly, then said:
"I have a plan for making that old man's life more comfortable; can I depend upon your co-operation?"
"I don't know what that big word means, but if you want somebody to help you do anything for Grandpa Harris' comfort, I'm the woman for it." responded Mrs. Burgess heartily.

So the two women had a long talk, and when the landlady left the room her rosy face was all smiles, and she clapped her hands softly together, ejaculating:
"Well, I never; who'd have thought it?
I'm desprit glad I'm sure."
Thanksgiving morning dawned bright, clear and cold. Mr. Harris rose shivering, built his fire, and after milking old Crumple, the cow, prepared his frugal breakfast, which he shared with the cat, then sat down to read until church time.

As the faint ding-dong bell sounded on the frosty air, Mr. Harris put on his overcoat, drew his muffler close around his face, took up the striped mittens knit by the flugers now stift and cold, and grasping his staff, set out for the little church where good Parson Moses was to hold forth.

As he trudged on over the frozen ground.

the fingers now stiff and cold, and grasping his staff, set out for the little church where good Parson Moses was to hold forth.

As he trudged on over the frozen ground, the brown leaves rustling under his tread, they seemed to whisper to him of decay. He had scarcely got ensconced in his own front pew, when a light market wagon passed the church. Perched on a seat in front was Mrs. Burgess, sitting very stiff and with an important air. In the rear was a small invalid chair, in which, wrapped in shawls, the little girl reclined, and Mrs. Dill, the stranger lady, sat on the trank by her side, and sundry parcels, baskets and palis filled every inch of space. It was a unique looking load, but as nearly everybody was at church it passed through the streets without comment. Old Gray, who was at the helm, evidently thought there was occasion for haste from the demonstrations his mistress made with a leather thong tied to a stick, which she flourished over his back in a very harassing way, and ejaculating:

"Get up, Gray, go 'long with you, don't be all day about it. We're in a hurry."

The little girl looked on amused, and a sweet laugh burst from her as she said:

"Oh, mamma, ain't it all so funny?"

They reached Grandpa Harris's domicile and gained admittance, for there were neither bolts nor bars, he had nothing to tempt one's cupidity. Mrs. Burgess carried in the parcels and then bustled around, her heart rejoicing for the surprise in store for the lonely old man.

Parson Moses was long in his sermon, and many of the careful Marthas were anxiously watching as hands pointed to a quarter to one. As soon as the benediction was pronounced they all hurried out, sure that their turkeys and chickens were overdone. Grandpa Harris took his way home as fast as his tottering limbs could carry him. The sermon had done him good, it told of the Heavenly Father's care for His creatures, and he felt that that care would be over and around him.

But as he neared his own door he remembered what day it was, and as he glanced up at coat and nat on the wood pin behind the door.

He felt a sense of warmth and comfort, and there were savory smells in the room. He turned towards the stove and paused in perfect amazement. A bountifully spread table was in the middle of the room, a pot of coffee on the stove sent forth an aromatic steam, while the half-open oven door disclosed a turkey and other appetizing eatables. A lady of some 40 years stood smiling at him, while a sweet, pale-faced child looked up trustfully from the depths of her chair.

"Pardon, Mr. Harris, the liberty I have taken," said the lady, advancing with outstretched hand. "I am Mrs. Dill--you remember Charley Dill, who used to live with you?"

with you?"
"Yes, indeed, where is he?" And the old man's face lightened.
"He is dead. I am his widow; but sit down and let me explain why I am here," and she drew the large easy chair to the stove and then seated herself opposite with her hand resting on the arm of the invalid chair.

and she drew the large easy chair to the stove and then scated herself opposite with her hand resting on the arm of the invalid chair.

"You did my husband a great service once. He committed a youthful error which would have sent him to prison and probably ruined his life. By paying five hundred dollars you got him released."

"I knew the boy didn't mean to do the deed, he was not himself when he committed the theft, and he was so sorry and promised me he would never drink agam," interrupted the old man.

"A promise he sacredly kept; he went west and became an honest, upright man, an honored citizen and a Christian, and he said he owed it all to you. If he had gone to prison he would have come out with a blackened name and become discouraged and reckless. As soon as he could earn more than enough to carry on his ousiness, he began to lay aside an amount weekly to pay his indebtedness to you, and every year the interest was added to the sum. When we were married I had some property, but he would never take one cent of my money toward it; he said it must be all his own earnings, and he hoped to surprise you some day with the amount of your investment. He died three months ago, and left two thousand dollars in your name, and made me promise to come and tell you all about it. You can get the money by sending to his lawyer, who will attend to the matter whenever you demand it. He always spoke with affection of you and your estimable wife, and on his deathbed prayed a blessing upon you."

The widow paused to wipe away a tear, "My little girl met with an accident a year ago; injured her spine, and will never be able to walk again, the physician says. He thought a change of climate with courty air and country food would do her good so I came on here. At the hotel I learned of the death of your wife, and on that you were living here alone, and I thought I

He thought a change of climate with country air and country food would do her good, so I came on here. At the hote! I tearned of the death of your wife, and that you were living here alone, and I thought I would surprise you, and with the co-operation of the landlady have provided a Thanksgiving dinner, and Alice and I want to eat with you, then if we can arrange it we would like to remain here for a while. I think this is a charming cot. I want quiet and seclusion, and perhaps my little girl and I can cheer your solitude. I have plenty of money and your two thousand dollars will make you perfectly independent now, and I think we will get along nicely—what do you say?

The old man reverently lifted his hands, and while the tears rained down his withered cheeks, exclaimed:

"Bless the Lord, O my soul, and forget not His benefits," then stooping he kissed the little girl. "You'll love me, deary, won't you."

Mrs. Dill smiled, and with opick, deft fingers placed the dinner on the table, and they gathered around the daintily spread board. How Mr. Harris enjoyed having company on that day which promised to be so lonely; and though his heart ached as he thought of his wife, and how she would have enjoyed the little fortune that had come to him, he said with quivering lips;

"She'll be glad for my sake, and that I won't be lonely any more."

Mrs. Dill was very social, and little Al'ce sportive notwithstanding her misforcune.
After dinner Mr. Harris built a fire in the little rustic parlor, and though the night set in dark and rainy, and the sleet dashed against the windows, there was light and cheer within, Mrs. Dill produced an interesting book from her trunk and read alond, while the little girl played with her doll, much to the delight of the old man, who stroked her sunny curls and cal'ed her "deary."

an interesting book from her trunk and read alond, while the little girl played with her doil, much to the delight of the old man, who stroked her sunny curls and cal'ed her "deary."

It was a weck before Betsey Jane heard of her father's good fortune, and by that time Mrs. Dill was nicely settled in her new quarters. She had bought some new furniture for the two 100ms she and the little girl were to occupy, and a few needful articles for housekeeping, but tried to keep Mr. Harris's room and the kitchen looking as near like home to him as she could. She had a cabinet organ, and often the old man was beguiled into a na.) in kis easychair as he listened to her music.

"Well, I do dec'are, father, you're in your dotage," exclaimed his daughter; "you've allowed that Charley Dill's wife to wind you around her finger, and she's settled here for life."

"Well, it's very pleasant for me, and I was so lonely, and the little girl is a good deal of company for me. She's a smart little thing, I tell you."

"I should think you would rather have had one of your own grandchildren to pet than a stranger."

"So I would, Betsey Jane; but you would not let them come to stay with me. I asked you to let me have Mary part of the time, but you couldn't spare her or Dick either, and all the others were too young to be away from you."

"Well, I hope when you get your two thousand dollars you'll'remember you have a daughter and grandchildren of your own, and not squander it on strangers?"

"Betsey Jane, you know you have not cared for my comfort or welfare all the months when I needed your love and care so much. The neighbors have been very kind to me, and I shall make them some return now that I have the means."

"You'll do as you please, I suppose, but I think you'll be a very unnatural father if you give' strangers what your own flesh and blood ought to have. I'm not sure but you ought to be judged insane and treated accordingly." And she flounced out of the house in a pet.

"The winter passed pleasantly. Mr. Harris received his mone dren," and greeted them kindly as they passed.

Mr. Harris is passing quietly down the declivity of life, and often gratefully refers to the investment he made by helping a fellow mertal in trouble, and which had brought him such rich returns.

I contracted a severe cold, which suddenly developed into Pneumonia, presenting dangerous and obstinate symptoms. My physician at once ordered the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. His instructions were followed, and the result was a rapid and permanent cure.—II. E. Simpson, Rogers Prairie, Texas.

Two years ago I suffered from a severe Cold which settled on my Lungs. I consulted various physicians, and took the medicines they prescribed, but received only temporary relief. A friend induced mot to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. After taking two bottles of this medicine I was cured. Since then I have given the Pectoral to my children, and consider it

Some time ago I took a slight Cold, which, being neglected, grew worse, and settled on my lungs. I had a hacking cough, and was very weak. Those who knew me best considered my life to be in great danger. I continued to suffer until I commenced using Ayer's Cherry Peetoral. Less than one bottle of this valuable medleine cured me, and I feel that I owe the preservation of my life to its curative powers.—Mrs. Ann Lockwood, Akron, New York.

SEPTEMBER MAGAZINES.

SCRIBNER'S.

SCHIBNER'S.

The bright, clearly printed pages of Scribner's Magazine are as attractive as ever and more varied, perhaps, in their interest. From the fine fronstispiece woodcut, "Looking Across the Plain of Thebes from the Tomb of the Pharaohs," which introduces the paper on "The Modern Nile," by Edward L. Wilson, to Maurice Thompson's sympathetic study, "The Motif of Bird Song," all is worth reading. Rector Rainsford of New York ming! poetry and practical experience in his article on "Camping and Hunting in the Shoshone." The Thackeray Letters continue. Moneure D. Conway presents to the public an unpublished draft of national constitution by Edmund Randolph, and Professor George T. Ladd of Yale discusses "The Development of the American University." Professor Hillof Harvard writes on "English in Newspapers and Novels." The poetry is by Julia C. R. Dorr, Mrs. James T. Fields, Louise Imogen Guiney and John Boyle O'Reilly. The grace and delicacy of the illustrations that accompany Mr. House's Japanese story are noteworthy.

st. Nicholas for September opens with a delightful frontispiece, by Mary Hallock Foote, illustrating Tib Tyler's Beautiful Mother, a charming tale of life at a seaside watering-place, by Nora Perry. A paper that will interest boys is the article on Christ's Hospital,—the famous Blueccat School of London,—where the scholars never wear hats, dress very nearly as the boys did when the school was founded, hundreds of years ago, and have many quaint and curious customs. The Boylood of William Dean Howells is pleasantly treated by William H. Rideling; Gen. Adam Badeau writes of the Battle of Gettysburg and of Pickett's glorious but futtle charge. The serial by Miss Baylor and by H. H. Boyesen are continued, and the Brownies indulge in Archery. These, with other articles, poems and pictures make an interesting and valuable number.

A Monument to Dr. Latimer.

Zion's Herald contains the following description, which will be of interest many Newton friends of the late Dr. Latimer:

A unique and beautiful monument has been placed over the grave of Dr. Latimer, in Mount Auburn—the tribute of a wife's affection. The design was made by Charles Edward Parker, in accordance with the suggestions of Mrs. Latimer. Upon a fine-cut grantice plinth is a moulded base of Italian marble, bearing the name Latimer. On the base is a richly cut die with moulded angles, connice and top so carved as to dryelop four paneled gables.

The panel in the front gable is the full height of the die, with a trefoil head, and represents a portion of a library, in which all the books are closed, but bearing as titles the names of Hegel, Kant, Fichte all the books are closed, but bearing as titles the names of Hegel, Kant. Fighte and other metaphysicians, from which the Doctor often quoted in matchless lectures in order to vindicate Christian doctrine from rationalistic opponents. On the top of the die is an open Bible, the verses of the 119th Psalm beautifully engraved thereon:

the 119th Psalm beautifully engraved therron:

51. "Thy statutes have been my songs in the house of my pilgrimage."

71. "Thy law is my delight."

122. "Thy testimonies are wonderful."

The alcove with its closed volumes and the open Bible, symbolize the devout and simple heart of the Christian scholar who would turn with delight from all his stores of human learning to the pure fount of Divine wisdom. On the reverse of the die is the simple inscription, suggnsted by a valued editorial friend:

REV. JAMES E. LATMER, S. T. D.

Beloved, lamented, he still lives in the lives of his students.

Beloved, lamented, he still lives in the lives of his students.

The upper part of the monument terminates in a simple cross with moulded base. In the thoughtful working out and the careful completion of this work, the designer has expressed his own strong regard for his friend, for whom no common monument would be suitable.

IN MEMORIAM.

MARY CLARKE SHANNON.

E. D. C., whose initials most of our readers will easily identify, pays the following tribute to Miss Mary C. Shannon of this city, in the last issue of the Woman's Jour-

It is not good that we should let such a life close on earth without a few words, utterly inadequate though they may be, to record what it has been. As we watch the sun sink below the horizon, there gradually spreads a radiance over the sky which makes every cloud a tabernacle of glory, and gives us a greater sense of his majosity than the noon-day beams which have filled that earth were its radiance seems to light up the whole sphere of its relations, and we know the ideal truth and beauty of the soul which has dwelt among us so long.

Mary Shannon was born in Barrington, N. H., September 9, 1813. Her father was alleutenant in the army. He died of fover at Sackett's Harbor, during the war of 1812-15. She was born about the time of his death. Her mother, Mary Waldron, was a daughter of Col. Waldron, a well-known citizen of Barrington, N. H. By her father's death the mother was left withkix children and only her scanty pension. With her youngest children she remained with her atther, and here Mary was brought up in generous, hospitable home.

In South Boston to make a visit, and she remained there eleven years. She took part in all the life of a large family, and was also active in the benevolent work of the heighborhood. She followed her Sunday school children to their homes—with help and sympathy—and some of them never lost her care and love through their whole lives. Here she passed through a great joy and a heavy sorrow, which consecrated her life anew to service for others.

She went to her brother's home in Newton in 1849 with her mother. She was the light and life of the house. She watched tenderly over her mother's declining years, was the stay and support of her brother, and the good mage of his children. Since the control of the prother, and the good mage of his children. Since have a support of the control of the children was a perfect of the control of the children was a perfect of the control of the children was a perfect of the control of the children was a perfect of the control of the children wa charities she has helped; but nearest and dearest of all to her was the Newton Home for Orphau and Destitute Girls, founded in 1872, and now named for its first blessed matron. Aunty Pomeroy. To Miss Shannon, with her in all things, this owes its existence. She gave constant personal care to it, and the wisdom of its management and the success of its efforts are mainly due to her counsel and love. She knew every child and was friend and benefactor to every one; and fitly did the sweet young voices sing hymns of trust and gratitude to God about her grave.

What she was to her family, to friends, to every one who knew her, in sorrow or joy, in sickness of health, words cannot tell. Asmiltitude of mourning yet grateful hearts, and they alone, can tell the blessing of her private ministrations of love and service.

She had no idea of her great gift of speech, ful nearts, and they atone, can be tule blessing of her private ministrations of love and service.

She had no idea of her great gift of speech, but her conversation was rich, fluent and imaginative, and she listened as well as she talked. She loved art in every form, music was a need of her soul, and sculpture and painting both gave her genume enjoyment. Color was a natural expression of her rich, loving nature; but her own art, in which she expressed herself, was the cultivation and arrangement of flowers. Her garden was her atelier, her bouquets were poems, every one full of thought and sentiment. "Every flower in her hand was laden with a thought." She could never give to one friend flowers she had prepared for another any more than she could exchange letters

But she had a word for every one, choice rare flowers for those who appreciated them, and abounding supply of the homely heauty for all. While talking in her garden her fingers, seemingly unconscious, picked the little sweet violets and bound them into bunches, and her bag was filled with them when she went into the city that she might help them to go on their mission to every one in need." How often in spring time the fragrance of the violets as one opened the door betrayed "Mary has been there."

She shrank from publicity and did not opened the door betrayed "Mary has been there."

She shrank from publicity and did not like to give her name with her gifts—only would she give it when it was her duty to stand by an unpopular cause or when personal recognition was the greatest of gifts. She was thoroughly brave, physically as well as morally. She once stood unfinchingly by a young girl enduring a severe operation without ether, and the poor sufferer gathered conrage from her eyes. A true woman, she could bring all her resources to meet the emergencies of the hour and never failed while there was duty to be done.

She was generous to the extreme, lavish in everything she could bestow on others, her flowers, her fruit, her money, her strength, her time, her sympathy, yet she never wasted anything that could be of service to any human being. The overcowded flower-bed must be cleared, but some empty spot was found for every lily and violet that bloomed to bless, the seeds must be saved to be sown in some empty garden, everything must be helped to do its mission of good.

Wonderful, too, was her faith in good-be saved to be sown in some empty garden, everything must be helped to do its mission of good.

Wonderful, too, was her faith in goodness. Heavy sorrow, terrible trials had been hers; she had seen treachery and evil and sin about her, but they could not darken her heart. Always trusting, always seeing the good before the evil in others, it was a bitter experience which made her ever withdraw her love and confidence where she had once placed it.

With a union of physical strength and beauty, practical ability, and judgment, and outflowing, tender love, she had also a soul attuned to religion as its native tongue. Nothing to her stood alone, everything was in divine relation to the great source of all good, to the illimitable future. An optimist to the core of her heart, she never doubted the universal goodness, and she was sanguine and bnoyant and full of hope in every experience of life. So she trusted herself and believed she could help, and did so with wise and ready hand.

What has Death to do with Life, save to strip from it a worn-out garment, a tool no longer useful, and leave it free to expand into more glorious proportions? The sun has set, even the afterglow will fade, and then will still shine the eternal stars, the sun to other worlds than ours.

The hearts that loved her will keep her memory green, but when even her name has passed away the influence of her life will not be lost, but will have spread its seed far and wide, and the great principles for which she lived and in whose faith she died, will still remain animating others to such work as she has known.

Is Deafness an Affliction of the Past?

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 31.—The physicians of this city are greatly interested in a case of almost total deafness which has been instantly relieved by the invention of H. A Wales of Bridgeport, Ct. The case had long been considered hopeless, as all known remedies and devices had failed to be of benefit, and it is considered a triumph for this wonderful and invisible device.

Hay Fever.

I have suffered greatly from periodical returns of hay fever. At the suggestion of Convers & Cheever, druggists, I obtained Ely's Cream Balm, and used a portion of it during a severe attack. I can cheerfully testify as to the immediate and continued relief obtained by its use. I heartily recommend it to those suffering from this or kindred complaints.—(Rev.) H. A. Smith, Clinton, Wis.

Hall.

—There was a very exciting time around the Centre on Thursday, over a supposed theft of a horse. Ex-Mayor Hyde ordered a team from Pratt's stables, and going after it, found a team hitched in front of the stable, and getting in drove off. As it happened, the team belonged to Wm. Bliss, the painter, who was going away on business. Not finding his team when he came out, he naturally supposed it was stolen and notified the police. The alarm was given and searchers were out in all directions. About two hours after, Mr. Hyde came driving quietly back, and the explanations that ensued were very amusing to the large crowd that had collected.

NOTES ABOUT TOWN.

A GOOD WORD FOR FLIES.

We have been striving for the last four or six weeks to make some current men-tion of flies (the Musca domestica), who run the household affairs of this part of the Garden City during dog days, but whenever we have put pen to paper for that purpose they seemed to divine our intention. The subject itself, knowing what we were about, overwhelmed pen and pencil, dipped playfully into the ink and trailed hieroglyphics over our best copy. They are so affectionate—so attached to one's person—hovering, flirting, osculating lips, nose, ear-tips and eyebrows with fond caresses — never repulsed — bearing no grudges—sharing every pursuit—pursuing caresses — never repulsed — bearing no grudges—sharing every pursuit—pursuing every change of location and attitude and relieving the fonesomeness of the country with their gay companionship and countless numbers, always ready with an escort specially detailed, to whom it is no trouble whatever—rather a pleasure—taking their musical instruments along with them into the woods in the hottest days, and are at our service always and without weariness. When night comes they know enough to fold their gauzy wings and go to sleep, so as to rise the next morning with the sun and wait upon man, who is not, as a general thing, sweetly responsive to their endearments at so early an hour.

On the contrary, their cousins, the mosquitoes (Lat. musca), though descended from the same progenitor, Beelzebub, have differentiated widely in the long process of evolution. They never sleep, never close eyelid or pinion, are always on the wing or on top of a shaft boring for blood, consorting all night with burglars in their joint attacks upon their victims. The Boston Post, "our esteemed contemporary," had recently an offensive article, a portion of which we copy and deride:

"It ought to console people who are bitten this summer by the mosquito to be told by a scientist that the mosquito is wonderfully beautiful. Place one, he says, under a microscope, adjust the lenses; now place your eye to the eye-piece. The tiny dusk-colored speck has vanished and in its place appears the most radiant and gorgeous creature which the mind can conceive of. The wings are of pale amber, the legs and thorax magenta, the body dark green, the eyes purplish, black and glittering like diamonds, the proboscies hining like ebony."

So is the evil one himself, if limners are to be credited. The remainder of this article is too harrowing for our columns at this season of the year, and we spare our readers further infliction. every change of location and attitude and

MILTON BLUE HILL.

One of our young Newton wheelmen remarked that he saw Milton observatory distinctly from a point in the road at Taunton, a few days since, as he was on a ninty-two-mile spin, to and from Myrick Lakeville, etc.

The vista was under the over-arching trees lining the road, and the distance was about twenty miles in a straight line. It was the most conspicuous object on the horizon, and seemed to stand out above all other

Once upon a time, in sailing by the Azores or Western Islands, the writer came on deck in the morning, and the captain annonneed, "There you have El Pico!" We looked eagerly along the line of the horizon for the famous Peak. He laughed and pointed up, up among the clouds. "Do you see?" he said, "that dark spot away up in the air? That is the top of El Pico."

It made the fish orean with the sudden away up in the arr. That is the top of El Pico."

It made the flesh creep with the sudden revelation of the awful sublimity of altitude—seven thousand feet, about a mile and a half perpendicular height above the ocean level. How many miles it spreads below is not ascertained.

Learning that one of our Portuguese sailors was born in this island, and had been to the Peak, we went forward to draw him out. We found him on the starboard rail gazing towards his native land. He spoke English rather indifferently, as they all do, but sufficiently to answer all questions.

He spoke they all do, but sufficiently to accept they all do, but sufficiently to accept they all do, but sufficiently to accept they are they are the month of August, he accompanied a party who were three days in ascending from the base to the summit. They camped each night, felling trees and constructing temporary shelter. There was plenty of game, but it was cold as winter.

was plenty of game, but it was cold as winter.

On reaching the plain at the top, they found it about ten or twelve miles across, and away off towards the center of it rose that little cap, which looked about as large as a lady's thimble, but they were half a day in ascending it.

Now perched on the very summit of all, they looked down upon Flores, Corvo, Gracioza and the rest of the Azores, and with a glass they could see the Madeiras. This point of that little apex was a flat surface of about three miles diameter, and depressed in the center.

Descending this hollow they were astonished to find it so hot as to be uncomfortable. Steam and heated gas were oozing from the crevices of the rocks, and crystals of sulphur lying round, glistening in the sun.

No flame was ever known from El Pico within the records of history, and yet this eye-witness says, the rocks were so hot they were in danger of burning their shoes, and their clothes were wet through with hot steam.

Descending the mountain they traversed snow and ice for about three miles, and came to a belt of stary soil without a blade of grass, or a shrub, where midsummer probably had invaded iast year's frost.

Then the lichens and mosses covered the rocks, then grass and low shrubs appeared, finally pines and cedars, with "various kinds of forest trees that he had never seen before."

They started at 5 a. m. on the ice and at 6 p. m. came to where figs and oranges ripened in the open air. The base of this huge mountain is covered with plantations. The soil is volcanic ashes. Irrigation is abundant, being supplied from the never failing source of the snow and ice above. Little rills are constantly trickling towards the cultivated region, stopping sometimes on their way to form pools of the purest water, already iced and clear as crystal.

We would like to inquire of the director of the Blue Hill Observatory.

1. What are the most distant points that can be seen there with a good spy glass in the clearest day?

What is the true height of the Observatory?

A reply to these queries addressed to the Editor of the Newton Graphic will be kindly appreciated by the numerous constituency hereabout, who set their weather vanes daily by Blue Hill.

GREYSTONE.

"Unjust and Untrue."

"Unjust and Untrue."

To the Editor of the Graphic:

In the issue of your paper of Aug. 26, under the head of "Unjust and Untrue," is a long rhodomontade from one who, signs himself "Jaquith." By reason of the anims the writer shows toward both the officer and "Ward Three," as well as a display of his ignorance of the facts in the case, I am constrained to reply to his several "unjust and untrue" assertions. Mr. Jaquith says that the article to which he takes such a dislike is by an a nonymous writer. Writing over a nom de plume, with the real name in possession of the paper, is always permissible, so this charge of Mr. Jaquith's falls flat. He also says: "the officer reported that the boys were hard cases and had been arrested before." That statement is false, and he can bring ne evidence to prove the contrary. Still continuing, he attacks the officer for his (the officer's) lack of judgment, and sincerely hopes that the officer will be the recipient of "severe censure" from his "superior officers." This is again where he shows his ignorance, for were he conversant with the rules of the city of Newton, he would know that the city prides herself on being kept free from just such parties as these fellows under discussion, and that when officers do their duty, as they did in this case, they are commended by both the citzens and by their superior officers, and not reprimanded as he desires.

The consideration that Mr. Jaquith has for the officers do their duty, as they did in this case, they are commended by both the citizens and by their superior officers, and not reprimanded as he desires.

The consideration that Mr. Jaquith has for the finances of our city is amusing in that instead of Newton being put to a "needless expense," she would have been the gainer in the matter, from the fact that the county shoulders the cost of trial and witness fees are turned into the city treasury, thus enriching instead of impoverishing her.

To Mr. Jaquith's charge of my being a "Pharisee," I must say that he does not seem to understand the application of that term. "External religion" on the part of Ward Three had nothing to do with the matter of which I wrote, and I plead not guilty to the charge. I do, however, believe in calling a "spade a spade," and when I said that the Sabbath was "profaned" by the boisterous conduct of these boys, it was the truth, else Webster and Worcester have placed a wrong construction upon the word.

In closing, I particularly desire to call attention to Mr. Jaquith, who "poses" as a humanitarian and a Christian. How any man in a sane condition can make such comparisons as does he, between Christ and his disciples and these rowdying, frolicing set of boys, all decent people will fail to understand. If Mr. Jaquith knows anything at all about the case he knows that the boys broke man's laws by taking that which did not belong to them, and that they could also have been arrested for being on the railroad track without having legal business there. And he also knows that they defied God's law, by breaking his commandments. Mr. Jaquith savs that 'the urges the boys to go into the country on the Sabbath," but the citizens of Newton feel that they can survive without their presence. But if they do come and transgress the laws our courts hereafter will try to correct and not "kill" them, and they will then have no further desire to come to Newton. Mr. Jaquith can not undo that which Ward Three intended to do in the original communicatio

A Delicious Brenkfast Dish.

As a health producing and sustaining food, cats have long stood high among the cereals. The Scotchman and his oatmed are proverbial, and the profile of the hulls and other foreign matter, no farinaceous food is more healtfull for the invalid or the strong, and the processes of manufacture have been so improved of late years that absolute purity has been obtained. The preparation known as Quaker Mill Rolled White Oats is commended by the medical profession as perfectly pure and easily digested by the most delicate siomacks, while yet retaining all the natural sweetness and flavor of the grain. These goods are manufactured by the Quaker Mill Co., Ravenna. Ohio, and are made from the best white oats that the market affords. The mill is equipped with the most perfect maching that a long experience has proven to be the best, many of these being peculiar to this mill alone. No expense has been spared to make the "Quaker" brand the best in the country, and consumers can rely on it at all times as such.

—Without saying anything derogatory to our public school system it is no doubt the case that a boy with fair common school foundation can fit himself for college quicker in some of the preparatory schools than in an ordinary High School. This is so, largely because the studies can be made to have a more direct bearing upon the requirements for the college examinations. The attention of parents interested is directed to this point, because we are now to have in our city a private school, under Mr. Cutler's charge, in which studious boys may save one or two years time in getting ready.

The selectmen of Watertown met the drainage committee of our city government at City Hall, Wednesday evening, and discussed the proposed plan for draining Morse's field. a few days thereafter, so that something can be done this fall.

—Mr. William S. Brazer died at his residence on Nonantum place, on Tuesday, at the age of 62 years. He had been in failing health for nearly a year, and last spring went to the Azores, hoping to be benefitted by a complete change, but his health did not improve, as was hoped. Mr. Brazer was a member of the firm of Brazer & Prade, of Hayward Place, Boston, and has lived in Newton for about 21 years, where he was highly respected and esteemed. He had few superiors in his business as an interior decorator, and Channing church, the old Eliot church, and a large number of private residences in this city bear evidence to his artistic skill. He also had charge of the decoration of many large buildings in Boston and vicinity, and the firm had a well earned high reputation for thoroughness and reliability. As a citizen his many excellent qualities won him many friends, and his death is a distinct loss to the city. He leaves a widow, one son and two daughters. The funeral took place from the Church of Our Lady, at 9 o'clock, this (Friday) morning, and the burial was in the family lot at Mt. Auburn.

large part of the tax bills having been already sent out. The list contains many interesting features, among which the following have been selected. The number of persons assessed in the city is 8,263; of whom 3,838 pay a poll tax only, 4,425 pay a tax on property, and of those who pay polls only 16 are women, which is a most deplorable showing for such a city as Newton. There are 5,671 male poll tax payers.

The total value of property in the city is $32,277,307, of which $9,196,441 is on personal property, $11,652,975 on buildings, and $11,427,891 on land. There are 1,771 taxed horses in the city; 1,017 cows, 3,856 dwelling houses,land 9,879 acres of land. Ward Six has the most wealth, with Ward Seven second, and Ward Five the lowest on the list. There are 4,425 property owners in the city. Mr. Thomas Nickerson of Newton Centre, pays $5.457.74, and is probably the heaviest tax payer in the city. One curious fact is that the Parsons estate in Ward Seven, which paid the largest tax last year, is reduced this year to $$53,20. The rate of taxation is $15.80. Following is a list of those who pay $500 or over, in Wards One and Seven:

NEWTON'S CENTENARIAN.

How His 100th Birthday Was Celebrated.

Addresses by Mayor Kimball, Ex-Governor Rice, Prof. Hagar and Others.

Poems by Dr. S. F. Smith, Thomas Drew and Henry Lemon.

On Saturday, Sept. 3d, Mr. Seth Davis was 100 years old a great crowd of people gathered at his residence on Watertown street West Newton, to do bonor to this venerable citizen. Seats were arranged on the spacious lawn in front of the house. under the handsome maples planted by Mr. Davis's own hands, and shortly after noon people began to assemble from all sections of Newton and other city of Newton and other cities. About forty of his old pupils were present, and these together with Mr. and Mrs. Davis, were ogether with Mr. and Mrs. Davis, were photographed in a group around one of the piazzas of the house. A large number of congratulatory letters had been received from old pupils and friends who were unable to be present.

The guests included members of the present and past city governments, and prominent citizens of Newton and there were about 15,000 people upon the grounds during the afternoon, some of them having come from distant cities to do honor to their old friend and teacher.

THE FORMAL EXERCISES

began at 2:30, a temporary platform in front of the house containing Mr. and Mrs. Davis and the speakers. This was hand-somely decorated with flowers, and several national flags were festooned about the trees, giving to the grounds quite a gala

A choir of children in charge of H. M. Walton, director of music in the public schools of the city, composed of present and former pupils of the Davis School, Waltham street, so named in honor of Mr. Davis, was present and rendered appropriate music. The exercises began with the cityling of the Davis plant and rendered appropriate music.

Waitham street, so named in honor of Mr. Davis, was present and rendered appropriate music. The exercises began with the singing of the Doxology and prayer by Rev. Alvah Hovey. After the rendering of the 'Wondrous King of Heaven' by the choir, Mayor J. Wesley Kinball arose and made the following introductory address:

MAYOR KIMBALL'S INTRODUCTION.

Ladies and gentlemen:—We have met here to-day to pay our respects to our venerable fellow-citizen, Seth Davis, Esq., on his 100th birthday. This great assembly which has convened to honor him is a grand proof of the real friendship entertained for him, and is a magnificent tribute of esteem to his life work and his worth. Mr. Davis was born in the year the constitution of the United States was adopted, and is a remarkable witness of the wonderful development and history of the country; and whether in time of prosperity or depression, in time of peace or war, he has always been an ardent supporter of the government and maintained a fixed faith in the grand success of the country. These flags which beautify the residence of him whom we have met to honor, emblems of the nation's greatness and of the people's security, adorn a loyal home. During Mr. Davis's long residence here—now more than 84 years—he has taken an active part in public affairs, and been an earnest advocate of whatever policy he believed to be best adapted to promote the prosperity of Newton. He has been prominently identified with and always interested in the church and the schools. Mr. Davis has a fondess for the cultivation of flowers, and a love for ornamental trees. There are very many fine large trees which beautify our city that were his gifts. It is appropriate, I am sure, that Mr Davis, who is so fond of the beautiful in nature, should be seated here in the midst of these rare plants, surrounded by flowers of the sweetest perfume, and beneath the spreading branches of these magnificent trees planted by him more than half a century ago. Though Mr. Davis was greatly interested in the management of come.

Mayor Kimball then introduced Hon.

Alexander H. Rice, who made the chief address of the day, and one that was full of interest and local allusions. He began by expressing his pleasure at the opportunity of giving expression to his feeling toward his old teacher and life-long friend and said.

oxpressing his pleasure at the opportunity of giving expression to his feeling toward his old teacher and life-long friend and said:

Any event or circumstance which requires a cartury of time for its development, or which involves a century of duration, is, to say the least, extraordinary. For the centuries are the longer spaces by which we measure the progress of history, into which we classity the incidents and vicissitudes of dynasties and races, and by which we divine into equal leras the everlengthening web of time.

How much more extraordinary is a century as the measure of a single human life! And how tender is the commemoration of the centennial birthday of a man whose long career has been full of diligence, usefulness and good example! And how pathetic such a commemoration! Gladly we come to rejoice with Mr. Davis on his centennial birthday anniversary, to weave fresh garlands for his brow and to crown him with our tributes of honor, gratitude and affection.

The birth of Mr Davis antedated by a few days the adoption of the federal constitution. He is, therefore, a little older than our form of government, and is one of the few survivors who also lived under the old articles of confederation. We can hardly realize that at the time of his birth the white population of the country was only about three millions, or not much more than one half the present population of the State of New York, and that they chiefly resided on the Atlantic border, east of the Alleghanies. Florida then belonged to Spain; Louisiana and the territory southwest to France; the great Northwest, soon to be the most populous section, was designated as unknown territory; the vast mineral States in the centre of the continent were indistinctly known as the region of the Rocky Mountains and of the great American. Desert, and the Pacific slope belonged to Mexico. The revolutionary war had been fought, the victory won, and America, except her 700,000 blacks, was free; but it was the freedom of the youth who has broken away from paternal the world.

After speaking of Mr. Davis's career as a teacher the speaker said: "The school, as I remember it, had some peculiar and original features. The schoolhouse was peculiar in construction, and designed to promote good order and discipline, as it were, automatically; and thus to aid in dispensing with the labial tactics of Xantippe on the one hand, and with the birch bark efficiency of Solomon on the other. The centre of the room was a clear space, and around the walls ram a series of stalls, each separated from another by a high partition, after the fashion seen in some eating houses now; and in each stall was a short and narrow seat, so that its occupant could see no fellow-pupil except on the opposite side of the room, or at least beyond speaking distance, while each and every one was visible to the master. I say that each one was visible to the master, though it is manifest that, when seated in his chair in the centre, the master's back must be toward some of the stalls on one or more of the four sides of the room.

There are different methods of teaching, according to the ideal of the master or to his forecast of the conditions of society into which his pupils will ultimately come; and in analyzing them perhaps we shall find one which may properly by called education and to another which may be called instruction. The one looks to the building up of the mind by developing and strengthening its faculties, making them dexterous, versatile and efficient; the other looks rather to storing the memory with facts, the products of other minds or the result of experience. While both these methods are useful and necessary to a degree, still there are limitations beyond which every school takes on the distinctive characteristics of one or the other; and its pupils will be more or less effected by it in their subsequent career.

No reminiscense of school days at "the Academy' in which 1 participated would approach completeness, unless it embraced some reference to the daughter of the master, Miss Harriet Davis cultivated and most beautiful cities of New England.

He is with us to-day in fairly vigorous health, to enjoy its salubrious air, to feel the pressure of friendly hands, and to respond to the salutations of throbbing hearts. In an interview about two years since, when he was well on in his 98th year, I asked him how he managed to dispose of his time from day to day. "Why," said he, "I go daily to my business like other men, and, besides, I am interested in affairs."

As I listened to that reply I was reminded of another remark of the great Roman philosopher and orator when he said: "As I like a young man in whom there is something of the old, so I like an old man in whom there is something of the dol, so I like an old man in whom there is something of the continue to deepen with its descending sun, may peace and serenity fill your evening hours; and by-and-by, when the morning shall break, may it be with revelations to your enraptured eyes of joy unspeakable and full of glory.

PROF. D. B. HAGAR

of Salem, another old pupil, then made an interesting address, recalling events of academy days, and paying a high tribute to Mr. Davis as a teacher, saying that he was ahead of his time, and practiced a great deal of what is called the "new edu-cation." He said that he was glad to acknowledge his indebtedness to his old teacher, and it was a pleasure to see him enjoying a serene old age, as a reward of a well-spent youth and manhood. Next came an original poem by Rev. S. F. Smith, D. D., who was present and read the following lines: To the honored Mr. Seth Davis, on his 100th birthday, Sept. 3, 1887;

Hail, honored master,—hail, thrice-honored friend, Before thy hundred years, we, reverent, bend; Distinguished praises for thy well-carned name. Our lips would speak, our grateful thoughts would frame. Distinguished man, whose deeds so bravely done, Have charmed and blessed, in turn, both sire and son:

son; Lone pillar thou, amid these wastes of years, The sole survivor of their joys and tears, Whose like our eyes will ne'er behold again, Grand and alone a monument of men.

Grand and alone a monument of men.

Distinguished, thou, dear man, above thy peers, Rich in the circle of thy hundred years,— Whose eye, undimmed, has seen the months decay,
While generations thrice have passed away;
Skilful to teach, kind and discreet to guide,
Keen to discern, and honest to decide,
Acute to plan, and earnest to defend,—
If c'er a foe in seeming, still, a friend;
Iraining thy pupils to be good and wise,— Goodness lives ever, wisdom never dies,— Thy teaching made these men, both good and great,
Fitted to hold and grace the chair of state,—
G cat for the platform, pulpit, field or mart,
But greatest in the goodness of the heart;
As fruits, that ripen neath the genial sun,
Beauty and richness yield, combined in one.

Friend of our early youth and riner ago.

Friend of our early vouth and riper age,
The citizen, the patriot, and the sage,
Blessed with an eye to see, a hand to do,
A heart to throb, a soul, both large and true,
Man of the present, treasury of the past,
How has thy life been honored, to the last;
Of old traditions, thou, a matchless store,
A walking volume of historic lore;
Lover of nature in its varied moods,
Its brooks and flowers, its fields and leafy woods,
A thousand trees, set by thy loving care,
Attest thy taste and toil which placed them there.

So on the bill where forests used to stand, One tall, old tree, the monarch of the band, Towers upward, all alone, in lofty pride, While generations, nourished at its side, In gentle summer, or, in winter drear, Have grown and fallen, with every passing year, Each season crowns it with luxuriant leaves, Each autumn round it some fresh glory weaves, And twittering birds and sunbeams o'er it play, While the old monarch suffers no decay.

May thy late years decline, O honored friend, As setting suns their glowing colors blend, Peacefully friding toward the darkening west, Sinking serencly to their destined rest, Prophetic of a new and brighter day, When years and centuries shall have passed away.

HON. J. F. C. HYDE

was then introduced as the first mayor of Newton, and said that he represented the old settlers of Newton, who were glad to do honor to such a distinguished citizen, and alluded to the prominent part Mr. Davis had always taken in town meetings, where nothing escaped his notice. He always knew what he wanted and was argus eyed in watching over the interests of the town. His work as one of the prime movers in establishing a savings bank was also commented on. mented on.

JUGDE JOHN C. PARK

was to have been the next speaker, but he was unexpectedly called away, and Mayor Kimball then introduced

MR. L. ALLEN KINGSBURY

MR. L. ALLEN KINGSBURY
of Wellesley Hills, who had been an old pupil of Mr. Davis, and had for many years been associated with him in business, recalled a number of pleasant reminiscinces of his school days, and said that the spectacle of the city of Newton setting apart a day to do honor to such a man, who had spent his life in laboring for the good of others, did much to restore one's faith in mankind. The influence of Mr. Davis had been icit for good upon the schools of Newton, which had served as a model for other cities to follow. He had also shown that it was not necessary for a man to die in middle age, but that life could be prolonged by temperance in all things. Mr.
Kingsbury paid a high tribute to Mr.
Davis's wife, who was making his later days such pleasant ones.

MR. THOMAS DREW

MR. THOMAS DREW then read the following poem entitled "A Tribute to Seth Davis from a Neighbor, On the Anniversary of his 100th Birthday."

A century's completed year, Has crowned his useful life; And friends and neighbors eathered here With love and good-will rife.

His birthday came in that glad hour, When, all dissensions passed;— Our young Republic stood in power And faced the angry blast;—

Of kings and potentates enthralled In all their stubborn pride;— He lives to see the right installed, And manhood glorified.

The pedagogue in youthful prime, Improved youth's shining hours; He made his pupils "hew to line";— And their success is ours.

He learned them how to live, Inspired their noblest aims, He gave—"'twas all he had to give," His labor and his pains. Beyond this earth he saw God's skill, Displayed in star-gemmed sky, And with his wise mechanic skill He framed his orrery;—

Which taught the rustic youngsters here, What Galileo found; And Isaac Newton, this compeer), Of nature's wondrous round.

He cut new highways through old fields, Lined them with shade-trees green, And now we have their grateful yields In tempered sunshine's sheen.

A grand old man! we honor him, For his long useful life; And here we say with heartfelt vim, God bless him and his wife!

Mayor Kimball then introduced MR. NATHANIEL T. ALLEN,

Mil. NATHANIEL T. ALLEN, who said that the day furnished a valuable lesson for all, in the honor paid to a man who had lived a long life with honor to himself and the community in which he dwelt. Mr. davis had been one of the earliest reformers, and had carried his reform principles into all things. He had been one of the first temperance men, one of the earliest ante-slavery advocates, one of the first to arouse an interest in Village Improvement work. He had been one of the starters of the West Newton Atheneum, in which he he d taken more shares than any other man. SEPTEMBER MAGAZINES.

JUVENILE MAGAZINES

"Wide Awake" for September is an opulent number. "Centennial of the Constitution of the United States" by Annie Sawyer Downs, draws upon "old paintings, stitution of the United States" by Annie Sawyer Downs, draws upon "old paintings, statues, photographs, drawings, and the original parchment of the Constitution" for illustrations. Mrs. Harriet Prescott Spofford writes a brilliant sixth contribution to her "Ballads of Authors," the "Woods of Warwick" being the ballad's title and Shakspeare the "author." Charles Egbert Craddock skilfully deepens the mystery in the "Story of Keedom Bluffs," Louise Imogen Gulney's instalment of "Fairy Folk All," entitled "Changelings," is fantastic enough. Margaret Sidney gives her second excursion along the "Highways and Byways" of Concord. There is chapter four in Lizzie W. Champney's search for "The Lost Medicine of the Utes." Celia Thaxter, has some verses on "Fishing." The young folks have another "try" at "The Secrets at Roseladics," and Sophie May makes them guests at "Lucy's High Tea." Miss Clara Barton is the "successful woman" in this number, and Professor C. F. Holder continues his very interesting and instructive articles.

MODERN HOUSES.

Shoppell's Modern Houses for August opens with a readable article on Furnishing and Decorating a Summer Cottage and C. R. Wingate, sanitary engineer, contributes a valuable paper on Heating and Ventilation. The number contains plans for a dozen houses ranging in price from $1800 to $9000. These plans are published monthly by the Co-operative Building Association, New York, and are of especial value to those about to build.

THE FORUM

THE FORUM.

The Forum for September has the following excellent table of contents: The Sixteenth Amendment, Senator J. J. Ingalls; Is Canada Misgoverned? The Minister of the Interior; Books That Have Helped Me., Rev. Dr. Augustus Jessop: Concerning Men, The author of "John Halifax, Gentleman;" What Is the Object of Life? Prof. E. D. Cone; The Manners of Critics, Andrew Lang; American Geographical Names, Bishop A. Cleveland Coxe; Great Telescopes, Prof. C. A. Young: The Gist of the Labor Question, President John Bascom; Profit-sharing, Nicholas P. Gilman; Ignatius Donnelly's Comet, Prof. Alexander Winchell.

"THE WRITER."

All who are interested in any way in literary matters will find much to entertain them in the September number of The Writer (Boston). Six numbers have now been published of this bright little magabeen published of this bright little magazine for literary workers, which is serving a useful purpose and which grows more interesting and valuable with every issue. The articles in the September number include: "Days with George Sand," by Lew Vanderpole: "Preserving Clippings," by Eugene M. Camp: "What Makes Successful Literature?" by C. M. Hammond; "Tools for Writers," by William H. Hills; "Statistics of Signature," by Robert Luce; "Hints to Newspaper Writers," by Wm. J. Fowler; "Murray's New English Dictionary," by C. K. Nelson; "Literary Experiences of a Doctor." by Ferd, C. Valentine, M. D.; and "The Type-Writer as an Aid to Fluent Composition," by Florine Thayer McCray. Beside these there is an unusually interesting department of Queries. in which many puzzling questions regarding literary work are answered, and the usual Book Reviews, Helpful Hints and Suggestions, News and Notes, and reference list of literary articles in periodicals. The Writer is edited by William II. Hills and Robert Luce, both working editors on the Boston Globe. The price is: One year, one dollar, one number, ten cents. Address: The Writer, P. O. A Common Error in History Corrected.

Nothing is more common than the notion that the Church of England was founded by Henry VIII. Some of the popular histories and many controversial writings have attributed the origin of the Church England to that licentious monarch Perhaps fifty per cent of the fairly intelli-Perhaps fifty per cent of the fairly intelligent people we meet really believe that when King Henry could not induce the Pope to sanction his divorce from the queen he set up a church of his own, so that the Church of England became a split from the Roman Catholic church. Of course no one who has really studied the question could hold such an absurd view.

Dr. Lyman Abbott, a very well known American writer, although not a churchman, has made as earnest effort to correct some of the popular errors connected with this subject.

In an article published by him a few years ago he says: "England possessed a primitive ago he says: "England possessed a primitive Christianity before the time of Augustine. ago he says:"England possessed a primitive Christianity before the time of Augustine. The first apostles there were not Romanists, and there never was a time in England's history from the days of Alfred the Great to those of Henry VIII, when the best'spirits in its church and among its people did not claim independence of the papal see. The act of Henry VIII old but finally dissolve an allegiance which had never been more than nominal. Moreover this ecclesiastial independence of the English people which does not date from the sixteenth century was kept alive by a succession of religious teachers who possessed the free spirit of the later Protestants. The Protestantism of the Anglo Saxon people dates from the introduction of primitive Christianity into England before the Bishop of Rome preferred a claim to be a universal father."

"When Henry the 8th was unable to obtain a divorce from the Pope, he declared that henceforth for him and for his people there should be no Pope. When he was excommunicated he defied the papal decree, and the people, the clergy and the Church of England sustained him in that defiance."

The breaking of the papal power in England rendered the reformation in the church possible. No new church was organized, the old one was simply reformed. The church thus reformed was, except during the reaction under queen Mary, the church of the English people. However little some of them relished the reformed doctrines and usuages, they recognized it as their church, until during the reign of queen Elizabeth the pope's decree ordered all who accepted his supremacy to withdraw from the Church of England. Tais decree was the occasion of the first formal separation from the national church.

The time has indeed come when whatever one's views may be upon the religious questions involved it must be regarded as a mark of ignorance to say that King Henry VIII founded a church, or that the Church of England had its origin as an offshoot from the Roman Catholic church.

Fright of a Timid Taster.

Some time ago a new drug called Kaskine was discovered. It was said to have all the properties of quinine except its deleterious ones. This claim was startling. But the men who understood the nature of Kaskine were sure of the facts and did not hesitate to style it The New Quinine. Many physicians said it was equal to quinine, and some admitted its superiority. Among the latter was one who writes:

34 East 25th St., N. Y., Nov. 11, 1885.

After five months use of "Kaskine" I cheerfully state that I have found it superior quinine in its specific power and entirely free from causing any disturbance to the hearing.

After five months use of "Kisskine" I cheerfully state that I have found it superior to quinine in its specific power and entirely free from causing any disturbance to the hearing.

WM. FREDERICK HOLCOMBE, M. D.
Late Prof. in N. Y. Opth. Hospital and in N. Y. Medical College.

A wide demand for Kaskine, the new quinine, immediately syrang up. Millions of persons who were dissatisfied and disgusted with quinine turned to Kaskine as the garrison of a besieged city turns to a rescuing army. Rivals are alarmed. Their business was in danger. Something must be done to "Kill Kaskine." A "chemist" (?) was employed and instructed to analyze a sample. He brought out his retorts, crucibles, acids, alkalies, litmus paper and his alcohol lamp. Nauseous fumes arose. An entire bottle of Kaskine was administered to a professional "taster." It did not kill him. The chemist now saw his way to a verdict; Kaskine was "nothing but sugar." This finding was printed in the periodical owned by the chemist, and a copy sent to every druggist in the land. "Now," said the rivals, "Kaskine is killed."

But the people like sugar and declared that this Kaskine "sugar" had a wonderful way of curing malarna and dyspepsia, and of reducing fevers. The sales increased, and people praised it to their friends. The rivals were appalled. They had not "killed Kaskine;" they had boomed it. The "chemist" was again called upon, with two other "Professors" to help him—one from Wisconsin, one from Boston. These three wise men put their heads together. They brought out all their apparatus as before. The nauseous fumes ascended. The trembling taster swallowed more Kaskine was sugar flavored with quinine; and this "analysis" was trumpeted through the land.

Once more "Kaskine was killed."

But the demand increased. Mr. C. N. Crittenton, a leading New York fobber, bought 200 gross, and other dealers in all the great business centres of the country, sent in proportionately large orders. Never before in the history of medicines had any remedy attained so wide and since.—William Te3a, 133 East 124th St., New York.

"Seven years ago I had an attack of billous remittent fever which ran into intermittent malaria. I tried arsenic, mercury and quinine—the latter in heavy and continued doses. Malaria brought on nervous prostration and dyspepsia. Last winter I began using Kasalne, the new quinine, and a few bottles cured me. Malaria and dyspepsia both disappeared."—Mrs. J. Lawson, 141 Bergen street, Brooklyn, N. Y.
"I contracted malaria in the Michigan Lake District, and for eight years suffered from a chronic type of intermittent malarial fever with all its distressing symptoms. Used all the leading remedies, including quinine, under the best medical advice, but received no radical benefit. In the summer of 1880 I first tried Kaskine, the new quinine, and it cured me. It was a true scientific healing, and results so real cannot be disputed."

cured me. It was a true scientific healing, and results so real cannot be disputed."

DAVID J. NORTON, State St., Albany, N. Y.
Thi Its power to eradicate malaria from the system Kaskine is a medicinal revelation. Mine was about as bad a case of this disorder as could be, and yet Kaskine thoroughly cured me after I had been dosed to no purpose with almost every drug in the Pharmacopoeia."

J. D. HIRD, B. A.

Pharmacopogia,"

J. D. HIRD, B. A.,
Assistant Chemist Maryland Agricultural College.
Bankruptey now stated the rivals in the face.
The people laughed at the "sugar" dodge and the "quinne" dodge. Kaskine was sweeping the continent like a prairie fire. Again the chemists brought out their apparatus. Seeing the dreadful preparations the "taster" fled in terror from the laboratory. The nauseous fumes once more ascended, and "Science" prosounced the third verdiet:

Kaskine is made of mercury, arsenic and other

"Kaskine is made of hiercury, arsemedeadly poisons."
But the people laughed at this dodge also, and the sales increased.
Now, what does all this mean? Here have been three distinct "analyses" with three contradictory results. The public may well ask: "Is chemistry nearly a pretended science, or are these learned Professors fools and humbugs?" One or the other must be true. Does it not show rather that our advertising cartoon represents the truth and Kastine is "Science Emerging from Darkness?"

Other letters of a similar character from promi-nent individuals, which stamp Kaskine as a remedy of undoubted merit, will be sent on application. The Kaskine Company, 54 Warren St., New York, and 35 Farringdon Road, London.

THE STREET RAILWAY.

There seems at last to be some signs of life about the Newton street railway project and a public hearing is now announced, at which both those who object and who favor may appear and be As all the indications now point heard. As all the indications now point to an electric motor as the propelling power, it is not probable that the object-ors will be many, as most of those who ob-jected last winter, did so because of their fear that it would be a horse railroad.

It would certainly be a great convenience to have a street railway between the different villages, especially between the two sides of the city through Walnut street, as the circuit road is both a long ways round and the fares are rather exhorbitant. Sixteen cents between Newton and Newton Centre, a distance in a direct line of less than two miles, is a good deal too high.

The street railway would also be a great thing for the High School scholars, as it would carry them right to the building in stormy weather, and the visits to the cemetery, about which so much has been said, would become a comparatively easy

With the kind of rails and paving pre scribed by the highway committee, which has shown a watchful care for the interests of the city throughout the discussion, it is not probable that the tracks would be of serious inconvenience to carriages, and the road would certainly open up a very desi rable section of the city, as yet unimproved. When people look at their tax bills, it is not believed that they will seriously object to a scheme that promises to bring a large number of residents to help pay the expenses of the city.

DREDGING THE CHARLES.

The citizens of Watertown are agitating a great scheme, that of dredging the Charles river from the Watertown arsenal to the Galen street bridge, a distance of one mile. Selectman Charles Brigham, G. E. Priest and W. A. Learned of the Gas company have been appointed a committee to take measures to interest the mayor of Newton and other adjacent cities, Congressmen and others, and a town meeting is also to be held, as Watertown claims that the dredging is necessary for san-itary reasons. All who have been in the vicinity of the river when the tide is out will endorse this latter claim without any hesitation.

It is thought that the work could be done for $60,000 and this would be a way of reducing the surplus of which all citizens, both free traders and protectionists, could approve. It would be much more profitable than rendering navigable(some obscure the West and all between the west and all between the west and all between the west and all the west all the west and all the west all the west all the west all the west and all the west all the west all the west and all the west all the west all the west and all the west all the w stream in the West, and although it car hardly be included among agricultural in-terests, we presume Congressman Burnett would do his best to get the appropriation through.

Such a thing might really be a good thing for Newton. By building a wharf at the foot of Jefferson street coal could be un-loaded there right from the barges, and it could be sold at Boston prices. The Gas company could also get their coal cheaper and thus reduce the price of gas. Watertown has really shown some signs of enterprise in starting this agitation, and Newtor will be glad to join in and help lobby it through.

MR. DAVIS' BIRTHDAY.

The 100th birthday of Mr. Seth Davis was observed in a manner befitting a man whose long life has been of such an honor able nature, and who has left traces of his strong character upon the city in which he has made his home. The tributes paid to him by his old pupils show that the arduous work of a teacher often receives higher rewards than anything which has a mere money value, and it will serve as an inspiration to teachers everywhere, who are doing to-day what Mr. Davis was doing feel proud of such a citizen, and the action of the city government and the remarks of the local speakers were evidence that he is regarded as belonging to the whole city, and not to West Newton alone, which can not claim all the honor, merely because he happens to live in that ward.

A report of the proceedings, with a summary of the speeches made, will be found on another page, together with an excellent likeness of Mr. Davis, which we are able to give through the courtesy of the Boston Traveller, in which it appeared last Saturday, together with a full report of the proceedings. We are glad to say that Mr. Davis suffered no ill effects from the celebration, but enjoyed it all thoroughly, and has been able to be out this week. The good wishes given him seem to be already having their

JUDGE GARDNER'S RESIGNATION

Newton people, as well as those of the ate generally, were very sorry to learn that Judge Gardner had resigned his seat upon the supreme bench. There have been very few men who have fulfilled all the duties of that position more satisfactorily, and he has been an honor to the judiciary of the state. His resignation is only anof the state. His resignation is only direction other indication of Judge Gardner's high sense of duty. While he is daily growing stronger, it will be some months probably, before he would be able to to resume his duties, and it was probably a fear that the interests of the state might suffer that led interests of the state might suffer that red him to take such action.

Judge Gardner was appointed to the Superior Court in 1875 by Governor Gaston, and on the death of Judge Waldo Coburn in 1885, Governor Robinson appointed Judge Gardner as his successor.

The vacancy has been promptly filled by Governor Ames, who on Wednesday ap-pointed Judge Marcus P. Knowlton of Springfield to the position. He is 48 years old, has served several terms in the legislature, and was elevated to the superior bench

It is not yet decided whether to attribute the few cases of malaria which have appeared in the city to boating upon the Charles river in the evening, or to a lack of sewerage. The residents of Cork City, who have been serious sufferers from fever and ague, would probably say it was the latter.

Women should remember that the last day on which they can be assessed is Thursday, Sept. 15, and that all who have not been assessed are deprived of the power of voting for members of the school

THE Democrats will have to stir round for a candidate for governor, now that John F. Andrew refuses to run again. This refusal is hardly encouraging for the party.

REPUBLICAN caucusses for the election of delegates to the State, Senatorial, Councillor, and county conventions will be held Field Day to Newport.

The Newton Natural History society ex-cursion to Newport came off last Wednesday. The early morning was rainy, and although the rain ceased before seven o'clock the lowering clouds and southern winds looked unpropitious enough to deter any but the most fearless from the attempt to spend the day at the seashore. According to the program noticed last week in this paper, if the day proved stormy the excursion was to take place the first pleasant day after. As Wednesday morning presented so undecided a character, Dr. J. F. Frisbie took an early train for Boston and immediately went to the Old Colony depot to meet those who came from the different parts of Newton. They came to the num ber of 24, all prepared to run the risk of cloud and rain. Old Prob. had been nu-meronsly consulted, and the general opinion was a pleasant day. Dr. Frisbie decided to have those assembled choose whether it was "a go or no go," and called for a vote upon the question. It was an almost unanimous vote to go-only one negativeand go they did.

At 8:10 in a special car the party left Boston and sped on their way for the his-toric and now fashionable sea-girt city and watering place.

Through beautiful suburban towns and villages on to busy Taunton and busier

Through beautiful suburban towns and villages on to busy Taunton and busier Fall River, down along the broadening river where waters rise and fall with the ocean tide, they went, the clouds growing thinner and thinner, and wide patches of intensely blue sky showing here and there, till the bright sunshine cheered every one and with happy faces each said, to listening ears—when a lull in the animated conversation gave a chance—''I told you so.'' At twenty minutes of twelve they were in Newport and immediately the program for the day's rides, walks and sight-seeing was decided upon.

The first was a walk up to the main streets seeing the state house on the way, (Newport sharing with Providence the honor of a Capito..)

Rhode Island is the smallest state in the union—hardly larger than a county in some states, yet the people are not satisfied with one capital but must have two. There is a story told (probably there is some malice in it) that when the Rhode Island millital go out for a target shoot, the target is set up in Massachusetts, the riflemen go to Connecticut and shoot across the state, as there is not room in it for the whole performance. The state house stands at the head of a little square, in which is placed the monument to Commodore Perry. On one side of this square is the Perry House, built on a part of the grounds belonging to the old Perry mansion.

Father up the street the Jewish symagogue and old Jewish cemetery were sean Farther up the street the Jewish synagogue and old Jewish cemetery were seen, and then the party visited the Public Library. Just beyond is Truro Park, in which stands the celebrated old Round Tower, that has excited so much speculation as to the time of its erection and for which stands the celebrated old Round Tower, that has excited so much speculation as to the time of its erection and for what purpose it was built. It was undoubtedly built for some early settler, crowned with a windmill and used to grind the grain raised by the farmers.

From this point the party went to the beach, where the bath houses are, and there, seated on the plazza, took their midday lunch and watched the surf as the waves tumbled in on the rocks and sands. There were not many bathers out,or rather in the water. To one of the on-lookers came to mind the little story of the green down-easter who saw ladies in their bathing suits tumbling around as the waves came in, and smacking his lips he said "it reminded him of something they had ter hum," and when asked what, replied, "Lasses and water."

Then to the cliff walk for a little while and back to Truro Park, where the barge was to meet them. Here, having a few minutes to spare, they all visited the beautiful, Channing Memorial church. As good fortune was on the side of the excursionists—this was the ladies' opinion—the party happened in just in season to witness a wedding. This not being down in their printed program, was a surprise enjoyment, and added to the success of the whole outless.

and added to the successions, at ten o'clock the barge was on hand and quickly filled—full—and away they were off for that ride which will long be remembered by every one of that merry company—the Ocean Drive. It would be impossible to describe all the beauties both natural and artificial, seen on this twelve or thirteen mile ride. It must be seen to be appreciated. Rugged rockbound coasts, elegant villas, rolling waves, dashing against the rocks and shooting upwards into spray—velvet lawns,—flowers and shrubbery, all combine to render this one of the most varied and delightful rides on the New England coast. Back by villas, cettages or seaside palaces or by whatever other name they may be called, owned and occupied by men and women whose names are closely associated with our financial, political, scientific, historical and artistic world—another tramp along the cliff walk and then to the depot in season for the train. A half hour before the end of the drive, the heavy clouds of fog gathered in the southwestern sky, and came swiftly had the train left the depot before a flash of lightning illuminated the nearing clouds, a peal of thunder shook the sky and the fast falling rain-drops ushered in a terrific shower in which we rode back to Boston. Here again fortune was with them for the rain had ceased and umbrellas were not needed to cross from depot to depot. The day had opened with rain and cloud; it had closed with cloud and rain. But during the stay in Newport the day was bright and only clouds enough to relieve the glare of, the sunshine and the preceding storm gave the white-crested waves and the dashing foam on the rock-bound shore.

It was a happy company that returned home that evening, thoroughly delighted with the perfect success of the excursion, with —a firm helief that the clerk of the weather is in league with the Newton Natural History society, as there has never. during the eight years of Field Days, been but one rainy day; and a confirmed belief in the old adage that "none but the brave deserve the fair" Field Day.

Grand Clearance Sale

Francis Murdock & Co. have an interesting announcement to make to the public, in the form of a grand clearance sale, the particulars of which will be given later. The firm are now arranging their goods in the new temporary store built for them on Washington street, and some wonderful bargains may be expected. The announcement is of special interest, as there are few stores which have such an extensive variety of goods, and as soon as the firm is ready for business, the store will be crowded with customers. The firm believe in the value of advertising, and have a large advertisement in this issue calling attention to the sale, and warning people to look out for the announcements that will be made from week to week.

Board of Health.

At the meeting of the Board of Health Tuesday, Mayor Kimball presided, and Otis Pettee, Dr. J. F. Frisbie, Alderman B. S. Grant and Councilman H. M. Burr were present. A bill of $100 for the collection of house offal during the month of August was presented. Councilman Burr objected to payment of the same until investigation had been made, stating that the complaints that the contract was not properly fulfilled were numerous in his section of the city (Chestnut Hill.)

Mr. Burr stated that he had made inquiry of a number of people and in no case had the work been properly attend to. Mr. Mosman stated that he had sent cards to all the aldermen and councilmen, and had received only eight answers, of which five had found no trouble, and three made complaint. Most of the complaints came from Newton Centre and Chestnut Hill. Mr. Mague said that this was the first intimation he had had that the work was not properly done, and he would see that it was done hereafter, Mr. Pettee said that Mr. Mague would make everything right hereafter and the bill was approved.

The Highway committee sent in a letter stating that the cleaning of brooks and streams properly belonged to the Board of Health, and suggesting that they pay for the work already done by the committee.

Asterl the hearing of complaints in regard to the Needham Glue works and some miner matters, the meeting adjourned.

and others.

The activity in real estate in West Newton still continues. Besides the extension of Temple St., which will be pushed rapidly, and opens up a large amount of desirable business lots, the unaccepted street known as Pleasant street, leading off Temple street, is to be continued to Highland street, coming out near Mr. Charles Robinson's estate. The land opened up by this extension is excellent for building purposes and a number of houses will be immediately built. Mrs. Joseph Nowell is constructing a house on Hillside avenue. Dr. F. L. Thayer's house on the corner of River and Waltham streets is being rapidly built and has a fine location. Mr. LG. Prattis making an addition to his stable on Highland street.

Birthday Gift to Mr. Davis.

At the celebration of the 100th birthday of Mr. Seth Davis, there was a very pleasant incident that was not down on the program. A purse of 100 silver dollars was presented to him without formality, and Rev. H. J. Patrick responded in his behalf

The Squire, with the thought that probably something of this kind might occur as ably something of this kind might occur as a part of to-day's program, requested me this morning to speak for him and express his thanks to you. We all know him to have been a man whose heart was quickly touched by such testimonials, and many times when younger and stronger than now his feelings have been too much for him, and his words have been choked so as not to find their way for utterance, but there was always a telegraphic message from his heart to his eyes which was better than any audible speech.

I deem it an honor that he should select me to speak for him. We know each other very well, as it has been my wont to pay a weekly visit to him since his confinement to the house, and for years before, it was his church-going habit to pay a weekly his church-going habit to pay a weekly visit to the congregation to which I min-visit to the congregation to which I minister.

Now it occurs to me to say something in connection with this gift, which has been left unsaid in all these testimonials. You have been reminded that when he came to Newton he was a poor boy. He began life poor. I am sorry to add that the end is to be as the beginning—tho' he has had a competency. He has been a man so responsive to the appeals of neighbors and townsmen in financial straits, that without thought of himself has given them generous assistance and now finds—himself in need of the same aid in their failure to refund.

There could be no gift more timely. He still has use for money, and I know he sincerely thanks you for it from his heart. He has been looking forward to this day with interest ever since he passed his 90th birthday. He is especially glad to see his old pupils. He lives in the past, and the days of teaching are most frequently reviewed and he takes pride in the work accomplished as seen in the men and women who have gone forth to successful life from his school.

If he could speak to you he would say, "I have been a strange and a busy man"—and this is true. "Strange" in that he has always been in advance of his time—is now indeed in being 100 years old. We shall none of us probably catch up with him in this rare attainment. "Busy" in that he has always been at work. "I am sure that if he could utter his wish in return for your kindness, it would be that you all may have as peaceful and painless an evening of life'as that through which he is passing.

SMEAD'S OLD GRAIN STORE, WASHINGTON ST., NEWTONVILLE,

BETWEEN TWO STOOLS.

Up at the hall there was a general commotion. Mr. Westley, the owner of Westley Grange, had come pretty nearly to the end of his tether. He had but lately succeeded to the estate, and it had come to him very heavily encumbered; and now, with reduced rents, irregularly paid, he found it impossible to go on. He had, therefore, determined to spend a couple of years on the continent, during which time he hoped that the agricultural depression would pass away. would pass away.

The establishment at the hall was not a large one by any means for a country bachelor squire, but it was larger than he could afford to keep up under existing cir-cumstances. So one evening he called his servants together and told them how mat-servants together and tool them now mac-ters were with him, bidding them seek other situations at once.

His personal servant, Ben Biggings, was not included in the general dismissal, but was destined to accompany his master abroad. Ben was one of those men not unfrequently met with in this country—a man who could turn his hand to most things, though he might be no good at any. things, though he might be no good at any. The position he held at Westley Grange was a cross between a valet and a game-keeper, but at odd times he had been known to cook his master's dinner and make his master's bed. This was during a grousing expedition on the Welsh hills, but the rumor of it had traveled to Westley. Ben was in high spirits when he was told of the journey in store for him.

"I'll teach these foreigners a thing or two," he said to the cook one night; to which she replied: "You be very careful, Mr. Ben, that they don't teach you more than you teach them."

"Them!" he cried; "them teach me.

"Them!" he cried; "them teach me. Why, I could wallop the lot of 'em, if I I wanted to."

"Then you mind you don't want to," she answered.
"Why, you knows very well," continued

Ben, "that I set your watch a-going after James, the watchmaker, had it a month and couldn't make nothing of it; and I stopped the blue bedroom chimbly smoking, when the smoke had nearly druv you will out of the place."

all out of the place."
"Rubbish!" she said. "The watch only wanted winding; and as for the chimbly, it smoked because there was a bag of straw in it. You needn't crow over them things, young man."

young man."

Yes, there was a little ill-feeling on the part of the cook toward Ben. She had claimed him for her own originally, but Ben had fought shy; and latterly he had been paying a good deal of attention to Anna, the housemaid at the rectory. Either fault alone, on Ben's part, would have made the cook somewhat aggrieved toward him, but the two combined were more than culinary flesh and blood could stand. Thus it happened that her tongue had an access of acerbity when moving at Ben.

more than culinary fiesh and blood could stand. Thus it happened that her tongue had an access of acerbity when moving at Ben.

Down at the rectory the commotion was nearly as general. The servants discussed the situation from morning till night, and Anna received many unpleasant jeers.

"Stick to you!" said the coachman; "not he. Them sort never stick to nothing but their baccy. When you says good-by to Ben, you says good by forever, my lass.

"He can please himself," she said; "but if he thinks I shall die broken-hearted because he takes on with some foreign girl, he's very much mistook."

"That's always the way with you womenfolk. You talks as big as big, and when it comes to, you doubles up to nothing. There was the gal o' Simmond's—her as kept company with that keeper fellow. Look how her brazened it out when they found he'd left a wife in Wales, and her died of consumption in less than a year."

"But Ben and me's different," said Anna. "If he's not in carnest, no more aren't I." Which was perhaps consolatory.

The time slipped rapidly by, and it wanted but a day till Ben and his master should start for the continent. That night Ben repaired to the rectory, and had a parting interview with Anna. His last words were: "You'll not forget me, while I'm parted from you? I'm a-coming back for you some day. Till then, ho river!"

"That's a bit of French, my dear. I've bin learning the langwiege lately. It's something like 'good-by,' only more so. Ho river!" And so they parted.

In the course of a few weeks Ben and his master were comfortably settled in a small German village near Bonn. The house where they had made their home was an old farmhouse that had once belonged to a noble family, but was now partly fallen to decay. It was inhabited by the present owner, who carried on the business of a small farmer and wine grower. Naturally, therefore, it came about that Ben and Fraulein Sehmidt were often in each other's company, and naturally also, Ben improved the occasion. If Fraulein, with womanly curiosity, asked a times in the evening, before the farmer had come home, as they sat together by the house place fire, Ben would delight the listener with stories of the wonders of London. He had spent a few hours there one day while attending upon his master, and he therefore felt competent to describe its principal sights, and where his knowledge failed his invention came to the rescue.

True, he mixed things up a little. He got the National gallery and the houses of Parliament under the same roof, Westminster Abbey and the Tower within a stone's throw of each other, while the way to the Crystal Palace was over London Bridge, and up the river, past Battersea Park. But this mide no difference at all to his listener. Like Desdemona, she drank in all his descriptions his listener. Like Desd in all his descriptions—

THE TORTILITA MINES.

The Leading Mining Properties of the Country.

Their Marvelous Richness in Gold and Silver.

A Safe and Profitable Investment for All.

FROM THE NEW YORK STAR AUG. 27, 1887.

The mines of the Tortilita Gold and Silver Mining Company of No. 57 Broadway, New York, have become the most favorably known property of this class in America. Their great value has been demonstated by new and continuous discoveries of vast bodies of rich ore as the work goes on, and investors in the shares of this company are from all sections and all classes in the country.

The Tortilitas are developed, proven and working mines. The shares are an absolute security, as they are based on property worth many times what they call for. Shares are for sale in any sized lots, from one share to ten thousand. There is no better or safer investment.

Receipts for $150,000 in bullion taken out of the mines during their development can be seen at the company's office.

The demand for the shares is increasing daily. They are the favorite investment everywhere with all. The Tortilita shares are not affected by Wall street panies. They are an investment security pure and simple.

They are an investment security pure and simple.

The Tortilitas have lately been examined and reported upon favorably by the Tueson (Ariz.) Star, published within sight of the mines; the Florence (Ariz.) Enterprise and the Hartford Post. These and other leading journals have published articles pronouncing the mines worth many times more than they are capitalized for. The sale of the stock is being conducted upon a different plan from that generally employed, the management offering the shares direct for investment in any sized lots instead of making it a stock speculation. The Hartford Post, in the full-page article referred to, says:

WHAT THE HARTFORD POST SAYS.

what the harrond post says.

"Just now the newspapers have a great deal to say respecting the wonderful group of twelve gold and silver mines in southern Arizona, in the Owl's Head mining district, known as the Tortilita mines. As the readers of the Post are certain to be interested in these remarkable mines, which for some time to come are likely to be the centre of attraction for investors in mining stock, we take pleasure in presenting also some facts gleaned from reliable sources in furtherance of the Post's constant purposes to place before its readers in available form every good thing which the market affords.

THE GREAT TORTILITA.

A well-known gentleman from the East who is an expert in mining operations, for his own personal gratification made an examination of the Tortilita mines last month, and we are fortunately able to print his report here. We give his report in his own words:

"On arriving at the camp I inquired for the superintendent of the mines, Mr. D. T. Elmore: I found Mr. Elmore a gentleman of about 50 years of age, a typical Western man, well bronzed with the hot suns of this semi-tropical climate and the exposure resulting from thirty years' active mining life on the Pacific coast."

THE SUPERINTENDENT'S STATEMENT.

THE SUPERINTENDENT'S STATEMENT.

THE SUPERINTENDENT'S STATEMENT. In reply to a question, Mr. Elmore said: "I came here to take charge of this property three years ago. We have subsequently added to it by purchase and otherwise until we control all the valuable rights in this district. I have seen all the best mines in America and worked in them, and at tell you here and now that the Tortilitas are the greatest and best of their class on the American continent."

EXPLORING THE MINES.

ENPLORING THE MINES.

After a good night's rest I began a survey of the field with Mr. Elmore. We drove a mile and a half northerly to the By Chance Mine, where we found the men at work in four places. In shaft A, which is a distance of 190 feet from the south centre end of the claim, ore is uncovered for a distance of several hundred feet, and in distance, varying from 50 to 100 feet apart, are four other openings running parallel. We went down an incline for thirty feet, and there a great wall of ore and a true fissure vein was disclosed to me. From this point I went through a tunnel and was shown large bodies of ore above me. We then returned and went down fifty feet further and there measured a breast of ore forty-two and a haif feet wide, from which I took samples to the mill and saw worked, yielding an average of $50 per ton. In three places on this vein below the water ore has been uncovered and the vein shown to be four feet wide and of unknown length and depth. This demonstrates the great value of this property, for, as all mining men know, this concentration below the water level proves the permanency and value of a mine. The ore changes in character and becomes richer. I could see thousands of tons of ore in sight that only needs sufficient mill capacity to produce unlimited quantities of buillon. I saw the ore extracted from the earth, brought to the surface and turned into bullion under my own eyes.

OPINION OF THE FOREMAN.

Here I encountered the foreman under Mr. Elmore, an old, grizzled, storm-beaten, honest-visaged miner, named McGovern. Said he:

"I have worked on the Comstocks, I have

Said he:

"I have worked on the Comstocks, I have been in the Silver King and other great mines. I have followed this business all my life. This is the richest property for its depth and development that I have ever seen, and you can hold me responsible for this statement—the Tortilitas will prove the best mines ever discovered on the Pacific slope. This one mine which I am now working in is worth more than a million dollars itself."

We then proceeded to the surface, and were taken to the abode of McGovern and shown the Jesse Benton mine, the sister property to the By Chance, 1,500 feet further north. This mine is considered in this section of the country even a better property than the By Chance, great as it is, on account of the large amount of ore that has been done upon it. The ore is extremely rich, and there is a great deal of native silver. The pay streak is two and a half feet wide. This mine has a reputa-tion second to none in this section of the country, and its product has been exton second to none in this section of the country, and its product has been extraordinary.

After taking dinner at Mr. Elmore's, we drove a mile and a half southerly and examined the Red Peach, the Lazy Sleeper and the Desert mines. The two former are good mines. The Desert has a peculiar formation, from which $36,000 has been taken out, with two shafts of 100 to 160 feet, and the smoothest kind of walls. There is an unlimited quantity of profitable ore in sight and many believe this mine itself is worth the capital of the company. The Red Peach has probably a hundred tons of ore on its dump, with four shafts varying from sixty to a hundred feet deep.

The Lazy Sleeper, too, has a great deal of development upon it.

The Golden Eagle is a gold mine of fine promise, from which I saw certificates of large yields.

WONDERFUL FIGURES.

WONDERFUL FIGURES.

Asked what improvements were contemplated, Mr. Elmore said: "We can easily supply three twenty-stamp mills for an indefinite period on these properties. They would work 180 tons of ore per day, at an average of $59 per ton. At a low estimate this would be $4,000 per day.

With the proper machinery this can be worked at an expense of $10 per ton, which would be $1,800 per day, leaving net per day $7,200, or for thirty days $216,000, or for a year $2,502,000, which will be over two and a half times our capital stock each year; but at first we shall start with a twenty-stamp mill, which should give us $800,000 per year net, or $60 per cent. per annum on our capital stock. I am now bending every effort toward attaining these results. We are negotiating now for hoisting works and a forty-stamp mill, and I hope soon to obtain them. Meanwhile we shall continue to run our little five-stamp mill, and develop and improve the property all in our power. I know of no investment in America that will pay as well as the shares of our company."

WORTH MANY MILLIONS.

MORTH MANY MILLIONS.

After a week's time spent at the mines in daily examination of the work, in seeing essays made, watching the battery samples and seeing the ore retorting and running into bullion and stamped, and reading certificates of $150,000 for bullion shipped to the Bank of California in the last two years, and seeing one bar of 2,400 ounces sent forward while I was there, I left impressed with the fact that the Tortilita deserved the confidence of the public, and that the management in New York had far underestimated its value in their statements. I found property worth anywhere in the Boston Globe, said:

"When the former owners of the Tortilita came to me with their properties, recommend d by some of the best men in America for their personal worth, they asked me to accept the presidency of the company and raise capital to extend their work. I investigated the enterprise thoroughly, only to find that their representations were far beneath what the facts would bear, and I am getting daily proofs of the greater value of the property. When I took hold of the enterprise I determine to apply the business principles to it which I had learned by twenty years active experience. I realized the prejudices that had to be met and the difficulties that had to be overcome. I determined to handle nnining stock the same as any regular commodity—that is, to sell it on its merits for what it was worth. The public have recognized the value of the enterprise far beyond my expectations, and have shown their confidence in it to a greater extent than was ever shown before. I found investors ready for an enterprise conducted on sound business principles, and they will reap their reward. I do not know whether the stock will pay §1 or §2 per share in dividends, but I do know it is cheap at §2, the present price, and many believe it will eventually sell for ten times that figure. Three of the mines are now being operated, and either of them are demonstrated to be exceptionally rich in ore and worth far more than the entire capital stock of the company, not counting the other linines."

ore and worth far more than the contre capital stock of the company, not consider the other himes."

The final and clinching evidence in regard to these properties is found in the following from the Tucson Star, published near the mines, whose editor, Mr. L. C. Hughes, is a leading mining expert and personally familiar with the subject concerning which he writes. He says:

"One of the best evidences of the future of these mines is the fact that from the beginning the output of buillion has paid for every dollar's worth of development. Not a dollar expended which has not come out of the mines. And this means much, for the mines have not been operated so much to take out ore as to ascertain from prospecting the true merit of the mines. However, many thousands of dollars were expended in dead work in sinking prospect shafts, drifting, timbering and tunneling to learn the extent, richness and permanency of the ore lodes. These facts have been well determined. During these developments nearly $175,099 of buillion has been produced by these mines and under adverse conditions. A twenty or forty-stamp mill is what the district needs. With the present management and such a finite that the district needs. With the present management and such a finite that the total three in the condition of buillion.

SURROUNDED WITH ALL THE CONDITIONS FOR

SURROUNDED WITH ALL THE CONDITIONS FOR SUCCESS.

The first is the Tortilita mines are surrounded with all the conditions necessary to a prosperous mining camp. Add to this the fact that the management is under D. T. Elmore, an experienced mining and mill man of twenty years in the mines and mills of the Pacific slope, especially in the mines of Nevada. Thus the company is assured against the blunders and incompetency of an inexperienced management, which has been the cause of so many mining failures all over the country. Mr. Elmore knows every detail necessary to the successful management of a mining property, which insures the best results from these mines.

Regularly every month a shipment of silver bullion has been made from these mines through the Tuesen bankers to San Faracisco. It is well known that a large amount of development and prospecting has been going on, with the product of the mines paying all expenses, and the credit of the company the very best.

This group of mines contains enough of rich mineral to make a flourishing builion camp for many years to come, with splendid returns to the fortunate owners of the magnificent property.

fortunate owners of the magnificent property.

[From the Arizona Weekly Enterprise, Aug. 16 1887.]

Pinal county is famous for the extent and permanency of its mines, many of them being wonders in their way, yielding rich returns to their fortunate owners and constantly improving with further developments. The Silver King, the Vekol, the Mammoth and the mines of the Tortilia Gold and Silver Mining Company at the Owl Heads are each steady producers, and they stand upon their merits as brilliant examples of the successful industry—not lettery—of mining.

A representative of the Enterprise visited the Owl Heads this week and made a thorough examination of the mines and the camp. The bullion produced and shipped since the mill started closely approximates $17,000—a most remarkable output under the cremmstances of the company now chiefly depends upon, for the mines are capable of supplying far more ore than such a mill can reduce.

CONCLU-ION.

CONCLUSION.

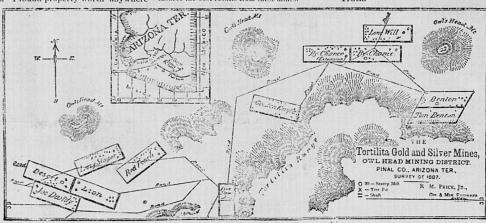

The shares of the Tortillia, Com, any are being taken all over the country for investment by bankers, merchants, farmers, mechanics and laboring men and women. They can only be bought now by private subscription, and those wishing to purchase will do well to sead in their orders at once, as the books will soon close preparatory to calling the stock on the board. The shares can now be bought at par in any sized lots from one share to 5,000 direct from the company's office, No. 37 Broadway, and R. J. Dean & Co., Bankers, 302 Greenwich St., New York.

If is believed that the Tortillia is one of the soundest and best mining enterprises yet brought some standard of the soundest and best mining enterprises yet brought of the standard of the standard from $10,000,000 to $50,000,000, and possibly $100,000,000, as the Comstocks have proven to be, and have made thousands of men rich. I found the Tortilita not only a great property, but one that is managed in the best way. It has a jewel in Mr. Elmore, the superintendent, who is as honest as he is able, the essential thing that interests the stockholders after the value of the property.

I feel assured that in the near future the Tortilita mining camp will become one of the largest on the Pacific coast with the necessary machinery for working the mines.

necessary machinery for working the mines.

Driving back to Tucson I remained there a short time, and found the Tortilita exeiting more attention than any other mining property in the Territory, and there are some tich ones there. For example, the Silver King, not far distant, has paid $2,000,000 ($20 per share) in dividends from one mine alone, while the Tortilita company has twelve. The Raymat and Vikol, in another direction, have turned out millions, and made their owners rich, as have the renowned Tombstones Quijotos. The Tortilitas are on the tongue of everybody, and Mr. Elmore is looked for with bullion every month as regularly as the month comes round.

THE MANAGEMENT.

Before any further reference is made to the mining properties briefly described above, it will be proper to say something about the personnel of the company into whose possession these mines and their accessories have come; for the readers of the Past very always inquisitive concerning accessories have come; for the readers of the Post are always inquisitive concerning new acquaintances. The Tortilita Gold and Silver Mining Company has for its president Mr. Joseph H. Reall, president also of the American Agricultural and Dairy Association, and well known among the farmers, of America, an experienced business man, well versed in financial matters, whose name is prominently mentioned for Vice-President of the United States, with Cleveland, as the representative of the agricultural interests; and Rodman M. Price, Jr., the secretary, is a well known mining and civil engineer, who has just returned from an eight years' residence in Arizona, where he selected the Tortilitas as the best mines in the Territory. He is the worthy son of his distinguished father, ex-Governor Price.

THE PROPERTY SELE-SUSTAINING.

This property, unlike most mining enterprises inviting capital, is a 'producing and self-sustaining one, with a 5-stamp mill in good order, which has been running for nearly three years continually; the mill has just been furnished with newcams, dies and tappets, which pats the plant reality in as good order as when built; nine tons of ore are worked per day, while with a 20-stamp mill to be erected forty tons can be worked at but slight additional expense, and over $5,000 per day earned.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Is a peculiar medicine, and is carefully prepared by competent pharmacists. The combination and proportion of Sarsaparilla, Dandellon, Mandrake, Yellow Dock, and other remedial agents is exclusively peculiar to Hood's Sarsaparilla, giving it strength and curative power superior to other preparations. A trial will convince you of its great medicinal value. Hood's Sarsaparilla

BETWEEN TWO STOOLS.

All this was, I fear, on Ben's part a matter of calculation rather than sentiment. That he wished to stand well, for the standing's sake, in the eyes of his landlady, goes without saying, but the standing well brought with it and after it some advantages that were of infinitely more value to Ben. There were many things dear to Ben's heart, but none more dear than poached eggs and hot buttered toast; and though those were 'not in the contract,' they were almost daily incidents of Ben's life. At first, it is true, he had not got on so well with his landlady, for notwithstanding the best intentions, neither had been able to comprehend a word said by the other. Time, however, which works wonders in so many cases, brought amelioration in this, for Ben got a smattering of German, and the Fraulein picked up a few words of English, and from that time Ben was, to use his known expression, "a made man." Though not endowed with a large amount of wisdom, he knew 'which side his tread was buttered," and he resolved to keep on good terms with the Fraulein, no matter what else might be offended. And the Fraulein herself grew really to like the big, boastful Englishman, and did her best to make both of her loagers contented with their temporary home. This was about the position of affairs, when, some eighteen months after they had left England, Mr. Westley told Ben he should soon be returning. This was a sad blow to Ben. No more poached eggs on hot buttered toast, no more idle days. He told the Fraulein what the Herr had said, and she, too, grieved. No more stories about London, This was a further than the Herr had said, and she, too, grieved. No more stories about London, mo more idle days. He told the Fraulein what the Herr had said, and she, too, grieved. No more stories about London, This set him thinking. Why should he go back? And the thinking ended in resolution—he would not go back to England, Fraulein, but shall settle down in Germany, if I can get any work."

This did not altogether chime in with Ben's view of life.

"My Decrest Anner. I ope this will fine you in good eith as it leeves me at present. My decrest Anner, it his a long time sense I rote to yew, but their have been so much to do as I have no time. I hon this will fine you in good helth, my decrest Anner. This is a very quiet plase, there is no sports nor nothink, I orphan sy, for deer old Englan an the swete faces, spechially one, I left behind. I ope to see, it soon, so no more at present from your trew lover.

Ben.

What the Fraulein thought of it when she heard that Ben had changed his mind I hardly know, but he made some plausible excuse, I have no doubt, and promised (to soothe her wounded feelings) that he would soon refure.

Once more at Westley. The first evening after his arrival Ben went down to the rectory. Anna was out, the coachman was in.

"Yo' back again my lad! Yo're just like a bobby, a-turning up when you are not wanted."
That was the coachman's welcome and Ben resented it.
"Perhaps if you don't want me there's some one else as does."
"Then perhaps there's two on 'em, for I see 'two on 'em together not five minutes ago."

"Then perhaps there's two on 'em, for I see two on'em together not five minutes ago,"

"Hey," ejaculated Ben.
"As much hay as yo' like, my lad, we gies it to the 'osses, and can spare a bit for a donkey."

Clearly, there was no friendly feeling on the part of the coachman for Ben.
Then the cook tackled him. "You've made a fine mess of it, Ben. Have you heard what she's had left her?"

"Yes, left her—two thousand pounds and she's going for it on Monday. It'll make them very comfortable."
"Her and her mother," suggested Ben.
"Ho, ho, ho, ho!" roared the coachman.
"Hi, hi, hi, hi!" laughed the cook.
"Hee, hee, hee, hee!" sang the kitchen maid all in chorus.
"Her and her mother!" and then they went off again.
"It's very funny" said the victim, "but I don't see where the fun comes in."
"Don't'e now? Then I'll tell yer. Yo're come back to make up wi' her because yo' an heard as her's got some money. But it's bespoken already for her and—her mother."
Coachman, cook and kitchen maid repeat chorus.
"I'll not take it," said Ben, "from no

bespoken arready for her and—her mother.' Coachman, cook and kitchen maid repeat chorus.

"I'll not take it," said Ben, "from no one's lips but hers. Her said her'd stick to me, and I've stuck to her, and I expect her'll stick to me, and that's all about it."

"Then you can take it from her lips now, Mr. Benjamin," said Anna, coming in at the moment. "You never wrote to me for more than twelve months, though I wrote to you twice, and then, when I had some money left me, you sent me a letter pretending as how as you was very fond of me. Afore you went away I said to the coachman, "If he's not in earnest, then I'm not in earnest," and that's all about it."

"Never mind," said Ben to himself that night. "If one door shuts another door opens."

"Yes the door was open when Ben got there, some six wecks after he had left. He entered the house with the air of a master, pausing a moment to look round on the vineyards which would so soon be his. He opened an inner door; there sat Fraulein, busy with her needle.

"I am back again," said he; "give me a welcome."

"Then you can go back again," she replied.

"But I am come to stay and work on the farm."

"The farm does not want you, neither do

"But I am come to say and farm."
"The farm does not want you, neither do I," she answered.
Then Benjamin waxed furious. He called her fiekle and unkind, told her that no good could come to a double-dealing person, and left her with the somewhat double-edged remark that "A bird in the hand is worth two in the bush."

I think I ought to explain the Fraulein's behavior. The old cook at Westley wrote to her to warn her against "that presumin' villun."—[Cassell's Magazine.

Day and Night

During an acute attack of Bronchitis, a ceaseless tickling in the throat, and an exhausting, dry, hacking cough, afflict the sufferer. Sleep is banished, and great prostration follows. This disease is also attended with Hoarseness, and sometimes Loss of Voice. It is liable to become chronic, involve the lungs, and terminate fatally. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral affords speedy relief and cure in cases of Bronchitis. It controls the disposition to cough, and induces refreshing sleep.

Mr. Reed dashed upon the track and endeavored to pull the woman out of the way of the incoming train, but she persisted in rushing up the track toward the engine, and the lives of both were in danger. Finally when the engine was nearly upon them, Reed succeeded in pulling her from the track. She did not appear very grateful for his action and commented rather vigorously on the unwarrantable liberty he had taken in touching her. —Miss Clara White, after a few weeks' sojourn in Maine, joined her brother Warren at the mountains, spending two weeks there, and is now home again.

—The building on Centre street owned by Miss Louisa Pierce, and occupied as a blacksmith and wheelwright shop, will probably be sold, and moved from its present location.

—We hope to see some of that $300 appropriated for trimming of trees expended on the corner of Lincoln and Bowdoin streets, before any more hats and bonnets of pedestrians are knocked off.

—Now that the Eliot depot question is settled, the Walnut street crossing switching nuisance should be followed up. Why wait to have a petition presented to the City Government or Railroad Commissioners?

—Rev. G. G. Phipps was greeted with a very large audience last Sunday, it being the first Sunday after his return from his vacation. At the Missionary Concert in the evening, the singing exercise under the direction of Miss Stevens, added much interest to the meeting.

interest to the meeting.

—It may be expected to see the Eliot Station built this fall, as an amicable settlement has been made between Mr. Adams and the Boston & Albany Railroad Co., through the efforts of Alderman Pettee, but not without some feeling to bring it about. The Civil Engineers of the road were out on Tuesday afternoon, on the lot to be taken for the depot, at or near the end of Lincoln street extension. This looks like business!

NEWTON UPPER FALLS.

-Mr. Fred B. Spear is at Bar Harbor. —The public schools resume regular sessions next week.

-Labor Day was generally observed, the ls and shops being closed for the day. -Dr. and Mrs. Yeomans of San Francisco

—Mr. J. A. Gould, Jr., has purchased the Charlotte Wheeler estate and expects to occupy it soon.

—Mr. and Mrs. S. G. Curry have returned from the Vineyard, where they have been spending the summer.

—Mr. C. E. Hussy has returned, ready to once more resume his position as principal of the Prospect school. -Mr. C. H. Hale and family have re-turned from Bar Harbor, where they have been for a number of weeks.

-Miss Alberta Grover goes to Medway as teacher in the public schools there, and Miss Sarah Stuntz goes to Ludlow for the same purpose.

same purpose. is suggested by some that a railing be placed on the outer edge of the side-walk on Winter street, to keep pedestrians from falling off into the street.

—Mr. Henry Spear has sold his depot barge line to Mr. Nichols. As Mr. Nichols has been the driver of the barge for a long time, the public will be sure to receive the same care and promptness as heretofore.

—Rev. Mr. Whitman preached his first sermon as pastor of the Baptist church on Sunday last, there being a good audience present to welcome him to his new field of labor. Preparations are being made for his installation, which occurs on Tuesday, Sep-tember 13.

member 13.

—It is expected that the Methodist church will be ready for occupancy on Sunday, Sept. 18th, as the improvements are nearly completed. Mr. Otis Pettee has been chairman of the committee having the affairs in charge, and he has exerted himself to have everything done in a thorough manner, and those who have seen the results of his labors will agree that he has succeeded in a marked degree in accomplishing his purposes.

—An adjourned meeting of citizens who complishing his purposes.

—An adjourned meeting of citizens who were interested in having the new station of Eliot on the Circuit Railroad was held in the building of Messrs. Allen & Young on Monday afternoon. It was voted that the sense of the meeting would be to offer Mr. Adams $400, as a consideration of his signing a deed immediately, conveying the necessary land to the Boston & Albany Railroad Corporation. As Mr. Adams concluded to accept this offer, it is hoped and expected that work will be commenced at once on the proposed new station, and that before cold weather we shall have trains stopping there, thereby greatly increasing our railroad accommodations.

A. F. A. G. Libby and John W. Quilty were appointed on the permanent police force, having served the probationery term of six months. D. S. Farnham asked for license to use the old Thornton barn for a livery stable, also for permission to build a shed for storage, the same to be located on a new storage, the same to be located on a new street leading southwesterly from Win-chester street. George S. Bryant and other residents in the vicinity presented a strong remonstrance, and both were referred to the license committee.

A petition was presented asking for final action on the street running from Boylston street east of Winchester street; referred to highway committee.

The New England Telephone Company received permission to run a telephone line from the corner of Oak and Eliot streets, to the Newton mills.

Ida H. Blaisdell, through her attorney, asked for $192 damages for the use of her land for drainage purposes by the city, which prevented its sale, and stating that an injunction would be applied for. Alderman Nickerson stated that he thought the damages was not as great as was claimed, and the drain had been put in years ago. The matter was referred, at his suggestion, to the claims committee.

Nancy Bakeman presented a remonstrance against the change of grade on! Winter street, but Alderman Pettee said that a change in plans had been made and the Inde commerce on the reported matches brackett.

The free use of the City Hall was granted to the Newton Horticultural Society for their annual exhibition.

Thomas C. Park and other heirs presented a communication, stating that from 1870 to 1885 they had paid taxes on 38,207 feet of land, corner of Bennington and Centre streets, while they only owned 22,-386 feet; the other 15,881 feet were owned by W. J. Park, a non-resident, and he had also paid taxes upon the amount owned by him, that part of the property having been assessed twice. The mistake had only been discovered a few months since. They had paid, therefore, from 1870 to 1885, $677.70 in taxes illegally assessed, and they asked to have the money refunded, and also interest upon the same, amounting to $351.50, the whole being $1029.27. The paper was signed by Thomas Weston, Jr., attorney; referred to the committee on claims.

in a report of the cost of ballot boxes ordered for the license vote under the new law, $250.

The Overseers of the Poor reported for the quarter ending July 1, when they had $5,470.75 remaining of their appropriation. Chief Bixby presented his report of fires in the city for the quarter ending June 30, 1887; there were fifteen fires and a loss of $5,205 on buildings and personal property. Alderman Grant presented a petition for the relaying af the concrete in front of Mrs. M. G. Davidson's on Prospect street, Ward 2.

Rev. Fayette Nichols and other citizens petitioned for an electric light on the corner of Centre and Mt. Ida streets, in front of the Methodist church.

Alderman Nickerson read a petition for the laying out and acceptance of Lakeview aconue, from Homer to Walnut street, Prospect avenue from Lakeview to Beaumont avenue, and Beaumont avenue from Lakeview to Brain the new Grove Hill Street. These streets are in the new Grove Hill Park property.

Alderman Johnson presented 10 notifications of intentions to build dwelling houses, as follows: Mrs. Annie O, Brien, Station street, Ward 6, house 25 by 30; Wm. Pettigrew, Hillside avenue, Ward 3, 30 by 38 feet; Alex Tyler, corner of Lincoln street and Tappan Place, Newton Highlands, 35 by 45 feet; Sarah A. Jones, Cook street, Ward 1, 32 by 16 feet; Chas. H. Polsey, Lake avenue, Ward 6, 37 by 34 feet; L. M. Norton, Hancock street, Ward 4, 30 by 36 feet; Philip A. Benton, corner of Vista and Woodland avenues, 70 by 32 feet; A. S. Arens, Carlton street, 51 by 50 feet; Elizabeth Doherty, Clinton street, Ward 2, 24 by 28 feet. Thomas Harney, Cherry street, addition 30 by 18 feet.

J. N. Bacon was granted license to put up wooden building for stores, and alter over Bacon block. Washington street;
C. H. Newhall, to enlarge stable on Forest street, Newton Highlands; Samuel Farquhar, to erect stable on Sargent street.
Mrs. J. C. Jones of Newtonville received a license to keep an intelligence office.
D. S. Farnham was granted permision to move his barn from Chase street, through Station and Beason streets, to rear of his house, and to fit it up as a dwelling house.
Alderman Ward presented an order, endorsed by a letter from Rev. Heman Lincolu, appropriating $250 for the benefit of the reading room at Newton Centre, to be opened in Associates' Hall, providing an equal amount is raised by the citizens, and charged to the miscellaneous expenses.
The money is to be used in buying cases, books of reference, tables, etc. Another year a smaller sum would be asked for, it was stated. After some debate the order was passed.

John Dwyer and Daniel Callahan were appointed weighers of coal for Ward 6.
Alderman Nickerson presented reports of work done by highway committee on roads and sidewalks.

Three gas lamps were ordered to be erected on Prince street.
Alderman Nickerson reported favorably in regard to the petitions for numbering houses on Washington street, Newtonville avenue, and other streets. and an order was passed that the numbers to be affixed should be furnished by the city engineer, and be not less tian two inches in size, so as to be plainly seen, and the city engineer was requested to furnish plans of streets with the proper number, even numbers on
to a number.

Chas A. Cole was granted a license to Petitions for sidewalks on Williams, Hancock, Lincoln and Eliot streets were granted.

$300 was appropriated for the trimming of shade trees.

Alderman Pettee presented the report of the committee on Parks, in regard to the petition for a public park on Linwood avenue, Walnut and Crafts street, Ward 2, and an order was passed that the city should appropriate $1,000 if the citizens would contribute within six months a sum sufficient for the purpose. Alderman Pettee said that Mr. Towne had saved the land for this purpose until now and he wished to either have it used for a park or make some other disposal of it. He understood that the land would be sold for 10 cents a foot and that it would cost some $4,300.

An order was passed authorizing a contract to be made for an exercise wagon for the Hook & Ladder Co., the cost not to exceed $250.

The report of the board as a committee of the whole, on the Newton Street Railway matter, was presented and discussed at some length. Alderman Pettee said that the only point of difference was in regard to the weight of rail to be used, and he would move that the company be permitted to use the 35 pound rail, with 8 ties to the rail instead of 5; City Engineer Noyes stated that the new Malden railway was constructed with this rail, and it seemed to answer every purpose. He and members of the highway committee had inspected the road, and they had approved of it all except the rail used for the curves.

Some discussion ensued as to whether the use of electric motors would require a of it all except the rail used for the curves.

Some discussion ensued as to whether the use of electric motors would require a heavier rail than if horses were used, and Alderman Johnson stated that the West End road were laying a 90 pound rail. They will have, however, a regular train of cars to run over them, and at considerable speed.

It was finally decided to advertise a public hearing on the application of the company for a charter on September 26th.

After some miscellaneous bills had been approved, the board at 10.15 adjourned.

—A very desirable change appears to have been made in the entrance examinations to the High school, and instead of having them so easy that all applicants can pass, they are so rigid, that of the 30 who applied this fall only one passed, and he only on two subjects. If this policy is pursued, admission to the High school will mean as much as it used.

—Miss Mary Calkins, daughter of Rey.

mean as much as it used.

—Miss Mary Calkins, daughter of Rev. Dr. Calkins, has been appointed tutor of Greek at Wellesley College. This appointment is a well-deserved compliment to Miss Calkins' classical attainments, there being probably few ladies who have such a thorough knowledge of the language. During her recent visit to Europe Miss Calkins spent considerable time in Greece, studying the ancient monuments and the scenes made famous in Grecian literature.

—Large classes were the rule at the beginning of the season at the Bigelow school last Monday. New closets are being erected, which will add much to the comfort and convenience of the pupils.

—Rev. W. S. Jaggors of Upton will occupy the pulpit at the Methodist-church next Sunday morning. In the evening Mr. Fox of New Bedford will deliver a poem entitled, "The Story Told by an Old Quilt." Mr. Fox has delivered the poem in other places and it has been very highly commended. It was read this week before the Massachusetts/Total Abstinence Society in Boston, and was strongly endorsed and recommended as a very effective temperance address.

The meeting will occupy the whole day, and there will be morning, afternoon and evening sessions. The association represents forty churches of Boston and vicinity and eight thousand members. The churches will make reports and consult concerning their work. In the evening session, the discussion will be on the Ethics of Jesus. The speakers will be announced later.

—The Newton High School will be well represented at Amherst this year, as seven recent graduates left this week to enter upon their first year. They are Fred H. Hitchcock and H. M. Gay of Newton, H. M. Chase of Newtonville, G. S. Stewart and A. S. Cooley of Auburndale, J. M. W. Farnum and R. S. Woodworth of Newton Centre. Smith College, Northampton, received these young ladies of the class of '87, Miss Grace Weston of Newton, Florence H. Paul, Sarah B. Rice and May M. Smith of Newton Centre.

—A short time ago Dr. Shinn was reported as a member of a syndicate of wealthy gentlemen who were about purchasing a valuable estate for investment. Now his mame appears in a Boston paper as one of the heaviest taxpayers in Newton. As he has no knowledge of the possession of wealth enough to make him either a member of a syndicate or a heavy taxpayer anywhere, it is highly probable that the newspaper reporters have blundered for once, or perhaps their wish was father to the thought.

—Miss Bessie Moody and Mr. George T. Allen were married at the residence of the bride, on Jewett street, Wednesday, Sept. 14th. Rev. Dr. Shinn performed the ceremony, which took place at noon. The bride was attired in a tailor-made traveling suit. Only about thirty relatives and intimate friends of the families were present. Mr. and Mrs. Allen received a large number of beautiful presents, accompanied by the congratulations of their large circle of friends. After the wedding breakfast, the bride and groom departed for their wedding trip. Upon their return they will reside with the bride's mother, Mrs. Martha D. Moody.

—The in-door meetings of the Y. M. C. A. were very auspiciously opened last Sunday afternoon in Eliot Hall. A large and interested audience greeted Mr. S. M. Sayford and the quartet of young men who are to accompany and sing for him in his meetings this winter. Mr. Sayford was at his best, and very earnestly presented the personal claims of Chirist upon every hearer, and the seeds dropped will bear fruit in the lives of those present. The selections of the quartet were well rendered, and amply justify Mr. Sayford in his expectations that they will prove a powerful allay in drawing the people to hear the gospel of peace. Mr. Sayford opens his work this season at Manchester, N. H., this week, and from thence goes to Memphis, Tenn., and expects to pass a good portion of the winter in the South, where his labors have been signally crowned and blessed.

—The school year opened very auspiciously for Miss Spear's school. Every seat in the main department is occupied and nearly all in the primary. It is probable that the fifty pupils now in attendance will be increased to sixty in the near future. Miss Karnan, the teacher of elocution, will have private classes on several afternoons of the week. She is a teacher in the Boston School of Oratory and has a high rank in her profession. Miss Alice Angier will also have classes in gymnastics at Miss Spear's school. They will be in the afternoons, and the prospects of a good number of pupils are very bright. Miss Angier, it will be remembered, was the leader of the class of '88 in the High School Calesthenies exhibition; this class took the first prize, an event due in a large measure to Miss Angiers' instruction and guidance.

—Dr. Calkins addressed a large congregation in Eliot Hall Sunday morning, choosing for his text Romans, 15 chap, 30 verses. After speaking of Jacob's wrestling with God, he said we each of us found it necessary to wrestle with God and obtain his blessing on our lives. In the text Paul besought his friends to aid him by agonizing prayer to obtain God's help for him in the hour of trial. As to Paul so to us comes the time when we should by agonizing persistant prayer beseech God's help and guidance; not on our temporary earthly affairs, for of these we are directed to take no thought, but on spiritual matters. But why should it be necessary for us to wrestle with God for his blessing? For the same reason that a wise father, though secretly thankful that his son has chosen the path he has, seeks to test him by seeming reluctance and objections. So in our relations to God. He tests our fortitude and faith for the time being only to bless us the more abundantly if we be not discouraged.

—Miss Nellie Robinson was married to Mr. Enos Moore Wednesday aftermon at half past two o'clock. Rev. Wolcott Calkins performed the ceremony, which took place at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John H. Robinson, Channing street. The rooms were tastefully decorated with wild flowers which had been gathered and arranged by the young lady friends of the bride. About seventy relatives and friends were present, among them being a large number of young people. The bride was attired in a gown of white satin, with a white tulle veil, and carried a bouquet of white roses. The gown had been the wedding dress of the bride's mother. The happy couple were the recipients of a large number of beautiful presents, a large portion being of silver. Mr. and Mrs. Moore departed at once for Portsmouth, Ohio, where they will reside. —The meeting of the Highway Committee and the Watertown Selectmen on Tuesday evening resulted in an arrangement being made as to the drainage of Morse field. Engineer Learned, after studying over the plans, came to the same conclusions as City Engineer Noyes, and was able to find nothing to object to in them. By cutting off a number of details, and reducing the work to be done to the lowest limits, at the suggestion of the Watertown authorities, both engineers came to an agreement in regard to the cost and apportionment, which was $9,822 for Newton and $6,548 for Watertown. The Watertown selectmen agreed to submit the matter to a town meeting at the earliest possible moment, and if the work was ordered, to go ahead with it at once. It is said by some cynical persons, however, that Watertown will never pass a vote for this expenditure unless the Morse field residents are in a majority at the meeting.

—The annual exhibition of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society was made more interesting this week by the session of the Pomological Society, and many visitors have inspected the fine display of fruits, flowers and vegetables. Mrs. A. D. Wood of West Newton and E. Fewkes & Son of Newton Highlands made remarkably fine displays of cut flowers, and Newton was well represented in the vegetable department, the following receiving prizes: Mrs. M. T. Goddard, first for display of potatoes, and 1st for the White Star and Savoy, 2nd for Downing and 3rd for peachblow; C. B. Brackett a gratuity for fine collection of squashes.

—Mr. John Farquhar, whose severe illness was noticed last week, died at his home in Holliston on Wednesday morning, at the age of 82 years. Mr. Farquhar was a native of Scotland, but came to Boston when a young man and engaged in the slate roofing business, twhich prospered so under his direction that he became one of the prominent business men of Boston. Some years after his marriage he came to Newton, and first lived at Newton Centre, near Mr. Thomas Nickerson's residence on Centre street. After some years he removed to Church street, Newton, where for many years he lived in the house now occupied by Mrs. Stilman. Some twenty years, ago he gave up his business to his sons, who conducted it under the firm name of John Farquhar's Sons, and bought a farm in Holliston, where he retired to enjoy a well-earned leisure from business duites. He leaves a widow and seven children, Samuel and David W. of this city. Mrs. Bartlett of Brooklyn, N. Y. and Mrs. Furber of Dorchester, and Charles, Joseph, and Roblin of Boston. Mr. Farquhar was one of the prominent citizens of Newton during his residence here, and had many warm friends among the older residents, by whom he was well known and highly respected. Mr. Farquhar was a Republican in politics, a member of the Roe Street Baptist church, Boston, since 1830, and for many years a Sabbath-school teacher to the convicts in the Charlestown State Prison. His funeral will occur at his late residence, Saturday áfernoon, at 1.30 o'clock, Rev. E. D. Bowers of the Baptist church officiating.

The Common Council.

The Common Council met Monday even ing, President Coffin in the chair. Council-men Dix, Redpath, Chadwick, Gore, Moody, Billings, Pond, Read and Kennedy were present. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

Business from the board of aldermen was received and disposed of in concur-

In regard to the exercise wagon for the Hook and Ladder company, Councilman Redpath explained that the present wagon was old and shaky, and only one horse could be used at once, and a wagon for two horses was needed.

The order appropriating $1,000 on condition that enough other money is contributed in Ward 2 within six months, to buy a certain piece of land on Linwood avenue. Walnut and Crafts streets for a public park, was explained by Councilman Redpath. The land was in a section of the city where there were no public parks or squares, and where the city had expended very little money. It was owned by Mr. Towne, who at the solicitation of the citizens in the vicinity had held it for many citizens in the vicinity had held it for many years, that it might be used as a public park. Mr. Towne did not feel that he could afford to hold on to the land any longer, and was willing to sell it to the city for a park for 10 cents a foot, a less sum than it had cost him. There were sum than it had cost him. 4,300 feet, and on the land were some fine forest trees, but it was not probable that the sum needed could be raised unless Mr. Towne was willing to subscribe a large part of the sum. The vote was taken and the eleven members present voted for the order.

The order paying John Q. Henry and others $50 for expenses incurred in looking up title to property on Eldridge street was objected to by Councilman Kennedy, who thought there should be some explanation. The order had a vote of 2 to 1 in the claims committee, when there were only three present. $50 seemed a large sum to pay for what services were necessary. He had seen Mr. Henry recently, and the latter had said that he had not paid anything, and didn't know the amount. No one had appeared before the committee to state what the expenses were, and he thought some explanation should have been made.

President Coffin said that the bill had been referred to Councilman Burr, who had looked the matter up and had reported favorably. He had no doubt Mr. Burr could explain the matter satisfactorily, and at his suggestion the order was laid over until the next meeting.

Councilman Moody presented the petition of Rufus Moulton and other residents of Grove street, Ward 4, for repairs of the concrete sidewalks on that street.

Councilman Kennedy presented a petition from the permanent drivers employed by the city, asking that their pay be not deducted on holidays. They have to reportearly in the morning, at noon and night, take care of their horses, just as on other The order paying John Q. Henry and days, and they could put the time to very profitable use in repairing and caring for the harnesses, and other necessary work. They did not care for the holiday, and in most cities pay was not deducted for holidays. The men only get a small salary, and the additional expense would be trifling.

Councilman Billings presented a petition from residents of Chandler place, Ward 5, for street lamps.

Councilman Chadwick presented a petition from residents of Crafts and Calfornia streets, asking for additional street lights. The lamps now on those streets are in some cases 700 feet from each other.

A petition from residents of Bennington street, Ward 1, was read, rehearsing the bad condition of the street; the road bed is gullied out, the gutters are filled with sand and useless, and last winter the street was impassible for a part of the time. Nothing had been done since the street was accepted by the city, and the residents asked that it be repaired.

All the petitions were appropriately referred, and at 8 o'clock the meeting adjourned.

company playing even through the summer months to crowded houses.

During the great run of "Erminie" at New York, its performances were attended by nearly every celebrated foreigner who arrived in America. The roof garden, after the performance was over, frequently suggested a foreign levee, when gold-emblazoned officers of some royal embassy or legation promenaded with their ladies in full box toilettes through the shrubbery or sipped their ices under the colored lights.

In comparison with "Erminie's" great run of 500 nights at the New York Casino, the following New York City records of prominent successes will be interesting: "Evangeline" ran 250 nights; "The Queen's Lace Handkerchief" 150 nights in two runs; "Prince Methusalem" 120 nights; "Gypsy Baron" 100; "The Beggar Student" 100; "The Mikado" 276. "Erminie" and the great N. Y. Casino Co. will be seen at the Globe Theatre, Boston, on Sept. 19th.

Seymore (his first appearance this season); Prince Alexis Valerian, Mr. Edgar L. Davenport; Ivan Zazzulic, Mr. Frazer Coulter; Kertch, Mr. C. E. The annual series of concerts by the Boston Symphony Orchestra will begin Oct. 15, and the season ticket sales at auc-Oct. 15, and the season ticket sales at auction of the seats for the public rehearsals and concerts will be held next week, the $12 rehearsal tickets being sold on Monday, the 19th, and the $12 concert tickets on Thursday, the 22d. The $7.50 seats for the rehearsals and concerts will be sold as usual at the box office on the days following the auction sales of the $12 seats. There will be twenty-four concerts, on Saturday evenings, preceded each week by a public rehearsal on Friday afternoons, all at Music Hall.

At the elegant Hollis Street Theatre the third season has been inaugurated with great brilliancy by "The Corsair," an ex-travaganza to which Messrs. Rice and travaganza to which Messrs. Rice and Dixey have given the most elaborate and expensive stage setting ever shown in a burlesque in Boston. The scenery and costumes are positively dazzling, and in the cast of character are some of the best artists in the profession. The chorus is well trained, the auxiliaries are numerous, the marching and dancing excellent, and the whole a genuine success. The engagement is limited.

Relative to the cost of producing "The Relative to the cost of producing "The Corsair" at the Hollis street, Charles Rich said: "When we advertised that it cost $20,000 to put it on, we thought that it might fall one or two thousand dollars short, but when it was figured up the amount was just a little short of $25,000. This is a fact. And yet the public think that the $20,000 was only an "ad," yet when they see it they come to the conclusion that there must have been a good deal of money expert."

"Jim, the Penman," will continue the attraction at the Park Theatre as long as it draws such houses as it has had this week, which may be until the close of the four weeks' engagement of the company. If "Elaine" is to be presented during this visit, its production will be announced some time next week.

The ladies are in ecstacies over the materials used for the draperies and costumes in "The Corsair," and well may they be, for such plushes in particular don't get on to the stage often.

Bostonians will be much disappointed to hear that Miss Helen Dauvray, who was to have appeared at the Park Theatre Oct. 17, has been obliged by illness to cancel her engagement.

No theatrical season ever opened more auspiciously than this has done. Monday nights, proverbially bad in Boston, have each week seen every house in town packed.

Annie Pixley will appear at the Park, Oct. 3, in a new play.

A Teacher A Century Old.

A Teacher A Century Old.

The commemorative celebration of the one hundredth birthday of the venerable teacher, Seth Davis, which occurred at West Newton, Mass., on Saturday afternoon, Sept. 3, was a notable event. Upon the lawn in front of his residence, beneath the shade of rock maples, the seeds of which were planted by his own hand overeighty years ago, was erected a temporary platform, ornamented by choice plants and beautiful flowers, over which waved the stars and stripes, and upon which sat the true and loyal centenarian, surrounded by a great assembly of friends, prominent citizens, and former pupils. The scene was a most picturesque and impressive one. It signified the completion, on that day, of one hundred years of active, useful, and happy life.

It is greatly to the credit of the city of Newton that the improvement of this rare opportunity to do honor to an aged veteran of education was suggested by the mayor of the city; and that the fitting arrangements were made by the unanimous concurrent action of the city government.

As is well known, it is the method in many schools for the teacher to make a few remarks explanatory of the meaning of some word which the scholars are to be made acquainted with for the first time.

One day the meaning of the word "remorse" was expounded, and the scholars were requested to write out their idea of the word's import and hand it to the teacher. A boy nine years old handed in this:

SOME OF THE ATTRACTIONS AT THAT FAMOUS RESORT.

NARRAGANSETT PIER, R. I., Aug. 27, '87. litor of the GRAPHIC

We had always spent our summers on We had always spent our summers on the Maine or Massachusetts coasts, but this year we had made up our minds to start out in an entirely new direction. Our numerous friends suggested many places by land and sea, and after changing our minds at least ten times we decided on minus at least ten times we decided on Narraganisett Pier, where we have been for the past four weeks. It is strange how little Eastern people know of this delight-ful watering place. However, there are any number of Westerners and Southerners here enjoying the soft, delicious air, and pathing in the refreshing surf. The probathing in the refreshing surf. The program for the day is always the same, and yet varied enough for all to enjoy it.

About eleven o'clock everyone begins to think of their bath, and to saunter down to the beach where you see one of the most fascinating sight I ever beheld. Sometimes there are four or five hundred bathing, while as many more are watching them from the gay colored awning tents, con-veniently pitched on the sands, while others who do not care for so much sun, are more who do not care for so much sun, are more quietly situated on the balconies of the numerous bath houses (each hotel having one of its own) and many who are in a social mood, sit in front of the houses, where you see everyone, have a pleasant chat with many, and a "good morning" from all passing friends. I cannot speak too highly of the bathing, it is simply delicious, the water so bright and refreshing that it seems as if Neptune himself had charged if for the amusement and comfort of us poor mortals, whom he pities so deeply for not having like himself the privilege of a continuous bath. The temperature, which is about seventy, enables one ture, which is about seventy, enables one to stay in a long time, some people taking two baths each morning, with a run on the beach between. The surf is very high and sometimes a little dangerous. Still as the ummer is almost gone and only one man has been drowned, I think the record company for the property of the property o

However the foglor in the power of the space of six seconds. On our way out we stopped at the life-saving apparatus to us, while we examined all the implements. It seems that when the waves are too high to admit of a boat going out they make use of the apparatus which is worked in the following manner: A gun shoots a ball with a rope attached out to the vessel in distress, which is caught by some one on board, the other end being firmly anchored in the sand, a tall tripod shaped brace holding this rope high up out of the surf. On this rope is hung a breeches buoy, which is run to and fro by means of a pulley, bringing a man safely to shore each and every time. Coming bome my eye was attracted by a tall grey tower, standing boldly against the ruddy western sky, which in the sunlight toked very much like the main tower of an English cathedral. On inquiring I learned that this was what they call "Hazard's Folly." It seems that years ago a man named Hazard began this lovely country house for himself and future bride, who was then travelling in Europe. After he had finished one elle, he heard that his bride had proved untrue to him and had married some one else. He shut himself up, became very morose, and on his death bed left the tower to his nearest relative, with these commands: That he should finish the house and tower, which stands many, many feet above the rest of the house, and is all that you can see from the road. The place was never to be inhabited, and no one was to destroy a single shrub or tree, or molest it in any way. Here it stands, a newly finished house, but never to be a home, the monument of a man's eccentric sellishness.

I have had some one else. He shut him had had married some most delightful rides over the Neck road, by Judge Sprague's sup

SHE WAS ALMOST STARVED.

A Desperate and Gloomy Time-Refreshment and Relicf-An Experience to be Remem bered.

Seven years ago I had an attack of billous remittent fever, which lasted for three months and which left my system exposed to easy infection from malarial poison. From that time I become fully acquainted with that distressing malady, intermittent fever, which put in an appearance each spring, lasting ustil the next winter.

The fever came on every affermoon with malicious regularity accompanied with a racking headache, pain in the limbs and back, and masea, at last settling down into chronic malaria.

In the spring of 1879 my physician advised sea air as a tonic, and so I spent the summer in my old home in New Jersey. The salt air did wonders for me—but the old trouble came back the next spring, and dragged on through the summer, leaving me in the fall in that peculiarly succeptible condition that made the system so sensitive to the slightest changes of the weather—a condition so well known to those who have suffered from malarial diseases, and which made me painfully conscious that the poison still existed in my system. Of course I took quinine, and lots of it, too, my physician ordering it to be taken in five grain doses. Becoming desperate I d-ubbed the quantity, taking ten and twelve grains at a time. I soon pad the penalty of such daring, in terrific headaches, buzzing in the ears, loss of memory, loss of alphetie, and great nervous debulty and prostration. I would go for days at a time eating searcely anything, and at last I could not even drink milk.

Of course, as I know now, this was the forerunner of dayspepsia, which had been an old trouble with me, though I had enjoyed several years exemption from it. Malaria brought dyspepsia back again in full force. Its symptoms were a sense of fullness or weight in the stomach. This was so intense at times that I was compelled to eat something to gain relief. My dyspepsia was accompanied with a footid breath, nausea, a giddy head and a flushed face as if I had a fever. I took pepsin, soda, bismath, etc., together with a great many prescriptions, remarkable chief refreshing, my stomach and digestive organs generally became strong and performed their functions casily und without discomfort. And as you have seen a June day brightened by the summer storm that swept across the sky, so the cloud left my life, and my health became steady and strong.

As I used no other medicine while taking Kaskine. I can't be mistaken in feeling that my recovery is due solely to the use of that remedy. I would strongly urge upon those who may be suffering from malaria or indigestion to use Kaskine, and to use it long enough to establish a healthful habit to the system—as that will be found necessary to a permanent cure.

FOR REPRESENTATIVE.

The only thing on which there promises to be much of a contest in this city this fall is over the nomination of Representa-tive Wood's successor. There are no state or county offices [for which Newton men are candidates and the city election does not as yet occasion any excitement.

Mr. Walworth will be re-elected without any doubt. He made an excellent record in his first term, and we could not ask for a better representative of the business interests. For this reason it would seem desirable to have the second representative a member of the legal profession, as Newton will have probably many important questions before the legislature next year, in some form or other, and he should also be a man who is thoroughly acquainted with the interests of Newton, so that he can act and vote in the wisest manner.

Ex-Alderman Powers has been frequently mentioned as the man who fulfills all these requirements, having served in both branches of the City Council, and also being regarded as one of the leading younger lawyers of the Boston bar. He is an eloquent and persuasive speaker, and is noted for the thoroughness with which he posts himself on the questions of the day.

Many people who think very highly of Mr. Powers were unable to vote for him when he ran for mayor against Mr. Kimball, and would like an opportunity to show him that it was not from any lack of confidence in him that they supported his rival. As the Graphic has been credited with being one of the causes that led to his defeat, we should like the opportunity to support him for representative, and that seems to be a very general feeling. The manly way in which Mr. Powers took his defeat made him many friends, and he would be one of the strongest candidates that could be nominated.

Whether he would accept the position we do not know, as he has said to several gentlemen who have approached him on the subject that he is out of politics and is not a candidate for any office. Nevertheless, there is a general feeling that he should be given the honor of a nomination as a matter of courtesy, and those who worked the hardest against him last year, will be found among his warmest support-

THE CAUCUSES.

The caucuses of both the Republican and Democratic parties will be held Saturday evening, to choose delegates to their respec-tive state, councillor, senatorial and county conventions. The Republicans hold conventions. The Republicans hold caucuses in the different wards, at the places specified in the call printed in an-other column, and the Democrats hold a "Mass Caucus" at the Police Court room, City Hall. If all the Democrats in the city attend, the room will not be uncomfortably crowded.

The Republican caucuses ought to be well attended, and good delegates chosen, who will give the city influence and prestige at the conventions, although it is not probable that the result of the conventions will be in any wise affected by the delegates

At the State Convention, the present state officers will be renominated, with the exception of Attorney General Sherman, who has been appointed a judge of the Superior has been appointed a judge of the Superior court. His place will be filled by exSenator A. E. Pillsbury, who is a man of ability and courage, and well qualified for the position. The platform to be adopted, and the stand the party will take on the issues of the day are of great importance, and here is where the convention will need both wisdom and discretion.

In the Senatorial Convention Mr. Flatch.

In the Senatorial Convention Mr. Fletcher will probably be renominated for a second term, as there has been no dissatisfaction expressed with his services, and there does not promise to be much of a con-test at either the councillor or the county

As the Democrats are in a rather hopeless minority, their proceedings promise to be of a more or less formal character. Young Sherman Hoar may be induced to run again for Senator, and give to the con-test for that office some interest by his rattling wide awake speeches, but he will probably come as far short of an election as he did last year.

DREDGING THE CHARLES.

The dredging of Charles River, in order The dredging of Charles River, in order to make it navigable as far as Watertown, is receiving great favor, as the many advantages to follow from such a work are considered. The project is an old one, as it was advocated during the war of 1812, for the sake of benefitting the Arsenal, more than for any benefit to Watertown and Newton.

Afterwards, Nathaniel Whiting, a resident of Watertown and a prominent Boston merchant, took hold of the matter, and failing to receive any encouragement from the government, proposed to do it at his own expense, relying upon the benefit to more than compensate for the outlay. He based his ideas upon two propositions. First, as far as tide water set in a stream should be open to navigation. Second, that the interest of the government having an important post with property and stores of immense value should have free ingress and egress. His death put an end to the project

up the scheme, and after the work was done as far as Western avenue bridge, it done as far as Western avenue bridge, it was dropped, because of the opposition of the officer in charge—Captain Gillespic. Now that the scheme has been revived, and with ample funds in the possession of the national government, there is no reason why it should not be energetically pushed.

It is calculated that the saving on coal alone to Watertown and Newton consumers would be $1.50 a ton, which would amount would be $1.50 a ton, which would amount to a considerable sum in a year to every large consumer, while there would also be a great-saving on lumber and other water-borne freight. Watertown citizens seem to be in earnest in the matter, and we hope the citizens of Newton will aid them in the citizens of Newton will aid them in every way possible, as it would be of as much benefit to this city as to Watertown. Of course the Boston & Albany and the Fitchburg railroad corporations can be depended on to oppose the project, but that should only stir up the people to greater effort. It is said that the two members of Congress from the districts most interested have promised to advocate it at the part have promised to advocate it at the next session of Congress, and an effort should be made to get the other members of the Massachusetts delegation and the two Senators pledged to favor the scheme.

An illustration of the absurdities of the present system of taking care of our school property was presented in the condition of one of the large school houses where the teachers and scholars assembled on Monday morning. Some alterations which had been aggress! on Monday morning. Some alterations which had been agreed upon nearly two years ago, and which had been ordered as soon as the school closed in June, were not finished because much of the summer vacation had passed before they were begun. Some broken window panes were unrepaired, and finally the heating apparatus was so far out of order that the building could not be warmed. A cold, cheerless school house, dusty and noisy, carpenters, plumbers and dusty and noisy, carpenters, plumbers and painters clattering at their work, and everything disagreeable—that was the condition on Monday morning. And yet no one was to blame. It is the fault of the one was to blame. It is the fault of the double headed system by which one department has to wait for another, and large quantities of red tape have to be unlarge quantities are by done. rolled before anything can be done.

THE BOSTON TRAVELLER, in speaking of The Boston TRAVELLER, in speaking of the coming city election in Boston, takes the same position that the majority of Newton Republicans have adopted for Several years. It says that "in municipal affairs partizanship has no such important anairs partizaiship has no such important place. There the interest of the citizen is the paramount concern, and should govern the action of the voter." This is excellent doctrine, and the Republicans of Boston can not do better than to follow it, and in this way free the city gavernment of the scandals that have of late disgraced that city. that city.

THE latest volume in Ticknor's excellent paper series is "A Modern Instance" by W. D. Howells, a novel which caused much discussion on its first appearance. It is a noteworthy fact that even those who pro-fess not to admire Mr. Howells, always read his books, and the appearance of his novels in this cheap and tasteful edition will be welcomed by the public. The series is to be continued indefinitely, new numbers appearing on the first and third Saturdays of the month.

—In all probability there will be a Chatauqua circle in Newtonville this winter. The coming together of the members of this association greatly facilitates the work in hand. -The placid summer water of the Every

-The placid summer valer or a ripple in the form of studey notifications, and details of the work, which is the forerunner of a busy and profitable winter.

—A letter received from Capt. Chisholm, now in the West Indies, states that the Zulma encountered a terrific cyclone on the way out, and for 10 hours the captain was lashed to the wheel.

—Messrs. A. A. Savage, J. Smith of Walnut street, and five other gentlemen from Boston left Wednesday night for a two weeks' trip to the Rangely Lakes and adjoining territory.

—Higgins & Nickerson have the contract for a handsome double house, to be erected by Mr. J. Byers, on the corner of Washing-ton and Lowell streets. The site is a very desirable one and the houses will probably be rented long before they are finished.

—As the new brick block approaches completion the question as to who will occupy the stores becomes of interest. D. H. Fitch will occupy one, but the names of the other prospective occupants are not given.

—Mayor Kimball was the guest of Mayor Sheldon at the celebration of Mayor's Day at Haverbill, on Tuesday. During the visit Mayor Robinson of Gloucester presented Mayor Kimball with the handsome goldheaded cane, the gift of the Gloucester Steam Fire Association.

—Higgins & Nickerson are one of the busiest firms in town, so many new buildings are being put up in this ward. Among other contracts they are building a fine house for Wm. Naglo on Cratts street; making extensive alterations and additions to Mrs. A. Parks' residence on Clyde street, and are building another greenhouse 226 feet long for Fayette Shaw, having just completed one for him 200 feet long. The firm are also figuring on a number of new buildings to be started this fall.

—The Newtonville Fire Association received an invitation this week to make a return visit to the Gloncester Steam Fire Association, which paid a visit here last fall. It is needless to say that the invitation has been accepted, but the date has not been fixed.

—Mr. Richardson, of the firm of Hart well & Richardson, architects of Boston has his handsome new house on Highland avenue nearly completed. It is a rather striking structure, and from its elevation has a commanding view. Mr. Richardson expects to occupy it in the early fall.

—The young people of the Universalist expects to occupy it in the early fall.

—The young people of the Universalist Seciety met on Wednesday afternoon for the purpose of organizing a working society for the Sunday School, church and community. About twenty were present. After having formally organized the following officers were chosen: President, Miss E. M. Sibly; Vice Presidents, Mrs. R. A. White and Miss Calley; Secretary, Miss Margaret Clifford; Treasurer, Miss Mamie Metcalf. The forming of the younger members of a parish into a working association is a helpful and desirable object, as activity in the right direction means growth to a certain extent. The name of this organization has not yet been decided upon, nor any definite work laid out.

—A number of persons connected with the North Evangelical church gathered at the house of Rev. Mr. Evans on California street last Monday evening, and presented to that gentleman a purse containing about thirty-five dollars. Mr. S. W. Fletcher presented it with a few well chosen words. He was followed by Mr. R. Forknell, after which Mr. Evans responded and all joined in singing "Praise God From Whom All Blessings Flow." Remarks were also made by Mr. George Hudson, A. K. Worth, John Clayton, J. Boyse and J. Galway, after which all joined in singing "Blest Be the Tie that Binds," and departed.

The Electric Light Company Wins.

The Electric Light Company Wins.

At the supreme count, Judge Holmes, on Wednesday, the case of Matthew Burns vs the Newton Electric Light and Power company came up. It is a bill in equity praying for an injunction to restrain the defendants works on Crafts street, Newtonville, during the night. He asks that the defendants works on Crafts street, Newtonville, during the night. He asks that the defendant be ordered to remove the steam whistle and be enjoined from putting in further machinery and operating it during the night. The case was set down for a hearing upon the merits on September 27. A temporary injunction was refused. S. H. Dudley appeared for the complainant and John C. Lane for the defendant.

In regard to the order passed by the board of aldermen, that the Electric Light company were violating the city ordinances by their manner of running their wires into the railroad stations for their incandescent circuit; the matter has been investigated by State Inspector Brophy of the Insurance Exchange, and he reports that the wires are put up in accordance with the rules of the exchange. The Newton ordinances, although they were copied from the Worcester statutes, drawn by Mr. Brophy, are old-fashioned, and do not apply to-day. In an interview with Chief Bixby, Mr. Brophy said that it was almost impossible to change statutes fast enough to accord with the improved machines and methods constantly being adopted by Electric Light companies. The companies, for their own sake, are putting in improvements as fast as they are developed, in order to have everything as safe as possible.

Messrs. Raymond & Whitcomb's Next

Grand Transcontinental Trip.

An autumn trip to California ought to be extremely popular. The season is delightful for traveling, and the Pacific Coast is reached when the vineyards and orchards are in their richest fruitage. A party will leave Boston Tuesday, October 11, for the Pacific Northwest and California. The route outward is over the Norther Leavest Salargedon, the Columbia River, the picturesque Mount Shasta section, Central California, and Southern California will then be visited. The trip occupies only 51 days, but the tickets returning are good until next July, so that the time of sojourn on the Pacific Coast can be prolonged at pleasure. In addition to this tour Messrs, Raymond & Whitcomb have a long list of autumn trips through New England, Canada; the Middle States, etc. Send to W. Raymond. 226 Washington Street, opposite W. HAIL CO LUMBIA.

DR. HOLMES' CONSTITUTIONAL CENTENNIAL

The Philadelphia Ledger publishes the following as the text of the new version of "Hail Columbia," written by Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes, to be sung by the school chorus during the commemoration cere-monies at the constitutional centennial cel-

"Hail, Columbia! Happyland!
Home of heroes—heaven-born band,
Who fought and bled in Freedom's cause,
Who fought and bled in Freedom's cause,
And when the storm of war was gone
Enjoyed the peace their rounds,
Even the storm of the storm of Firm—united—let us be, Rallying round our Liberty, As a band of brothers joined, Peace and safety we shall find."

ok our ransomed shores around, ace and safety we have found! Welcome, friends, who once were foes! Welcome, friends, who once were foes! all the conquering years have gained nation's rights, a race unchained! Children of the day new-born, Mindful of its glorious morn, Let the pledge our father's signed Heart to heart forever bind!

While the stars of heaven shall burn, While the ocean tides return, Ever may the circling sun Find the Many still are One!

Graven deep with edge of steel,
Crowned with victory's crimson seal,
All the world their names shall read!
All the world their names shall read!
Enrolled with his hosts that led,
Whose blood for us—for all—was shed,
Pay our sires their children's debt,
Love and honor—not forget Only Union's golden key Guards the Ark of Liberty!

While the stars of heaven shall burn, While the ocean tides return, Ever may the circling sun Find the Many still are One!

Hail Columbia, strong and free,
Firm enthroned from sea to sea!
Thy march triumphant still pursue!
Thy march triumphant still pursue!
With peaceful strides from zone to zooe
And make the Western land thine own!
Blest is the Union's holy ties,
Let our grateful song arise—
Every voice its tribute lend—
In the loving chorus blend!

While the stars in heaven shall burn,
While the ocean tides return,
Ever shall the circling sun
Find the Many still are One!
—Oliver Wendell Holmes.

DAVID'S COLT.

BY SOPHIE SWETT.

Miss Thusy Herrick arose from her bed on a certain summer morning with a sink ing heart. Miss Thusy's heart had been trained by long years of warfare to a sol-dierly steadiness and disregard of burdens; it was yery strange that it should falter now. She ascribed it to indigestion. That raspberry jam, the precious pot that Mar-thy Abby had made the last thing before she died, and which she had opened in honor of little Ruth Ellen, had not agreed with her, used as she was to a very low diet.
Ruth Ellen couldn't have suspected how low it had been. Miss Thusy assured herself of that for the twentieth time, remem-bering with satisfaction the cake with four eggs in it—how considerate of the Cropple Crown and the big Plymouth Rock to lay those eggs! it seemed like real kindness of heart when one knew how badly they wanted to "set"—and the tea with sugar in it. How long that tea and sugar had lasted! She had feared the sugar would hardly go round when the minister and his wife came to tea, and since then Miss Bathsheba Wing and old Dr. Sewall and his daughter had visited her, and it had Hooked really scanty last night. And little Ruth Ellen drank only milk. How much she had to be thankful for! And Miss Thusy unbraided her heart, which, nevertheless, lay heavily in her bosom.

How good it was to see Ruth Ellen, her-own flesh and blood, her sister's daughter although it almost took her breath away to see a young lady a head and shoulders taller than she herself; and so dignified !a school-teacher; and stylish—there were three silk dresses hanging in the spare room closet. She must try to darn her old black silk so it would hold together for one wearing. Ruth Ellen might think it strange if she did not wear a silk dress Sunday.

Ruth Ellen would be likely to stay three or four weeks at least, after coming all the way from Chicago to visit her aunt and her mother's old home for the first time. Miss Thusy drew from between her feather bed and mattress a yellow old stocking, and shook out some silver from its foot, mostly in dimes and half-dimes, and of ancient dates. She counted it as intently as if she had not counted it two days before, and the lines between her brows were ploughed into deep furrows

'Groceries and butcher's-meat are all the garden'll do the rest; and if she ain't one to notice that I don't eat much—But the colt wouldn't have had to go if she hadn't come. I couldn't ask Squire Robinson to wait any longer for his interest, and mebbe it's wrong for me to feel so about a dumb cre'tur,' anyhow.'

As Miss Thusy went through the long woodshed to the barn she trembled in every limb. She said to herself that it was because the early dawn was so chilly.

As she unfastened the barn door a cheerful whinny greeted her. For how many years was it that she had never once missed that friendly morning greeting? Not since David died, and David was but a lad, and he would be forty now. She went into the stall, and parted the long, gaunt head of the old horse, who looked at her with af-fectionate eyes; she felt of his rough, shaggy sides, where one could almost count the ribs.

"You'll be better off, Tim—you'll be better off." she said, carnestly, as if he must understand. Then she fed him, bringing a small measure of oats which she had carefully treasured in the almost empty meal-chest in the granary, and which Tim looked at as if he thought his eyes must deceive him.

While she was 'getting breakfast she went often to the door and looked out. At length a man drove into the yard, and got out of the wagon with a rope in his hand. It was Squire Robinson's "hired man."

"You'll find the colt in the barn," called Miss Thusy and the man, suppressing a grin at the name which she applied to her old horse, took his way there, while Miss Thusy retired to her bedroom and shut the door.

Thusy retired to her oedroom and snuthe door.

When Ruth Ellen came down to breakfast, as fresh and blooming as a rose, and making the old house look ashamed of its dungies, her youthfully quick eyes instantly detected the signs of a fresh; grief on her aunt's care-trodden face.

Ruth Ellen was not without discretion—poverty and school-teaching are apt to confer that grace—and she said nothing, and pretended uot to observe, but while cheerfully recommending the lettuce as Iresh from the garden, Miss Thusy's voice broke, and a sob struggled fiercely in her well-disciplined old throat.

"Dear Aunt Thusy!" and the little girl went and put her strong young arms around the little withered old form.

It was such a temptation. Miss Thusy had been weighed down with her anxious secrets for so long that she was sick with longing for human sympathy. All the three years that Marthy Abby was dying of consumption she didn't let her know that Lot Peters had cheated them out of the the Groundnut Hill farm, or that she had been obliged to get Squire Robinson to take a mortgage of two thousand dollars on the homestead—the old place that was to be left to Ruth Ellen, the only grandchild. And Marthy Abby had never known that she braided straw, and sewed it into bonnets for the factories, for she worked nights in the old lumber-room in the attic. And Marthy Abby did peacefully, never dreaming of the prowling wolf. And since she died bread had grown scantier, day by day; machines had come into the straw factories, and there was no more demand for hand-work, and, grown morbid in her loneliness, Miss Thusy could see nothing sometimes for days and days but the poor-house looming darkly before her, worse, there would be nothing for little Ruth Ellen; it] might be said that her grandfather's property, which should have been hers, had been lost by mismanagement.

Miss Thusy's mind, weighed down so long by these secrets, felt an almost uncontrollable impuise at this touch of sympathy to share its burden. But she ralied all her forces, like

"Why did you part with him?" asked the girl, her voice shaken, sympathetically.

"I—I—oh, well, some thought he was getting kind of skittish. He r'ared up right in front of the meeting-house, and he gnawed the bark off Deacon Hopkins' maple, and"—Miss Thusy stopped suddenly with an appalling sense of her own wickedness. It was the first time she had ever prevariented. She thought of Ananias and Sapphira, and of the angels who fell from their first estate—by pride.

She had scarcely sufficient self-control to answer, "Squire Robinson, over to Tatnick," when Ruth Ellen inquired, quietly, whom she had sold the horse to.

Ruth Ellen went out for a walk soon after breakfast. She had previously gone up to her room, and taken from her trunk a lean little purse; it was a purse that had but little capacity for fatness at the best, and had now a pathetically shrunken look. Ruth Ellen had her little secrets. The three silk dresses were made out of her cousin's old ones. Her cousin was a public reader, and had to have fine clothes.

She counted her money, as Miss Thusy had done, and even impatiently squeezed the dejected limpness of the little purse. "I would do it if it took every cent I had in the bank!" she said, with determination. "I know Tom would think I ought to—if we have to wait forever."

Vainly had Miss Thusy reduced herself (at least in her own eyes) to the moral level of Ananias and Sappahira. Ruth Ellen was acquainted with the wolf, and she knew his tracks.

She asked the first person she met the way to Tatnick. It was three miles, and in the least daunted.

She asked the first person she met the way to Tatnick. It was three miles, and the day was warm; but Ruth Ellen was not in the least daunted.

It was easy to find Squire Robinson's. The first person she asked told her, with a look of incredulity at her ignorance—a great, bare, white house set upon a hill, thrifty but unbeautiful. Squire Robinson was just coming from the haylield with a rake over his shoulder—a rugged old farmer with strongly marked features, but with a trace of humor about his thin, grim mouth. The twinkle in his eye struck Ruth Ellen with a vague sense of familiarity.

"You have just bought a horse of Miss Arethusa Herrick, I believe," said Ruth Ellen, her cacerness struggling with her school-mistress-like propriety of expression.

school-mistress-like propriety of expression.

The squire leaned over the stone wall, and regarded her meditatively.

"I calc'late I have," he admitted at length. "Been walkin' consid'able far?"

"From Cumberland Village. Would you be willing to seil the horse?"

"You don't say so? Well, you aint one of the slim ones, are you? Don't stop down there when you're at home?"

"No; I live in Chicago. Would you"—

"Chicago, ch? Got folks down to Cumberland, I expect?"

"I am Miss Herrick's niece."

"Well, there! I thought I saw the Herrick look. And so you're Pantiny's daughter! I used to think consid'able of Pantiny. She was a little, slim thing?—

"Yes, I look like my father's people. I want very much to buy Aunt Thusy's horse"

"Well, well; you come and set in the

The squire set a chair for her in the porch.

"Well, now, I didn't buy that horse for an investment," said the squire, after he had drained the last drop of a mug of cider.
"I didn't expect a great rush of offers for him. Aint a corner in calico horses your way, is there?"

"I want a horse to drive while I'm here,"

"I didn't expect a great rush of offers for him. Aint a corner in calico horses your way, is there?"

"I want a horse to drive while I'm here," said Ruth Ellen, "and I think Aunt Thusy would be glad to have him again."

"You kind of want to make her a present of him?" said the squire, looking at her keenly. And then he threw back his head and laughed gruffly. "It's cur'us! You wouldn't think two folks would have set on that old cretur for a present, but that's just what I wanted of him. I've got a daughter-in-law"—his mouth assumed a sevenfold grimness. "We heard of it yesterday, and my wife made me promises she's an invalid, and you have to honor lear some—that I'd make her a present. I saw that old horse out in the parster, and I happened to think he'd be just the thing, and probably Thusy would be glad to get something for him, and I lowed her seventy-five dollars for him. He aint really worth any more than he'd bring at the bone-factory, but it kind of struck me that he'd be an uncommon suitable weddin' present for Solon Hickey's daughter. You've seen Solon Hickey's daughter. You've seen Solon Hickey's daughter. Lizy won't he squire's gruff voice shook—"has married Solon Hickey's daughter. Lizy Ann Hickey is my daughter-in-law, and she's just what you might expect her father's daughter to be. He got entangled with her here, and she followed him out West. You never happened to come acrost him out there, did you—my son, Tom Robinson?"

"Tom Robinson!" repeated Ruth Ellen, her cheeks growing pinker. "I know a him out there, did you-my son, Tom Robinson?"

"Tom Robinson!" repeated Ruth Ellen, her cheeks growing pinker. "I know a Tom Robinson, but he isn't your son."

"Robinsons aint a thing that there's only one of, but they're most likely folks, so far as I've seen. What does he do for a livin', this one that you're acquainted with?"

"He's an electrican, and he is inventing a new transmitter for telephones. He's very talented." Ruth Ellen's checks were now very pink.

"Talkin' machines, eh? If he'd invent something to make folks hold their tongues, he'd do better. I don't take much stock in inventions myself. Where does he hail from?"

"From New England. I don't know

"Yerom New England. I don't know what town. He never says anything about his home. I think because it was unhappy. His father was—was a horrid old thing!"
Ruth Ellen reached this climax snddenly, tarried out of her reserve and the propriety of a school-mistress by her feeling for Tom's wrongs.
"Humph! He told you so, I s'pose," said the squire, evidently disposed to take the part of the disparaged parent.
"I know he must have been, to quarred with Tom. Tom has a beautiful disposition."
"Can't be my Tom," said the squire, with "Can't be my Tom," said the squire, with decision.

tion."
"Can't be my Tom," said the squire, with decision.
"Why, of course it isn't your Tom. He isn't married," said Ruth Ellen.
"Goin' to be, mebbe," said the squire, slyly.
Ruth Ellen turned the conversation to the horse.
"I would be willing to give you more than seventy-five dollars for him," she said anxiously.
"Bless you, I haven't got the horse," said the squire. "I told my man to take him right along to Hickey's and say 'twas a present for my daughter-in-law."
"Oh, dear! do you suppose she would sell him?" Ruth Ellen arose, feeling vexed with the squire for not having told her at once.
"Well Lymes she dea't set enough by once.

"Well, I guess she don't set enough by her father-in-law to hinder her," said Squire Robinson. "But don't be in such a hurry. I can't help thinkin' it's kind of en''us about that Tom Robinson of yours. Now my Tom has been inventin' things ever since he wa'n't higher'n that choppin' block. And another coincidence is that he haint been dutrful to his father."

Ruth Ellen looked bewildered for a moment; then she turned a smiling and assured face upon him.

"But my Tom isn't married," she said, and turned away.

"Here, wait a minute, and I'll hitch up and carry you," cried the squire. But Ruth Ellen would not wait. She was very much obliged, but she preferred to walk.

The truth was she was more bewildered and less assured than she seemed, and wanted to be alone to think. Startling recollections were coming up. Tom had objected so seriously to her coming to Cumberland, that only her sense of duty to her aunt had enabled her to resist him. He was very silent about his past life, but she had heard him speak of fishing from Cumberland bridge and roaming in Tatnick woods when he was a boy. That was when she had first met him; later, after he knew that Cumberland was her mother's old home, he had said nothing about it.

And that twinkle in the squire's eye! the familiar look that had struck her when she first saw him!

"Got entangled with her there." No, no, it could not be. She must be mad to think of doubting Tom. And Robinson was such a common name. Tom, too. There might be a dozen Tom Robinsons in the West who came from New England. But the ghost that the squire had raised "would not down." It followed her all the way to the village, and made her face white as she knocked at Solon Hickey's door, and asked for Mrs. Robinson.

A tall young woman, strikingly handsome, and theatrically arrayed in dilapidated finery, with her blonde hair in curl papers, made her appearance.

"I—I—Would you sell the horse that your father-in-law gave you?" stammered Rutt Ellen.

The young woman flushed angrily. "I don't know nothin

But Ruth Ellen was hurrying away with canty ceremony, her brain busy with a plan for getting to Gonic as soon as possible. The ghost was laid—almost. Lizy Ann's grammar and curil papers had dione it. Never could Tom, have been attracted by a young woman 'like that, although she was dazzlingly handsome in her way. Ruth Ellen disapproved so strongly of the way, that the very beauty seemed an offence against propriety.

Miss Thusy met her at the door with anxious inquiries, and the assurance that she 'looked all beat out.''

She had walked too far and the day was warm, was the only explanation Ruth Ellen gave.

They had scarcely finished their mid-day dinner when a resounding "Hullo!" drew them to the door. Squire Robinson was at the gate, reining in a horse that had evidently been going at a headlong pace.

"I'll get him for you, never you fear!" he called. "And I'll have that scoundrel Hickey arrested for obtaining goods under false pretenses. "He's played a trick"—

The squire was off again, and the end of the sentence was lost in the rattling of his wheels.

"Dear! Dear! I don't know what the squire meant," said Miss Thusy, adjusting her glasses to survey the cloud of dust in his wake, as if it might be expected to offer an explanation. "I understood twas something about Solon Hickey. Squire Robinson was good-hearted, but he is quick-tempered and arbitrary, and hard to get along with, There was his son Tom. Tom is like the Applebys; his mother was old Parson Appleby's daughter, refined and sensitive, and high-spirited too. The squire was mad because he couldn't make a farmer of him, and stop his inventing things, and Tom went'way off to Chicago, and he's never been home since, and I don't believe the squire hears from him at all. Tom's aunt, Rebecca Trneworthy, told me he was doing well, and was getting up an improvement on telephones that was going to be a great thing. Why, Ruthy Ellen availed herself of this opportunity to retire to her room, but she did not take a nap. She counted the rising suns on the bedquilt and the green roses on the wall-paper to keep herself from thinking, and wished that she were dead. Once or twice she remembered to reproach herself that she no longer seemed to care about David's colt, although Miss Thusy's faded old eyes were red with weeping, and her cheerfulness pathetically forced. It became evident at length that there was no virtue whatever in the rising suns or the green roses, counted up or down or from side to side, and the rising suns had grown to look like grinning flends. Her head was bursting, and the stience and loneliness were unendurable. Ei'There's Marilly Cleaves bringing the rasplerries she's been picking for me," she heard Miss Thusy out to the gate.

stairs, and she followed Miss Thusy out to the gate.

"Here's the bride and groom comin' along, 'pearin' out?" cried Marilly (lank and freekled and fifteen), in gleeful excitement—"Mr. and Mis' Roberson—Lizy Ann Hickey that was. Aint they a handsome couple?"

Miss Thusy adjusted her glasses. Ruth Ellen turned her back to the road. The flower garden and orchard and the crooked willow-tree seemed to be dapteing around her in a mad whirl. Then suddenly she trod her weakness under-foot, and turned stendily around.

A spruce young man, in a gay necktie, pronounced gloves, and a jaunty cane, painfully conscious of unaccustomed splendor, walked beside Lizy Ann, whose dilapidated morning finery was exchanged for fresh gorgeousness, and whose crimps had escaped from their chrysalis state into marvelous golden fluffness.

Ruth Ellen drew a long breath.

"Thu afraid Bill Robinson's got more'n he bargained for," said Miss Thusy, with a prophetic shake of the head.

"Bill? I thought the squire's son was Tom? said Ruth Ellen.

"Good land! you didn't think the squire's son had married Lizy Ann Hickey, did you? Come to think of it, there was talk of that. Bill is kind of a connection, and used to work at the squire's, and when he first began to court Lizy Ann, Ton bore the blame to screen him. Consid'able of it was pride, too, I guess; being hurt that his father should misjudge him so'st to think he would go to see Lizy Ann. And Hickey, he got hold of what the squire thought, and spread the story. He's had a grudge against the squire ever since he got him put into jail for stealing. I shouldn't wonder if that had something to do with Ton's going away. When the squire gets a notion in his head, there's no driving it out, and Tom wa'n't one to try."

Ruth Ellen returned to;her room. What an inoffensive, cheerful work of art a rising-sun quilt was! And green was not a bad color for rose.

She wrote a letter to Tom with a sentence in it which puzzled him very much, and when he ease he alighted. "Hickey's coming with him. I made th because she calls me names. Here comes Hickey!"

With trombling steps Miss Thusy hurried across the yard. The old horse came limping dejectedly along, and as his mistress drew near he raised his drooping head and looked at her with humanly reproachful eyes. But as she raised her little bent figure on tiptoe and threw her arms around his neck, he lowered his cadaverous head and gently rubbed her shoulder.

"Turrible great fuss 'bout an ole hoss," said Solon Hickey.—[Harper's Weekly.

School Suffrage For Women. The meeting of persons interested in school suffrage for women was not as largely attended as was expected, owing to disagreeable weather, but there were some disagreeaste weather, but there were some thirty persons, mostly ladies, present. In the absense of Mrs. E. D. Cheney, who was unable to be present, Mrs. E. N. L. Walton was the chairman of the meeting. A letter was read from Judge R. C. Pitman, regretting his inability to be present, owing to engagements at court. Mrs. Stevenson, who was expected to be present, was un-able to attend. The chairman then introduced Mrs. Claffin of Quincy, who made a very interesting address. She has been a member of the school board of Quincy, and has consequently had considerable person-al experience on the question of school suffrage. She stated that women may be suffrage. She stated that women may be divided into three classes by their opinions on the question of school suffrage: first, those totally opposed to suffrage of any kind, which class is gradually growing smaller; second, those not entirely opposed to suffrage but who see no present gain in to suffrage but who see no present gain in using the right, and who do not believe in the usefulness of school suffrage; third, those fully in favor of suffrage of all kinds. Many of this last class considering that they are citizens of the United States, having every right except the right of suf-frage, think it no small insult to dole out to them this small measure of their rights, and are therefore not inclined to use it. Women rear children and give them all their early education, and then hand them over to a system ruled by a superintendent and school committee, whose power is absolute and only subject to public opinion. Women take much more interest in schools than men. Mothers, poor and rich alike, are found to have a much better knowledge of the moral and physical part of the school system than fathers. Now, when a mother goes to teachers with complaints concerning the government of her children, the teachers are apt to put more value on her appearance and her knowledge of the English language than should be the case. Sufrage would increase the power of these mothers and gain them more respect. Before wemen were given the right of suffrage, they were given a piace on school boards. In Boston two women were chosen on the school board, but met with opposition when they took their seats. The city solicitor decided that they had no right to their place, but the legislature being appealed to, decided that they had the right. Therefore, if women have the right to a seat on the school board, why should they not have the right of school suffrage? More men than women think it is will not vote. This is not fair to the women nominated. If it is desirable to have a woman candidate, women must be chosen. Why do you want a woman? In case of some, on account of their superior education and attainments. Another reason is that being mothers, they are better qualified to judge of the physical qualificatious of their children. They are no busier than men. The moral question is one where a mother's leart is much needed. Then too there is a tendency in school boards to appoint a prepossessing woman as teacher rather than one not so prepossessing but better qualified for the place. However, a woman on a school board should have a female constituency to judge her actions. School committees are elected politically according to their politics. This is not a alled upon Mr. N. T. Allen sat he next speaker urged all women to vote, and not to be discou in Newton schools as in all others, and it is the fault of the mothers. Speaking of voting she said she never had found any trouble, and thought that people respected a woman who votes.

Mr. Walton, Mrs. Roberts and Mrs. J. Herbert Sawyer also said a few words in favor of the question.

The following resolutions were adopted: We, the members of the Newton Woman Suffrage League and others present, wish to express our love and veneration for the noble Christian Philanthropist, Mary C. Shannon.

-Mr. J. C. Woodman and family have gone to Chicago for two or three weeks. -Mr. W. O. Knapp and family have re turned from their visit at Autrim, N. H.

-Mrs. S. C. Spaulding has been granted a pension from the National government.

—Dr. Bigelow has recently occupied the fine house that he has had erected on Oak Hill.

-Last Sunday, Rev. Wm. O. Stearns of Cazenovia, N. Y., preached at the Baptist church. -Mr. Wm. Batholemew and family have returned from their summering in the mountains.

—Rev. W. W. Davis of Detroit, Mich., will occupy the pulpit of the Baptist church next Sunday.

—Mr. A. M. Davis of the Boston Post removed last week to his new house on Chestnut avenue, Jamaica Plain.

—Miss Etta White will soon pay a visit to her brother in Minneapolis and later she will be the guest of her sister in Los Augelos.

—Mr. George P. Davis and family have returned from New Boston, where they passed the summer. Mr. Davis will occupy his residence on Pelham straet.

—Maurice H. Wildes, after a year at the High School and a summer's tutoring by Mr. E. H. Cutler has entered the Fresh man class at Harvard without conditions.

—The entering class at the Newton The-ological Institution numbers twenty-eight, a larger number than usual. It is hoped that this number may be augumented still further.

—There were one or two little inaccuraces about the reported theft of Mr. Nichols' watch. It was stolen from him at Newton Centre and not in Boston, and the watch was silver and not gold.

—There is a rumor that the post office is to be removed to the Frost store in the block next to Associates' Hall. The store is being fixed over, and evidently a new tenant of some kind is expected.

—A memorial services to the late Bishop Harris, Rev. Dr. Curry, and Rev. John Allen were held by the Methodist ministers in Boston on Monday. Rev. Dr. Pierce of this village spoke at some length upon the life and services of Dr. Curry.

—Rev. Dr. Wm. Butler and family came home last week. Miss Butler has just returned from Sitka, Alaska, where she went in company with her: sister and brother-in-law, Mr. Thurber, who was called there on business. The journey was, on the whole, very delightful.

—Fred Hovey and George Warner of Newton Centre won the prize for doubles and Fred Hovey the prize for singles in the tournament held in Wellesley this week. Well known players from Harvard, Amherst and Brown participated, and the contests were very interesting.

—Mr. T. E. Bond and family depart in a short time for California, where they will reside in the future. Mr. Bond has been connected with the Vermont Central R. R. for a number of years and is well known in this city. Mr. Bond's son, Mr. John Bond, has been travelling in Europe, but is expected to arrive this week.

The number of pupils at the Mason school is about the same as in former years, and distributed in seven rooms. The staff of teachers is the same as that of last year with the exception that Miss Morehouse is substituting in the vacancy caused by Miss Mason's promotion to be principle of the Rice school. In the latter school are four rooms averaging about forty pupils.

—There has been a rumor about town for some time that there was to be an illumination on Crystal Lake. Careful inquiry elicted the following as the facts: It was the intention of the committee having the last Fourth of July celebration in charge, to conclude the festivities with an illumination on the Lake. It proved unpractical on account of the weather, and the committee decided to postpone the display until some time in the fall. The committee has bad no meeting as yet, but will do so soon, and arrangements will probably be made to carry out the original program in the near future.

—A French department in the Newton

the near future.

—A French department in the Newton Theological Seminary, according to Rev. J. N. Williams, would be a desideratum, and he urges his point well. There is a large and growing French population in the East and Northeast. Chicago itself has as many as 10,000 of this nationality, and we have been in receipt of communications from without, inquiring as to whether a missionary could not be provided for these, Paris might be better reached if a large number of young men were proposing to carry the gospel into its streets. Rochester has its German department, Morgan Park its Scandinavian; why not for Newton a French department?—[Chicago Standard.

UNION TEMPERANCE MEETING.

GEN. JOHN SWIFT'S LECTURE IN ASSOCIATES' HALL.

ATES' HALL.

A large and representative audience listened to Gen. Swift of the Traveller, in Associates' Hall last Sunday evening. So great was the crowd that extra seats were brought in and yet many had to stand. It was noted that a large number of young men were present, which was very gratifying, as it is this class that the committee wished especially to reach and interest.

Dr. Hovey presided and Dr. Clarke led in prayer. The Baptist choir rendered appropriate music.

prayer. The Baptist choir rendered appropriate music.

Rev. Mr. Holmes spoke, briefly giving an account of the movement of which the present meeting was the fruit. Although Newton voted "No license" and was a quiet, orderly city, the fact that the "No license" vote was slowly diminishing, and that intemperance on the public streets was gradually increasing, had determined a number of the citzens to attempt to arouse public interest in the subject in this ward. As the best means of accomplishing this end, a committee representing all the churches was appointed. This committee/decided that a series of lectures on the Temperance Question was the best method of accomplishing the desired end. Conferences were held with the several churches and it was agreed to hold union meetings on certain Sundays, the regular meetings of the societies being suspended. The committee was organized in the spring, but it had been impossible to hoid a meeting would be the beginning of serious throught in this village in regard to this important subject.

Gen. Swift's address was in his usual happy vein, and was enlivened by a number of telling anecdotes, which were much enjoyed. The speaker directed his attention to the saloon, its cost, and those who supported it with their money. The enormous cost he proved to be borne by the workingmen, those who can least afford to patronize the rum-shop. The solon what he should spend on his family. Therefore, those of us who may be able to spend money for liquors should deny ourselves for the sake of those who cannot afford to do it, for the sake of the example.

Gen. Swift's address was listened to attentively by the large andience present.

Gen. Swift's address was listened to attentively by the large audience present. The collection taken up to defray the expenses of the meeting was very generous. It is to be hoped that the committee may be fortunate enough to obtain as able and interesting speaker as Gen. Swift for the next lecture.

—Alderman John Ward shows a squash vine of wonderful growth. It came from a chance seed between two hills of corn, and was permitted to run out onto a carrot bed. The vine with its branches covers a space fully thirty feet square. One branch measures from the main root to the opposite end nearly fifty feet. It is bearing ten or twelve squashes.

NEWTON HIGHLANDS.

George W. Ferren of this village has en granted a pension.

-Mrs. E. H. Greenwood is spending a few days with Mr. C. P. Clark, Jr., and family at Buzzard's Bay.

—The schools commenced promptly Mon-day morning, without regard to the condi-tion of the school house.

The condition of the streets are bad at the present time time from want of those Spring repairs. When shall we see them completed?

—Miss Gertie M. Avery, who has been visiting for the past two months with her grandfather and grandmother at Ply-mouth, Mass., has returned.

—Schoolmaster Moore did right in refus-ing the keys of the Hyde school house to the workmen, who wished to work on Sun-day in placing the ventilators.

—The choir boys of St. Paul's church held a very pleasant social on Wednesday evening, at the residence of the choir mas-ter, Mr. F. A. Skelton. Supper was served during the evening.

—Mr. Walter L. Beal has taken the place of Mr. C. E. Thompson as switchman at the Cook street junction. Mr. Thompson has made an engagement at Mr. Crane's featury.

—Mr. and Mrs W. B. Lancaster, who were intending for the present to make their home with his sister, Mrs. C. P. Clark, Jr., on account of the illness of Mrs. Lancaster's father, Mr. Royal Winter, have taken up their residence there.

—The work on the road-bed in Fountain Square is progressing slowly. Is it from lack of funds? The sidewalks are being concreted, but the street crossings will be laid in the far future, from the present outlook.

-We noticed the pleasant face of Mrs. A. R. Ewing here last week, who is, with her R. Ewing here last week, who is, with her grand-son, spending a month with friends at Chestnut Hill. Her daughter-in-law will probably spend the winter months in Franklin, New Hampshire, making us a brief visit, however, before Thanksgiving.

—Rev. Mr. Phipps gave a lecture in the Congregational church last Sabbath evening, taking for his topic the Aposte John Eliot, giving an account of his labors among the Indians at Nonantum and at Natick. He was engaged many years in translating the new, first and then the old testament into the Indian tongue.

the new, first and then the old testament into the Indian tongue,

—It is understood that the lodge of Odd Fellows, located for many years past at the Upper Falls, have taken a lease of the hall in post office block for a term of ten years. The Knights of Honor, who have had their meetings there for a number of years have removed their furniture, and it will be refurnished as an Odd Fellows Lodge. Naturally enough it will take the name of Odd Fellows Hall.

—Mr. C. P. Clark, Jr., freight agent for the Pennsylvania line of railroads, with headquarters at 205 Washington street, Boston, has with his family taken a furnished house for a month or so at Buzzard's Bay, in order that he may look after the shipment of the cranberry crop, which is an important one in that vicinity. One company advertises for a thousand pickers, estimating their crop at ten thousand barrels.

—The lack of attention to city business by the city fathers, is fully demonstrated this year by the committee on public property, in neglecting to have the repairs done on the Hyde school house during vacation. On Saturday last the work of putting in ventilators commenced, but the school committee cleared the house of the loose pipes on Monday morning previous to the opening of the school, and also refused the mechanic's an entrance into the building until after four o'clock in the afternoon, or on Saturdays. Then again, the painters did not put in an appearance until Monday morning. This is not the first time that this thing has been worked at the Hyde school house, and it is no wonder that our people are indignant.

—On Friday evening of last week, Mr. H.
C. Hoyt fell down a flight of stone steps leading to the cellar of his house, and sustained some quite serious injures, not as bad however, as at first feared. His many friends hope that his confinement to the house may not be of long duration.

—The reopening of the Methodist church, which has been undergoing extensive repairs and improvements, will occur next Sunday, Sept. 18. The preaching service, at 10.30 a. m., will be conducted by the pastor, Rev. J. Peterson, assisted by Rev. G. A. Mudge. The Sunday School will be held at 12 m, and there will also be a special evening service. All are cordially invited to attend. —Challenge to Mr. William Lowens —Challenge to Mr. William Lowe—As Mr. Lowe has rated me as a first rate checker player, and as I am satisfied that I am a better player than he is, I take this way to prove it: I hereby challenge him to play me a match for the championship of Newton Upper Falls. Games to be played in public, and I will meet him any where to please him, except at his own home, to make arrangements. If he does not accept this, I shall claim the above title. Challenge to remain open until Oct. 1st, 1887. Trusting Mr. Lowe will accept. I am respectfully yours, Rogers Linton.

I am respectfully yours, Rogers Linton.

—Rev. Mr. Whitman, who has accepted a call from the Baptist church, was ordained on Tuesday evening of this week. The council met in the afternoon, representatives being present from many of the surrounding churches. In the evening the church was filled, many being strangers. Professor English delivered the ordination sermon, and the other parts of the services were ably performed by out-of-town cleryman, Rev. Mr. Peterson of the Methodist church being assigned the duty of extending a welcome to the candidate. The services were very interesting and impressive.

THE WALTHAM CARNIVAL.

A GRAND DISPLAY OF LANTERNS AND BOATS.

The Waltham River Carnival came off Thursday evening, and an enormous crowd was present. People came from all directions and the West Newton railroad is said to have carried nearly 1500 passengers, special cars being run every few minutes. The affair this year was entirely a Waltham one, and was a very creditable one, the banks of the river being brightly illumi-nated, and the 200 boats in the procession making a brilliant spectacle.

No fireworks were contracted for by the general committee, but private residents along the river bank provided more than enough in that line. On the south shore, from Moody street bridge to Cram's Island, about a mile, was a perfect blaze of fire and lights. Chinese, Japanese and star lanterns, colored fires and owl torches, arranged in every conceivable manner, hung from trees, bushes, trellises and frames built for the purpose on the lawns and walks running down to the river, while in the coves, on the islands, and at such portions of the river banks as were without other means of illumination, huge bonfires were lighted and shed a brilliant glare during the entire evening. The Moody street bridge and toot bridge were festooned with over 1200 bucket, star and Japanese lanterns. The displays by private citizens in many cases were of the most elaborate character, and many lawn parties were given as an adjunt to the carnival.

At 8 o'clock the starting signal—three whistles from the steamer White Swan—was given, and the line moved down the river from the foot bridge to a buoy near the Moody street bridge, thence to the bend, opposite the water works pumping station, around a buoy, and thence back to the buov at Moody street bridge, where there was a concert by the American Watch Company Band, and a grand massing of boats, the sight of a lifetime, took place. The number of small crafts was perhaps not as large as last year, but the distinct features were more numerous, several being most elaborate. Among these may be mentioned the Young Men's Association, who had a large barge artistically gotten up and designed by Mr. E. N. Quinn. This represented Columbus on the Santa Maria, Mr. Quinn personating Columbus, and his crew the Spanish sailors. It may be doubted whether Columbus really had electric lights, or had his boat towed by a steam tug. Next came the design by the Upper Charles Yacht Club, being a Spanish man-of-war—City of Madrid—of 1620, with men in costume. Roman candles were

ANNUAL FESTIVAL

OF THE NEWTON HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY ATCITY HALL.

City Hall presented a pretty sight on the occasion of this festival, Thursday evening. Four tables extending the length of the hall were laden with all manner of fruits and decked with flowers. Great lucious peaches and pears, handsome bunches of grapes and fine melons, in short all the choicest fruit of Newton that had been spread on the exhibition tables tempted the assembled company.

Along the front of the platform was arranged a bank of brilliant flowers forming a pretty screen for the table of the invited guests and speakers, which occupied the platform. At this table sat men well known in this city and in horticural affairs? Messrs. Leeson, L. H. Farley, G. L. Lovett, J. F. C. Hyde, Hon. E. W. Wood, and Revs. H. J. Patrick and Heman Lincoln.

Rev. Heman Lincoln invoked the divine blessing, after which the company addressed itself to the edibles. The boys from Mr. Allen's school served very acceptably as waiters.

The repast ended, Mr. J. R. Leeson, the alarm, he said, that Henry George was gathering sixty or seventy thousand followers, who hold that ownership of land is wrong. It is doubtful if Mr. George would find many adherents in Newton, especially among the gardeners. He was not sure but that the claim to ownership is use of land. The Lord intended land to be used and when, as in the case of the Parker House, labor and wealth has been put on to land the ownership was right and proper. There is no reason why Newton should not be beautiful—it has a charming country and good society. Every thing is propitions. Much has been done. It is doubtful if any one has such roses as President Leeson, and the two acres referred to in the President's address were owned by the President's address were owned by the President, who was too modest to say so. But much remains to be done. We lead the world in mechanical inventions, why can't we do the same in horticulture? It is necessary to put into horticulture the same amount of brains that are put into business and invention. This society, which gathers so many enthusiasts, should be the first society in the state and Newton the first city.

MR. J. F. C. HYDE, one of the oldest gardeners in Newton, was the next speaker. He addressed himself not to the farmers who had heard him patiently for thirty-three years, but to the young people and the business men. He wanted to take a text, and his text was "Let those see who have eyes to see." If money was the only thing worth seeking in life then time devoted to horticulture was wasted, but if we wanted to enjoy life how could it be better accomplished than by noticing and cultivating the beautiful? We should keep our eyes open and see the beauties around us. Mr. Hyde here spoke of several noticable examples of attention to nature. Recreation is obtained by change of work, he continued, and there is no better recreation for a business man when he returns after his day in Boston than gardening. Working with nature also had elevating effect on young men and women, tending to remove his word to the young of both sexes. Study nature and enjoy the pure delights of acquaintance with the beautiful.

REV. MR. PATRICK,
the next speaker, said he did not know much about horticulture, but came as a citizen to enjoy the display of fruit and flowers, and the remarks of those who did know about the subject. He had been struck by the beauty of England and saw that beautiful as Boston and vicinity now was much remained to be done. But England had the start of us some thousand years, and he was sure long ere that time elapsed that we should be her equal if not superior. Already the improvement was noticable and he was glad to see the Boston & Albany Railroad beautifying its road and stations. Here in Newton we are separated into villages, into sects and political parties. But in the Horticultural Society we meet on common ground with a common object of heautifying the city. Let us in large numbers gather here to enjoy the displays and encourage each other in beautifying our Garden City.

The President called on MR. W. C. STRONG,
"The Veteran," to favor the society, which he did briefly. Mr. Strong said that we deserved the title of Garden City, and that separated as the city is into villages with acres of unoccupied land between them we have a splendid opportunity to advance in horticulture. All over England local societies and great interest exist. The same should be the case in America. The citizens of Newton should attend the meetings of the society and consult on local matters, for this society is the only one common to all the villages.

President Leeson said the arrangement of the hall was due to Representative Wood and wife, and called upon him to make the concluding address. He was received with applause and said that he could not be as pleasant in his remarks as the preceding speakers. He had been disappointed that after the efforts that had been made, and the good exhibit provided, to see only from half to two dozen people present in the afternous. More interest should be pride erough in the ci

THE CITY GOVERNMENT.

The Board of Aldermen met Monday evening, Mayor Kimball presiding; present, Aldermen Hollis, Grant, Nickerson, Johnson. Pettee, Ward and Harwood.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.
Business from the board of aldermen was disposed of in concurrence.

A PETITION.

A petition for a license for a drum corps was received from Newton Highlands, signed by J. W. White, secretary, Louis Wiggan, president, and Fred Hopkins,

A street lamp on Hillside avenue was asked for by Stiles Frost.

Miner Robinson asked permission to extend a wire through Otis street, Hillside avenue and Alpine street; referred to the re department committee.

D. S. Farnham asked for a street lamp on Centre street, between Walnut and Boylston streets.

Chas. F. Rogers asked that he be relieved of the surface water which flows down of the surface water which nows down Sargent street every spring and across his driveway and land, to his great annoyance and injury. Such relief is now possible, since the construction of the main drain on Hyde avenue, as that drain could be made to carry off the surface water, and the opening on Sargent street closed. Referred to Highway committee.

Richard J. Morrissey, for six year's hoseman of Steamer 1, asked for an investiga-tion, and charged that Chief Bixby had charged him on September 10th with being a shirk and unfaithful to duty, in the pres-ence of several witnesses. He claimed ence of several witnesses. He claimed that the charge was false and had no foun-dation, and that such language was unbe-coming in an officer. He asked the board to investigate and find out the truth of the matter, and make such a report as the circumstances would warrent. The petition was referred to the fire department

A VALUABLE GIFT.

A letter was received from Hon. John C. Park, conveying to the city certain engravings, law books and furnishings now in the Judge's room at the City Hall, belonging to him, to be retained as the property of the city in the Judge's office. The letter was referred to the public property committee with instructions to prepare a suitable recognition of the gift, and submitit for the approval of the board.

O'LEARY'S BARN.

Timothy O'Leary's barn, which has been before the board for some months, again came up, by the presentation of a petition from Mr. O'Leary, rehearsing the circumstances of the case and asking for the payment of $150 damages, for the loss occasioned by the Board of Health refusing to allow him to use it. On the motion of Alderman Johnson the petition was referred to the Board of Health.

NEW HOUSES.

Alderman Johnson presented six notifications of intentions to build dwelling houses: Higgins and Nickerson, house 34 by 76, corner of Lowell and Washington streets; V. Haffermehl, house 30 by 32, Station street, Ward 6; F. L. Thayer, 45 by 68, Waltham, corner of River street, Ward 3; H. B. Edmunds, 55 by 40, on Lincoln street, Ward 5; J. A. Flanagan, 51 by 42, corner of Watertown street and Broadway, Ward 2; Geo. Mills, 33 by 34, Beacon street, Ward 6.

Applications for licenses to build stables were received from E. F. Stevens, Marshall street, Ward 6; H. B. Edmands, Lincoln street.

The petitions of Leonard Hurd, F. A. Sylvester, Geo. Fife and C. H. Newhall, for licenses to build stables, were granted.

D. S. Farnham was granted a license to use the old Thornton barn, on Winchester street, Newton Highlands, for a livery stable.

ELECTRIC LIGHT ORDINANCES.

Mayor Kimball brought up the alleged violation of the ordinances, by the Electric Light Company, in putting up their wires, and said that State Inspector Brophy of the Insurance exchange had reported that the wires were all right according to the rules of the exchange, as was stated in last wesk's Graphic. It was recommended that the ordinances be changed to accord with the recent devolopements in electric machinery. achinery. Alderman Grant said that the ordinances Anterman (rank said that the ordinances were all right at the time they were drawn, as they were founded on rules drawn by Mr. Brophy himself. There were a number of other ordinances that could not be enforced, and the committee had been at work on a building ordinance, which they were nearly ready to report.

WATER PIPES.

Aldern a r Pettee reported an order, authorizing the Water Board to contract for main water pipes, at a cost not to exceed $20,000, and to be delivered in 1888, and the amount to be charged to the water construction account. The order was passed.

WATER BONDS

WATER BONDS.

Aldermon Grant presented an order, authorizing the city treasurer to sell 4 per cent bonds to the amount of $19,000, the proceeds to be applied to the water construction account. Mr. Grant said that the water department had overdrawn its approbation some $50,000 or $60,000, and it would be better to dispose of these $19,000 in water bonds, which the city held, than to borrow money at the present high rate of interest and stringent condition of the money market. The bonds were not wanted for the sinking fund, and could be disposed of at a slight premium. The order was passed.

POLLING PLACES.

Alderman Pettee reported an order which was passed, authorizing the fitting up of the polling places for the state and city elections, which had been already des-

MORSE FIELD DRAINAGE.

Alderman Nickerson moved that the order, appropriating $11.300 for the drainage of Morse field, provided that Watertown appropriated $8,475 for the work before October first, be rescinded, as no action had been taken by Watertown, and the order failed to reach them until August.

This caused considerable discussion;

Alderman Nickerson stated that at a conference between the officers representing the two cities, the engineers were ordered to see if the cost could not be cut down, and they had agreed finally unon a slightly different apportionment, by cutting off the ends of the drains and leaving the man-holes out. The Highway committee had thought Newton should keep the same amount, and the apportionment was six tenths for Newton and four tenths for Watertown.

The order was rescinded, and Alderman Nickerson presented an order authorizing the Highway committee to co-operate with the authorities of Watertown in constructing a system of drainage, provided Watertown should bear four tenths of the expense, and the expense to be borne by Newton should not exceed $11,300, the amount to be charged to the appropriation for 1888.

Alderman Ward said he had had a talk with a man living in the district, and he had said that the houses troubled with water in their cellars were built in a hollow where the water had always stood every spring, and the people that had built there knew it. He did not believe that people should build houses in such places and then expect the city to drain them without their paying a part, at least, of the expense.

Alderman Nickerson said that the city outtheir paying a part, at least, of the expense.

Alderman Nickerson said that the city did not propose to drain the land but only the streets; the water stood in the streets every spring, and some of them were impassable. The city owed a certain duty in the matter, but possibly the residents could be made to bear a portion of the expense.

passable. The city owed a certain duty in the matter, but possibly the residents could be made to bear a portion of the expense.

Alderman Grant said that the proportion seemed to be changed, and Newton would have to pay a larger share of the work than by the first order.

Alderman Nickerson said that the engineer employed by Watertown had figured very closely, but the committee had thought best to stick to the original amount, as it was not certain how much cost of the work if each town did the work separately, and then had apportioned the cost of the work if each town did the work separately, and then had apportioned the amount on that basis, Newton would have to build through Watertown to dispose of the wacer, and therefore it was proper that we should bear most of the expense. Some $4,000 would be saved by both co-operating.

Alderman Ward said he believed it was a wrong principle to drain such land as this without the property owners bearing part of the expense. Only three or four houses were troubled with water in their cellars, and the drain was to benefit them.

Alderman Harwood said that if Alderman Ward had visited the district last spring he would have seen that the drain would benefit the whole district, including Hovey, Emerson, Boyd and other streets. All the residents were afflicted and Hovey street was impassable. The work ought to be done at once, and it would benefit the whole district.

Alderman Pettee said it was claimed that the blasting of Boyd ledge by the city had increased the trouble, and therefore that the residents had a good claim against the city. As it was now we forced Water-town to take our water, and it was only proper that Newton should bear the greater portion of the expense. It was not a scheme to drain private grounds, but to take away water from the streets.

A vote was then taken by yeas and nays and all voted yeas.

Alderman Grant presented an order appropriating $65,000 for the city expenses during October.

REMINISCENCES OF OLD DAYS WITH NEW-TON FIREMEN.

The many veteran firemen of this city who witnessed the parade and trials of the hand fire engines of the Boston Veteran Firemen's association and their visiting brethren last Monday, undoubtedly had brought back to their memories the trial of three of Newton's old hand engines at Jackson's Brook, Newtonville, Saturday, August 28th, 1858. At that time and place there assembled the West Newton (afterwards "Triton") engine Co. No. 3, Rodney M. Lucas, foreman; Nonantum, No. 5, Orrin Whipple, foreman; Eagle No. 6, J. E. Cousens, foreman, to test the qualities of their machines and see which one of the three was the best. All of them were of exactly the same size and pattern, and alike equally well manned. The test was to fill a 1,200 gallon tank through 250 feetof hose. The judges were Wm. Houghton for No. 3; Captain C. H. Champnew, foreman of Butcher Boy No. 1 of Brighton (now foreman of engine 29) for No. 5; Henry J. Toombs for No. 6; F. W. Bacon and C. W. Brackett at large. Bond's Cornet Band of Boston furnished music for the occasion, and inspired with lively music the quick working of the brakes. The trials resulted as follows: No. 5 in six minutes and 40 seconds; No. 6 in six minutes and 40 seconds.

onds; No. 3's time was not officially stated there being a difference of opinion, but subsequently it was rendered, giving them first honors of the trials. The entire assemblage of firemen and guests after the trial was finished, marched to the West Newton Hotel, where a dinner was partaken of, followed by postprandial exercises, T. W. Rice presiding, and F. W. Barcon officiating as toast master. Among those responding were Joseph Saunders of Butcher Boy No. 1 of Brighton; Foreman Cousens of Neptune No. 3 of Waltham; Foreman Sanger of Torrent No. 1, Watertown, and several others.

The decision of the judges in giving the honors to No. 3, and their likewise unsatisfactory decisions all around, caused the following self-explanatory challenge to be issued:

CHALLENGE.

To West Newton Engine Co. No. 3:

you soon.

Per order of Company,
E. H. Toomas, Secretary.

Newton Centre, Sept. 3, 1858.

CHALLENGE ACCEPTED. To Eagle Engine Co. No. 6, Newton Cen-

To Eagle Engine Co. No. 6, Newton Centre:
The officers and members of West Newton Engine Co. No. 3, having received a challenge to meet you for a repetition of our late trial, hereby accept the same. Due notice of the arrangements will be given by our committee.

SAMUEL WELLS, Clerk.
West Newton, Sept. 8th. 1858.
The trial took place Wednesday. Sept. 15th, the tank being of 750 gallons capacity and was filled by No. 6 in six minutes and twenty-seven and one-half seconds; by No. 3 in six minutes and thirty-nine seconds. The tub and tub contest resulted at the end of three minutes in No. 3 lowering her water nine inches, and gaining on No. 6, six and one-half inches, thus giving a victory to each company. A horizontal stream was then thrown, No. 3 recording 181 feet and No. 6 179 feet and seven inches. The best of good feeling prevailed throughout these trials, and many firemen from the surrounding departments were present. Sept. 5th, 1857, No. 3 and Mechanic No. 4, attended the Worcester muster, where there were 54 engines which played a perpendicular stream through 400 feet of hose. No. 3 stood the 37th on the list with a record of 132 feet and No. 4 stood 44th, with a record of 125 feet. The great-est record made there was 180 feet and the lowest 110 feet. Relief No. 2 of Watertonn was also present, and stood 28th with 144 feet.

Sept. 15th, 1859, No. 3 attended the Manchester. N. H., muster, and stood 42 in a list of 52 companies, with a record of 106 feet, the lowest 93. Rélief No. 2 of Waterton stood 16th on the list, with 142 feet, Boyden No. 2 of Waltham the 26th, with 136 feet and Torrent No. 1 of Waterton 41st, with 115 feet. Eagle No. 6 was Newton's best engine on the stream, and Mechanic No. 4 on passing water.

BOSTON THEATRES.

Courad the Corsair still treads the boards at the Hollis Street, and large and delighted audiences gather to witness the performance audiences gather to witness the performance of Rice's Burlesque. The magnificent curtains, which were specially imported from Paris will be the admiration of the ladies as long as this gorgeous production adorns the stage of this pretty theatre. The public shows its appreciation of the elegant costumes, splendid scenic effects and bright music by crowding the house to its fullest capacity. Every detail is carefully looked after and the whole effect is the most elegant picture ever represented on a Boston stage. "The Corsair" will continue to be the attraction at the Hollis Street until further notice.

ERMINIE.

The production of "Erminie" at the Globe Theatre this week fulfills the high expectations which had been raised by the phenomenal success at the New York Casino. Pauline Hall is still the successful Erminie and Miss Marie Jansen Gavotte. There have been some changes in the cast, which is well taken by this company. One no longer is surprised at the long run this opera enjoyed in New York. The bright and fascinating airs; the admirable humor and pretty scenes fully account for its popularity. It has had crowded houses all the week, and will continue the attraction at the Globe until further notice.

"A RUN OF LUCK."

"A RUN OF LUCK."

At the Boston Theatre "A Run of Luck" will be continued until further notice. This play has won favorable comment from the critics and large audiences attest its popularity with the public. It is produced with care and elaborate scenic effects. The scene of an English race track is very realistic and gives one a very good idea of the arrangement of one of the most popular of English resorts.

"JIM THE PENMAN."

At the Park Theatre "Jim the Penman" will continue this week also. The success will continue this week also. The success of this play has been so great that Manager Palmer's intention to produce Elaine and A Foregone Conclusion, during the last weeks of the engagement may be abandoned until the company's return engagement. The large audiences would seem to point to this program as the one most agreeable to the public. There are hundreds who have not witnessed this fine drama, who will be glad of the opportunity thus offered.

In conversation with a friend recently Ir. Nat Goodwin, the comedian, said he Mr. Nat Goodwin, the comedian, said he had been behind the scenes and inspected the scenery for the production of Faust by Mr. Henry Irving and his company. The arrangements, said Mr. Goodwin, were very elaborate and complete, and the production would probably be the most magnificent ever put on the starc. There were many novelties, such as electricity flashing from the sword of Faust. One scene cost $20,000 to produce. Mr. Goodwin said he considered Mr. Irving the greatest actor of our times.

Mr. Irving will open his American tour at the Star Theatre, New York, on Oct. 24. The cellar of this theatre is being enlarged to accommodate the scenery he will bring with him. The Boston Theatre is the only one that will not have to be altered to accommodate this great production.

W. H. A.

How to Pass One Autumn Day.

Newton has good roads. So has Walham, Watertown, Weston, and many other towns with names beginning with W. Aristocrats who own horses and carriages Aristocrats who own horses and carriages galore, may ask, "Who does not know that?" But there are many who are outside the ranks of the equine artistocracy, who know nothing about it except from hearsay. The writer belongs to the class who can truthfully reply to the assessor's queries, "Horse? cow? dog?" with "No, not any." She occasionally indulges in a foot ride. But that sort of locomotion is not popular with the average Yaukee, despite popular with the average Yaukee, despite the pedestrianic examples of Dickens, our own Thoreau, S. A. Drake and others. Sweat, heat, dust. limp collars and wrist-bands, and sore feet are generally secured if nothing else is.

She determined a few days since to in-dulge in a ride behind a horse. In a bland, breezy September morning, two teams, one containing four giddy young girls from the West, and the one in the lead containing the writer and another venerable lady, as guides and cicerones to the giddy ones behind, started for the Concord Fight. Our route lay through Newton, Waitham, Bemont and Lexington to Concord village. At Arlington or East Lexington we struck the advanced convention received. the old road over which marched Gage's grenadiers, not far from Munroe's Hill, where Percy planted a battery to overawe the town, after he had met the scorched where Percy planted a battery to overawe the town, after he had met the scorched and bleeding detachment of Smith. The road from here to Concord is classic every foot of the way. Yet, how few have traversed it, or even have a definite idea of where it is. Historic houses and sites, all inscribed, are numerous in Lexington, and are well known. But the pleasant, hilly old road leading thence up to Concord town, is not so well known. To us it seemed a dim tradition. The first point marked above Lexington is the well where Samuel Maynard, the rebel, met an armed British soldier. The red coat raised his muske and said, "You are a dead man." "So are you," replied the stout-hearted rebel. Both fired at once, and both died, the soldier first. Next comes Fiske's Bluff, a pile of crags at a bend of the road, now as then covered with a growth of stunted trees and bushes. Behind these rocks and bushes the grenadiers tried to rally. They made a determined effort, but were soon driven forth in a mad flight by the stings of the enraged Yankee hornets. Here Col. Smith was wounded in the leg. Then comes Merriam's corner, where the Bedford road joins that from Boston. 'Here stands the old Merriam house and Larn, the house about as it was during the fight. Behind this house, baro, and the near fences and trees, lay in ambush Major Buttrick's men, who had crossed the fields after the fight at the North Bridge, and reached the corner ahead of the British, and the men of Reading under Brooks, afterward Governor Brooks, who had come down the Bedford road. The old square house still bears the marks of British bullets, and those who fired them begun to realize that the danger ahead was increasing with each step of their advance. There was a hot skirmish here, and some dozen or fifteen of skirmish here, and some dozen or fifteen of the regulars were peppered and mustered out. The patriotic blood of the old ladies was stirred. "What a kindergarten school or objectlesson in history and love of country, this would be for young people" said one to the other. "They must be thrilled." A shrick of laughter from the wild Western girls just behind interrupted the remark, and seemed to damp the entusiasm of the speaker, but a moment after the four began to sing the "Sword of Bunker Hill." "Yes, I was right," resumed the speaker, "If such mad caps as those are at all impressed, most children, especially the boys, would be thrilled to the very core with patriotic impulses. Every parent who has boys in school should come here and take them along."

thrilled to the very core with patriotic impulses. Every perent who has boys in school should come here and take them along."

So up the main street of the lovely old town aunt Eliza and anut Henley moralized, and the Western hoydens sang and laughed. Past the "Wayside," from the front of which Hawthorne's evergreens have vanished; past Alcott's, and the little sweltering looking building under the bank, where meets his school of Philosophy. Past his friend Emerson's, the old Wright tavern, where Major Pitcairn stirred the brandy with bloody finger on that fateful morn. Down Monument street to North Bridge by the "Old Manse," where on a tree by the entrance is a sign forbidding intrusion. It was different ten years ago, when Annt Henley, on her first visit to Concord, asked a pleasant faced lady where the Old Manse was. The pleasant faced lady was the owner, and she cordially invited the questioner within. But some visitors proved to be Goths and Vandals, and the many suffer for the sins of the few.

Om party turn down Waltham street, where at the distance of a mile, Lake Walden is reached, at the opposite end from the ill smelling sheds and plenie grounds of the Fitchburg Italiroad. Here, beneath the shade of Emerson's grand old trees wadine, the horses on oats and the giddy girs on pickled olives.

On the way back the party tarry at the house containing the antiquarian collection of C. E. Davis, who began to pick up old relics at the age of thirteen. He has everything, from the "Sword of Bunker Hill," the clock of Peter Bulkley, nearly 300 years old, a grenadier's musket, old beds, old crockery, old pewter, down to a specimen of the mephitis Americana, which, illed with patriotic purpose and perfume, is supposed to have done its part to make 10th of April, 1775, interesting to the invading soldiery. Mir. Davis is a relative of our own centenarian, and would like to change his collection to Newton, so he says.

On reaching home the party unanimously voted that as much real pleasure had been packed between the

Vigor and Vitality

Are quickly given to every part of the body by Hood's Sarsaparilla. That tired feeling is entirely overcome. The blood is purified, enriched, and vitalized, and carries health instead of disease to every organ. The stomach is toned and strengthened, the appetite restored. The kidneys and liver are roused and invigorated. The brain is refreshed, the mind made clear and ready for work. Try it.

Do not be induced to sake some other preparation when you call for Hood's Sarsaparilla. Be sure to get Hood's, which is peculiar.

When symptoms of mataria appear, in any form, take Ayer's Ague Cure. It will prevent a development of the germs of disease, and eradicate them from the system. A cure is warranted in every in stance.

Chaplain Hall, of the Albany Penitentiary, writes as follows of the cure of his wife of Nervous Dyspepsia and Prostration, and Malaria:

"Under the Kasskine treatment all the dyspeptic symptoms showed instant improvement, and the daily fever grew less and soon ceased altogether, side by side these diseases vanished, as side by side they had tortured their victim for ten years—the Dyspepsia alone having, as I have said, existed for twenty years. Her appetite improved from week to week until she could eat and digest the average food that any well person takes, without any suffering or inconvenience. With renewed assimilation of tood came, of course, a steady increase in flesh, until she now looks like her original self. She still takes Kaskine cecasionally, but with no real need of it, for she is well. I consider this result a scientific miracle, and the "New Quinine" is entitled to the credit of it, for from the time she begrun with Kaskine, she used no other medicine whatever."

grin with Kaskine, she used no other medicine whatever."
Under date of December, 1886, Mr. David J. Norton, of Albany, N. V., writes of his care of chronic Intermittent Maharial Fever:
"Now I come to the real cure and to the end of Maskine. I was struck with its being called the new quinine" and the high claims made for it. I didn't believe a syllable of them. Neither would you—in my place. Still there was a chance, and to a chronically sick man any change is worth taking, "It can't hart me," I said; "I'll try it." I did try it. To my astonishment and gratification I soon began to improve. Clearly I was getting better. As I continued with Kaskine I seemed to feel the malaria going out of me and health coming back. It was a genuine, scientific healing—not one poison temporarily disguising another. The uric acid with which my system was charged was presently expelled, and my stiffened joints became plant as before I was ever in the Michigan fogs and miasmas. The indigestion also disappeared, my lowels grow regular, my head clear, my nerves steady, and restful sleep returned. I am now permanently well; have never had any return of malaria—nor any sign of it. Results so real cannot be disputed, and I may fairly attribute them to Kaskine, because, after beginning with it, I took no other medicine."

We quote from Mr. C. I. Titus' account of the re-

We, quote from Mr. C. I. Titus' account of the recovery of his wife from General Debility and Malaria:

"In the summer of 1886 a friend who had experienced great and happy relief from Kaskine—the New Quinine—said to me, "Why don't you try itfor Mrs. Titus?" "I wili," I replied, I can hardly convey to you in words the bleasure and surprise we felt at the change for the better wrought by that efficient and potent medicine. It came as the summer dawn comes, stealing noislessly upon cursight. The disease was rebuked as from a Power that speaks by authority; the system gave clear sight. The disease was rebuked as from a Power that speaks by authority; the system gave clear signs of the approach of health; the appetite improved; food was more rapidly assimilated, and Nature proceeded to rebuild the wasted tissues, and to heal the hurt vitality. A delicate, nervous or ganization righted itself; the fires of fever went out as Kaskine destroyed the germs which fed them; the digestive process became more active and natural, and all this was accomplished so rapidly that the waste of over six years was virtually repaired in six months!"

As a people we live fast. We are overworked and

As a people we live fast. We are overworked and overworried, so that old age comes upon us while we are yet young in years. We pass sleepless nights, we are yet young in years. We pass sleepless nights, or with sleep that gives no rest. This is nervous exhaustion. We need a tonic that will restore the brain and nervous system to its natural condition, bringing back youth and vigor. The new quinine, called Kaskine, is the most powerful tonic known, and yet it can be borne by the most delicate stomach, and is admirably adapted to feeble and debilitated females. It removes that tired and depressed feeling, gives a good appetite, makes us feel strong and healthy, and imparts refreshing sleep to the languid and weary.

I have oeen a great sufferer from catarrh for over ten years; had it very bad, could hardly breathe. Some nights I could not sleep—had to walk the floor. I purchased Ely's Cream Baltu and an using tired soveral friends to use it, and with happy realist in every case. It is the one medicine above all others made to cure catarrh, and it is worth its weight in gold. I thank God I have found a remedy I can use with safety and that does all that is claimed for it. Entered at Newton P. O. as Second Class Matter THE STREET RAILWAY HEARING

Next Monday evening comes the public hearing on the Street Railroad charter before the board of Aldermen, and an interesting discussion may be expected, unless all the opposition to the road has died out. A year ago the objections were based mainly on the supposition that a horse railroad was contemplated, but owing to the recent experiments and developments of electric motors, and the general understanding that electricity is to be the motive power, the objectors will now be those who do not wish any kind of a street railway. The Malden road has recently been constructed with the same kind of rail that is to be used by the Newton company, and a large number of citizens have inspected it, and driven across the rails to see just how much of an obstruction a road here would prove. Carriage wheels do not catch in the rails, except in the curves, which are about as destructive to carriage wheels as any-thing that could be invented, but the straight rails are perfectly safe.

Of course any kind of a railroad in the public streets is a nuisance to people who drive along the road, but the Highway Committee have been anxious to do everything in their power to make the road here no more of a nuisance than is actually necessary. The rails and paying are to be of the best character, and the streets through which the road is to run comprise only a small portion of the streets of the

with the rapid growth of the city a street railroad has become almost a necessity to that portion of the citizens who do not keep conveyances of their own.

THE list of heavy tax-payers, as published, does not represent all who pay over $500, as a large number pay taxes in sev-eral wards, and although in each ward the amount may fall below that limit, the sum of what is paid in all the wards is much in excess of that sum. In this way some of the heaviest tax-payers were not mentioned in the list, as for instance Mr. Moses G. Crane of Ward 5, who pays a tax bill of $851.25, and several others who pay large amounts. To have made the list absolutely correct the tax books should have been gone over carefully, and the amounts added and published without regard to wards. This would have entailed a great deal of time and labor, but it is only in such a way that a fair idea of the heavy tax-payers of the city could have been given.

Ir any one had told the most sanguine projector of the Hospital that in less than eighteen months from the time of its opening over one hundred and twenty-five pa-tients would be treated, they would have regarded it as visionary. And yet this is really the case. Not only have that num-ber been under treatment, but the great majority of them have been sent away restored to health. Some of the cases have been very severe indeed, so severe that they could not have recovered in their own homes. Especially is this the case with some of the accident and typhoid patients. Newton has reason to be proud of its Hospital, and it should generously sustain it.

MR. W. E. PLUMMER and Mr. Thomas Drew led what was called "The civil service reform crowd from Newton," at the Worcester convention, and made a brave but hopeless fight for Mayor Russell of Cambridge, who would have made an ex-cellent candidate. The spoilsmen were in a great majority, however, and Congressman Lovering was nominated. The ticket will secure no mugwump votes, and evidently was not chosen for that purpose. The Republican party will have an easy task be-fore it this fall.

It is hardly a secret that Captain Benyon will probably be the unlitary instruc-tor at the High School, and an admirable selection it will be. One of the High School committee has a letter from Col. Bancroft, in which Captain Benyon is spoken of as one of the most competent officers in the regiment, both for his knowledge of miliar/tactics and his tact and discretion. The latter qualities are necessary to a military instructor. Cap-tain Benyon has just been appointed adjutant by Col. Baneroft.

THE WALTHAM FREE PRESS is all stirred up over the suggestion of one of our correspondents that the Newton people were rather ungraciously treated at last year's carnival, and takes half a column to prove that the carnival was a Waltham idea from the very inception, and that Newton never really had anything to do with them, although they kindly allowed the Newton boat club to take part one or two years. The Free Press is sometimes a very amus

HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

ANNUAL EXHIBITION HELD AT CITY HALL.

The 33rd annual exhibition of the Newton Horticultural Society was held this week at City Hall, beginning on Tuesday and closing on Thursday evening with the annual festival.

The exhibit of fruits, flowers and vege-The exhibit of truits, nowers and vege-tables, although smaller than at some pre-vious exhibitions, was a very attractive one, and showed what Newton can do in the way of gardening. Four long tables run-ning lengthways of the hall contained the fruits and vegetables, while the stage was covered with flowers and foliage, presenting a very attractive sight. E. Fewkes & Son had a beautiful display of dahlias, of many gorgeous colors and varieties, while the floral designs of Mrs. M. T. Goddard attracted about each attention. L. H. attracted about equal attention. L. H. Farlow had a fine collection of cut flowers, and Severance Burrage a large exhibit of ration had a line collection of cut nowers, and Severance Burrage a large exhibit of wild flowers and ferns. Mr. Henry Ross contributed a large collection of greenhouse plants, and W. C. Strong an interesting variety of evergreens of many varieties. A. H. Fewkes of Newton Highlands had two curious plants, one called the telegraph plant, a member of the clover family from Bengal, and the Venus fly trap.

In the vegetable department John Ward, George D. Dix, C. A. Kingsbury, C. N. Brackett, Mrs. M. T. Goddard and Willard Marcy were among the largest exhibitors, while Geo. L. Lovett, C. A. Kingsbury, C. N. Brackett, J. F. C. Hyde, N. S. King, Mrs. Goddard, Geo. S. Harwood, E. W. Wood and John Ward had many varieties of fruits. John Ward's peaches and E. W. Wood's grapes called out much admiration for their beauty, while of pears and apples there was an almost endless variety.

The attendance was hardly as large as on former years, for some reason, probably because the exhibition was not widely enough advertised.

—On Friday evening, Sept. 16th, the opening lecture at the Seminary was given by Col. Homer B. Sprague, Principal of the Girls' High and Normal School, Boston. The subject was John Milton, a splendid theme, handled in a masterly manner. The speaker emphasised the fact that while Milton was poet, statesman, scholar, and what not, still his chosen vocation, in which he achieved great success during many years, was that of a teacher. church?" Rev. Fayette Nichols.

—The third in the series of Newton Boat Club concert dances, was given last Saturday evening at the club house. It was one of the most successful gatherings of the scason, many friends of the club being present as well as members. Cambridge, Boston, and Newton were well represented. The music furnished by Robinson's Orchestra was uniformly good, although the dancers would have been better pleased with shorter pauses. Though the evenings are getting too cool for much boating, these gatherings afford opportunity still for social meeting of club members and their friends, who show their appreciation by the good attendance. The last of the series will be given September 24th.

School Suffrage Meeting.

Mrs. Henry W. Wellington presided at a small but interesting meeting at Eliot Lower Hall Wednesday afternoon. The president said that although there were not so many present as she had hoped to see, yet she saw before her women in earnest to deal with great public and moral interests. We are all interested in our children, but we fail in our duty if we do not take a personal interest in the schools. The schools are good, but not so good but what they might be better. The mothers are too apt to put everything upon the teacher.

The teacher needs and appreciates the help and personal acquaintance with the mother in order to do the best by the child. Teachers had said to her that this lack of acquaintance with the mothers was a great drawback to successful work. We must lay aside our feelings of delicacy, and in addition to visiting the schools take an active part in the election of school officers. We should leave this meeting with the determination to do something to bring the home and the school nearer to each other. Mrs. Claffin of Quincy addressed the meeting at some length. Her remarks were very interesting, and were listened to attentively. After referring to the history of the movement, the speaker passed to a consideration of the arguments which are used against women using the privileges accorded them, the causes of the non use of the ballot, and the reasons why such a use is the duty of every woman. Women should vote in order to benefit the children, to elevate other women, and to benefit the country by making the rising generation better citizens. It is not unwomanly to vote; on the contrary, the only dignified and self-respecting place to occupy is that of using the rights now granted.

By request, Col. Kingsbury was present, and after encouraging the ladies in their work, made it clear what steps were necessary to obtain the franchise. Any woman who pays a personal or real estate tax, may, by appearing before the registrars of voters and complying with the few requirements of the law, be registered and thus be able to vote. Notice of the times and places where the registrations may be made will be given, and copies of the laws and regulations concerning this matter will soon be ready for distribution to all who apply to the Registrars of Voters, City Hall. Those who are not assessed a personal or real estate tax can not register for this election, the term for the assessment of poll taxes having expired on September 15.

Col. Kingsbury urged the women to attend the caucuse or have delegates attend of poll taxes having expired on September 15.

Col. Kingsbury urged the women to attend the caucuses or have delegates attend for them. It is in the primaries that the work is done, the direction of public opinion determined. He felt sure the ladies would meet with a courteous reception and their wishes would be carefully considered.

The discussion, as to what definite action should be taken, became general, it finally being decided to appoint a committee to take steps to get the women to register, influence the caucuses, and vote.

Letters expressing regret at not being able to attend were read from Rev. Wolcott Calking, Mr. Walton and Judge Pitman.

It is to be hoped that these meetings may arouse the women of Newton to a sense of their duty as citizens, and that next December will see a large delegation of women at the polls. Much good to the schools might result from such action. All who can vote at the coming city election at Newton tile.

SHAKESPEARE'S HOME.

WHAT ONE SEES AT STRATFOR D-ON-AVON THE SHAKESPEARE MYTH.

Mr. R. A. Ballou of Auburndale, now in England, is writing home a series of letters to his family, some of which are of general interest. One, on the home of Shakespeare, meterest. One, on the holder of shakespears, we are permitted to publish, and are confident it will be entertaining reading, especially to the many, who, by their study of English literature, have become interested in anything reliable which relates to the great dramatist.

I must give you an account of my visit to the home and tomb of Shakespeare. Probably the young people, especially, will enjoy it, as they have been to some extent Shakesperian readers for the last year or two. Stratford, or "Stratford upon Avon," as it is generally called, is about twenty miles from Birmingham, but it is easily reached from here by cars of the twenty miles from Birmingham, but it is easily reached from here by cars of the Great Western Railway. Having a leisure day I went alone, arriving at the station there about eleven o'clock. The town is one of six or eight thousand inhabitants, and is a centre for trade from a considerable stretch of country around. Some of the buildings are old, but they are nicely kept. There are a good many compara-tively new buildings, for since the Shakespeare property was purchased by sub-scription and put in trust for the nation, that is for everybody, the great flow of visitors to this shrine has given the place an air of genuine prosperity. One of the striking features of the town is that, on all the principal streets, at least, every build-ing, however old, appears to be in perfect repair and the streets are in perfect condi tion, and everything is as clean and inviting as the utmost pains-taking could make it.

I walked from the station into the lage, about a third of a mile, and as I en-tered the principal square I noticed a very handsome stone structure in process of erection in the centre of the open space, which, on inquiry, I learned was the a memorial fountain presented to the town by Mr. Geo. W. Childs of the Philadelphia Ledger. It is now about half up, and from the work already done I judge it must be a very fine one. Causing it to be erected this Jubilee year, he makes it at once a memorial of Shakespeare and a tribute of memorial of Shakespeare and a tribute of honor to the Queen. Americans take a great interest in Stratford, and probably no more genuine respect is paid to the memory of the great poet than is paid by them. I was told that some years as many as twelve to fourteen thousand American names are entered in the memorial books. I think this is an exaggeration, but that nearly all Americans go there who can is very obvious.

The object of chief interest to tourists The object of chief interest to tourists are of course those connected with the life and memories of Shakespeare. These are to be found chiefly in four separate places, the house in which he was born, the New Place, as it is called, where he bought a house for himself in which he lived and died, the Anne Hathaway Cottage where lived the girl he married, and who, although eight years his senior, outlived him seven years more, and the church—Holy Trinity Church, where he attended service when at home, and in which he was buried.

who, although eight years his senior, outlived him seven years more, and the church
—Holy Trinity Church, where he attended service when at home, and in which he was buried.

Shakespeare, as you know, was born in 1564, Milton, Bacon, Cromwell, Leicester, and Queen Elizabeth were among his contemporaries. His father, John Shakespeare, was a tradesman an alderman of the town, and a man of considerable property and importance. He owned the house in which his world-renowned son was born, and although it is not a very showy one now, it was then a good class house, and there is nothing to show that the family were not well situated in life and highly respectable.

By examining the photographs I send, you will see wide dark lines up and down and across the building both front and end and side, marking it off into squares. These dark lines are the solid oak timbers built into the house when it was made. The spaces between the timbers are filled in with stones and mortar and are nicely plastered on the surface both outside and inside. The Anne Hathaway Cottage and other houses of the period were built in the same way. Boar swere probably scarce and good bricks were expensive, so these stont oak timbers, thick enough to go through and show on the inside just as they do outside, were tramed together, and fastened with pips, two in each mortised joint, the heads of which still stick out about half an inch, and the spaces between the timbers were filled up with stones or gravel, held together with good mortar, nicely smoothed on both outside and inside surfaces, and thus the timbers gave strength to the building and the filling between the warmth, and both together the finish outside and in. The photographs don't show the very old look of the building. These oak timbers are black with age and weather worn, yet are amostly sound, and will perhaps serve effectually another four or five hundred years.

Inside, the kitchen floor is of stone, the original stone first used there, according to upon the wall, where it continually remains, to give the picture an advantageous position. This is called the best portrait extant of the poot, but the name of the artist who painted it is not known. There are many relies in the various rooms, many books, scores of pictures and busts of Shakespeare and of Garrick and others, old manuscripts, old documents signed by various members of the family, autographs, fac-similies of the signatures to Shakespeare's will (the will itself is preserved elsewhere), early editions of his plays, one published in 1623, only seven years after his death, and others enlarged and improved, following on a few years later, showing that his plays were held in esteem by those who lived in his time. There is here also a new folio edition of Shakespeare, edited by J. O. Halliwell, the most noted Shakespeare, regarded here as the best, together with about eighty 12 mo. volumes of Halliwell's notes in manuscript, neatly bound and in a locked case by themselves, not to be given to the public till after his death. These articles and relies here preserved are considered exceedingly valuable. One small book, the first edition printed of one of the plays, was bought by a wealthy lady who paid $1,000 for it, to be put into this collection of Shakespearian literature and relies. An old handsomely carved oak chair, which belonged to a club of which he was president, and in which he sat when he presided, is preserved and known as Shakespeare's chair. Of course every visitor sits down in it.

The greatest pains is taken to secure the house and its treasures against fire. It is warmed by hot water in pipes from the custodian's house near by, and no 'fire or light, or smokers' matches are ever allowed in the building.

I did not suppose it would seem so interesting to me, but when I found myself actually in this ancient dwelling, looking upon these objects and walking about the early home of the acknowledged king of ilterature, the whole world'sgreatest herary genius, as it is claimed he was, I admit t

THE NEW PLACE.

THE NEW PLACE.

From the birthplace of Shakespeare, I went to what is called the "New Place," on another street five minutes walk away. It is all right, I suppose, to call it the "New Place," although it beran to be called such nearly 300 years ago, because it is newer than the old one.

This place Shakespeare bought in 1597, and no doubt lived in it when not in London till he died in 1616. It was a fine large mansion with quite extensive grounds, and indicates that he had then become a man of considerable wealth as well as note, for in his youth, if not when he bought it, it was the largest and finest residence in the town. The house is gone; the foundations and grounds alone remain. These have been purchased and are now owned with the other Shakespeare property and are shown to visitors. It is said that the house was torn down by a ministrant. the foundations and grounds alone remain. These have been purchased and are now owned with the other Shakespeare property and are shown to visitors. It is said that the house was torn down by a minister who lived there nearly one hundred years ago, who became incensed by the trouble which relic hunters made him, and who declared he would not pay the taxes on the property and have it infested by the worshippers of a play-wright. Evidently he made a mistake, unless he had the discernment to see that this was the only way in which his name could go down to posterity. The deep old well remains, with the richest ivy growing over the curbing and frame, under which thousands go to draw water and drink from Shakespeare's well. A part of the cellar wall still stands. The few loose stones that remain are carefully covered over with iron gratings to prevent their being carried away for relics. When the debris was removed, and the grounds covered with turf, a few interesting objects were found that had belonged to the poet, among them a fine signet ring with the initials W. S. carved upon it, and which is carefully preserved in the museum at his birth place. The grounds are beautifully kept, and as I walked through them I picked and ate fruit from the mulberry tree which, it is said, Shakespeare himself planted there. A little back of the estate, yet close to it, flows the river Avon along by the magnificent new memorial theatre shown in the photograph, and by the ancient church where his remains now lie. It is a small, slow moving stream, winding along between grassy and willow lined banks, and boys in their shirt sleeves and with bare feet were fishing in it just as if it were no more sacred than any other stream. It is an old river, but, no doubt, seems just as new and delightful and just as much their own to the boys of to-day, as it did to the lads of phree hundred years ago, when, with Billy Shakespeare, as their leader, all unnon-scious of his future greatness, they splashed in its waters and dived beneath its surfa out about half an inch, and the spaces between the timbers were filled up with stones or gravel, held together with good mortar, nicely smoothed on both outside and inside surfaces, and thus the timbers gave strength to the building and the filling between them warmth, and both together the fluish outside and in. The photographs don't show the very old look of the building. These cak timbers are black with age and weather worn, yet are mostly sound, and will perhaps serve effectually another four or five hundred years.

Inside, the kitchen floor is of stone, the original stone first used there according to the custom of the time. They are much worn and broken, but still make a sadel floor. The chimneys are large and the fire places very wide, over which are very thick oak beams supporting the bricks of the chimney fronts. In the kitchen there is no mantle shelf. In the adjoining rooms there is an old, well worn oak shelf, black as elony, fastened to the big oak beam over the fire place. The floors, such of them as are not stone, are of oak, worn thin by the stepping of many feet for hundreds of years. The risers of the old stairs remain, but new steps have had to take the place of the old ones worn entire. We then, evidently the living room, the sit jing-toom, now used as a museum of antigmies, chiefly shakesperian, a sort of back kitchen, and the chamber where he was born and what is now a library and writing room, now used as a museum of antigmies, chiefly shakesperian, a sort of back kitchen, and the chamber where he was born and what is now a library and writing room, now used as a museum of antigmies, chiefly shakesperian, a sort of back kitchen, and the chamber where he was born and what is now a library and writing room, new used as a museum of antigmies, chiefly shakesperian, a sort of back kitchen, evidently the living room, the situation of the care of the contains tablets and monuments and many inscriptions.

To me it seems so much better to think of them as already gone to the world of everlasting life, and not waiting a seeming eternity in monldering dust. It was the Savior himself who said "God is not the God of the dead, but of the living, for all live unto Him."

A sad and touching event occurred at this Clopton tomb about the year Shakespeare was born. The plague visited the town, and Charlotte Clopton, a young daughter of the earl, was striken down with it and hastily buried in the tomb. A few days after, another member of the family was carried there, and on opening the vault the torches revealed the form of Charlotte sitting against the wall in her grave clothes, dead indeed, but not till, in her agony and despair, she had bitten a piece from her fair shoulder; what they thought was their necessary haste proved to have been a terrible mistake.

The places of special honor in the church directly in the floor of the sanctuary at the end of the chancel under the great east window, and inside the altar rail, are given to the Shakespeare family, showing in what esteem he and his family were held there at the time of his death. The carpet, which in the photograph you see upon the floor in this place, is rolled back during the week, exposing to visitors the large ilagstones which lie there over the Shakespeare form swith their quaint inscriptions. Shakespeare himself and his wife, nee Annie Hathaway, and their daughter Susanna, who married Dr. Hall, a man of some professional and literary distinction, and his daughter Elizabeth, and probably Shakespeare's other daughter Susanna, there is an interesting inscription:

"Witty above her sex, but that's not all, Wise to salyation was good Mistress Hall.

"Witty above her sex, but that's not all, Wise to salvation was good Mistress Hall; Something of Shakespeare was in that, but this Wholly of Him with whom she's now in bliss."

The proper inscription to Shakespeare is on the wall of the church under his monu-ment, but on the flat stone over his grave has been cut the inscription which you see in one of the photographs:

"Good friends, for Jesus' sake forbear To dig the dust inclosed here; Blest be the man that stares these stones, And curst be he that moves my bones."

There was a time when a few eminent persons wished to have the tomb opened and an instantaneous photograph taken of his remains, but the excited opposition of the people of Stractord and perhaps also the fear of this inscription prevented. The superstitious dread of this threat is better security than the stone on which it is written.

TAt the left of the sanctuary wall, upon the wall, the Shakespeare monument is placed. It is a half length figure, showing plim as writing, and was placed there by his family soon after his death, and is understood to be a likeness that was satisfactory to them. You will see a seant side view of it in the photograph of the interior of the church. Another in the set gives a clear front view of it. The stone is painted or colored in red and blue to show the kind and style of dress he was accustomed to wear on dress occasions. I preserved a small copy of it, colored, to represent the original, which it does very accurately, to take home as a memorial of the real statue here. It has the same peculiar half smiling expression which the monument itself wears, but which is not seen in the prevailing pictures of him.

As you sit down in this ancient church, and, as it were, roll back the curtain which unvails the realities of seven or eight centuries, and look upon the places and things familiar to the people generation after generation of these many by gone years, and, through recalling the writings of Shakespeane and Milton and Thomas A. Becket (who had a chapel here) and others, get at the kind of life that was lived and thought that prevailed here and the world about, you have an impression of what the past—the distant far-gone-by past of our own race really means, such as the reading of books and the imagination alone cannot give. It is an experience which of itself is to me well worth my journey of six thousand miles here and back.

In looking at the photographs, yon will bear in mind that they fail almost wholly to show the old look of the things they represent. They are well taken, but the readily effective expression of age the camera somehow does not get. These stones are all, or nearly all, gray and their surface, and their once nicely cut corners are broken and worn away, especially outside where a gray moss rests over much of the surface, and there are an advanced to represent. They are mere stumps an

But I cannot linger at this ancient church, however strong the inclination. The sun is getting low in the west and I have other things to see. Six o'clock brought me back to the village of Stratford. I had two hours before my train left and took one of them, as I had need for rest and refreshment. Then I obtained a few mementoes of the day and place to carry home, and started for the depot, taking the streets where I could get one more look of the most interesting objects and places. On my way I met a gentleman and his wife from London, who were travelling over the country on a tricycle for health and pleasure. Of failing health, whether in the form of Night Sweats and Nervousness, or in a sense of General Weariness and Loss of Appetite, should suggest the use of Aver's Sarsaparilla. This preparation is most effective for giving tone and strength to the enfectled system, promoting the digestion and assimilation of food, restoring the pervous forces to their normal condition, and for purifying, enriching, and vitalizing the blood.

Failing Health.

Ten years ago my health began to fail. I was troubled with a distressing Cough, Night Sweats, Weakness, and Nervousness. I tried various remedies prescribed by different physicians, but became so weak that I could not go up stairs without stopping to rest. My friends recommended he to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which I did, and I am now as healthy and strong as ever,—Mrs. E. L. Williams, Alexandria, Minn.

Alexandria, Alim.

I have used Ayer's Sarsaparilla, in my family, for Serofula, and know, if it is taken faithfully, that it will thoroughly eradicate this terrible diserse. I have also prescribed it as a tonic, as well as an alteraive, and must say that I honestly believe it to be the best blood medicine ever combanded.—W. F. Fowler, D. D. S., M. D., Greenville, Tenn.

It would be innessible for me to describe what I suffered from Indigestion and Headache up to the time I began taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I was under the care of various physicians and tried a great many kinds of medicines, but noter obtained more than temporary relief. After taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla for a short time, my headache disappeared, and my stomach performed its duties more perfective. Today my health is completely westered.—Mary Harley, Spring-lield, Mass.

ting in front and her husband behind her. Their tricycle was an elegant one, made in Coventry, and costa little short of $200. They were now from Wales, and had travelled between 1200 and 1200 miles making about 60 miles a day. I told them they would not be likely to run 60 miles a day over the roads in America. They thought they would prefer doing it in England. They talked and appeared as if they were enjoying their journey immensely. Buttoning my overcoat—the themometer is not at 95 degrees here—I took one more view of Stratford and turned to the station, where very soon the train from London came along and took me back to my lodgings in Birmingham, where I found rest from a weary but delightful day, and, better still, letters and papers from home.

SHAKESPEARE, OR BACON—WHICH?

In visiting this shrine of literary greatness, I have accepted the almost universal belief that Shakespeare was the real author of the works attributed to him, and have entered into the spirit of the reminiscences as genuine, which they probably are. Yet I must confess that one or two things respecting the matter puzzle and plague me as they have many others. It is very strange that a man of such literary tastes and attainments as the author of Shakespeare's plays must have been, should have used his pen so little as to be unable to write even his name in a fairly legible manner. Not a scrap of all he wrote, if he did write what is credited to him, has been preserved, except the five signatures to his will. To that paper he signed his name five times as if trying to get it so it could be read, and each time he spelled the name differently and seemed to get it in worse shape than before, and it was not all age that made the pen marks crooked, trembling, labored and irregular, and the spelling uncertain, for he was only fitty-three when he died.

Again, a good edition of his plays was published in 1623, only seven years after his death. If Bacon wrote them as Congressmen Ignatius Dounelly and my friend Mr. Burr and others claim, but for prudential reasons affecting his position and standing at court, where it was unpopular to have to do with the drama, concealed the fact of his authorship, using Shakespeare the actor as his "Mask"—Bacon once writes about his literary Mask—1623 was shakespeare's, it was not then desirable and afterwards not easy to correct the mistake. This is a somewhat plausible explanation of the way, if Bacon was the author, in which the plays come to be accepted as Shakespeare's. While Bacon lived he preferred they should go in Shakepeare's name, and after his death there was nobedy living who could make the correction. The Shakespeare family were not literary people. John Shakespeare on Bacon, or some one wholly unknown, these plays are equally great, equally a priceless literary gift to the

The Oft Told Story

Of the peculiar medicinal merits of Hood's Sarsaparilla is fully confirmed by the voluntary testimony of thousands who have tried it. Peculiar in the combination, proportion, and preparation of its ingredients, peculiar in the extreme care with which it is put up, Hood's Sarsaparilla accomplishes cures where other preparations entirely fail. Peculiar in the unequalled good name it has made at home, which is a "tower of strength abroad," peculiar in the phenomenal sales it has attained, is the most popular and successful medicine before the public today for purifying the blood, giving strength, creating an appetite. "I suffered from wakefulness and low spirits, and also had eezema on the back of my head and neck, which was very annoying. I took one bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and I have received so much benefit that I am very grateful, and I am always glad to speak a good word for this medicine." Mrs. J. S. SNYDER, Pottsville, Penn.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Most cordial y yours,
JOHN C. PARK.

—Officers C. H. Huestis and F. B. Fletcher did some good work on Sunday evening, which will be a warning to evil doers in the future. The officers had just arrested a drunken man and were proceeding along Beacon street, when they heard a concertina and dancing in a house near by. Upon entering, they discovered one man making night hideous with the instrument, while two others sat at a table playing cards.
The officers took the men, cards and money, and started for the stateon house.
When near the square they came upon a crowd of thirty or forty men and boys who refused to move on. After depositing their men in the station house, the officers returned and arrested the leader of the crowd, who refused to give his name.
This crowd was obstructing the sidewalk, a condition of affairs too common, and to which the police are determined to put an end. In the police court Jones was fined $5.00 and costs for obstructing the sidewalk and $1.00 for being drunk; Dergan and Heffron $5.00 and costs each for gambling. McCarthy, the musician, was discharged.

alterations and repairs upon her house lately purchased of Mr. Strong.

-Mr. W. C. Strong is building an avenue through his estate. We think "Strong avenue" would be a good name, mg the estate lately sold by her.

—Mrs. S. C. Cobb has commenced a cellar for a house on Chester street, next adjoin-ing the estate lately sold by her.

—The house lately built by Mr. W. S. Richards on Floral avenue, has been sold to a Mr. Small, who will occupy the same.

—The estate of Mr. D. C. Fisher on Hartford street has been sold to Miss Rand of this village. It will be occupied by Mr. George Beal.

—Mr. Appleton is moving into the house lately purchased by him of Mr. D. S, Farn-ham, on Centre street, next adjoining the residence of Mr. Coffin.

-Messrs. Allen & Young have a shop nearly finished near the Boylston street railroad bridge, and intend to carry on the business of jobbing carpenters.

-Frank R. Moore took a "header" from his bicycle on Pelham street, Newton Centre, last Friday evening, cutting his face badly and rendering him insensible for a short time.

-Mr.¶M. L. Baird of Hyde street has bought of Mr. M. C. Bragdon a lot of land opposite the estate of Mr. Harvey, and will build a house immediately on the same, for his own occupancy.

-Mr. H. L. Josselyn has put in a four horse power caloric engine, in place of a two horse power, in order that he may be able to meet the increasing demand for his services as a repairer of bicycles, tricycles and lawn mowers, etc.

—We hear that the Frog Pond lot on Lake avenue has been sold to Mr. M. A. Bragdon. As he will soon occupy the house lately built for him near by, we may expect soon to see the filling of the pond hole commenced.

—At Waban Mr. W. R. Dresser has moved into the house lately built for him on Chestnut street. This is a fine house on high land, with a fine outlook. Mrs. Dresser has also put in a cellar for a house nearly.

—Mr. C. J. Page, who bought the Wyman place, has sold the old house to a Mr. Warren, who is having the same put in repair, preserving as far as possible the old architectural style, and will soon occupy the same. Mr. Page has also sold a lot of land to be built upon.

—The Mayor has nominated the following persons to serve as Ward officers for Ward 5: Warden, A. J. Grover; deputy, J. W. Howe; clerk, C. H. Hale; deputy, G. H. Osborne; inspectors, J. P. Tenney, J. F. Russell; deputies, F. A. O'Connor, D.

—Rev. Mr. Cutler of Aburndale occupied the pulpit at the Congregational church last Sunday morning. In the evening Mr. H. H. Hastings, editor of the Christian, gave a lecture on the "Mistakes of Moses," which was a vigorous attack all along upon the line of mcdern infidelity.

—Miss Rebecca Ward, one of our oldest residents, died at her home on Chestnut street on Friday morning of last week. Funeral services were held at the Methodist church on Sunday afternoon conducted by Rev. Mr. Furber of the First Congregational church, Newton Centre. The body was taken to the old cemetery on Centre street for interment. for interment.

—On Sunday last the Methodist church, which has been closed for repairs and improvements for a number of weeks, was opened to the public. The services were especially adapted to the occasion, conducted by the pastor, Rev. J. Peterson, assisted by the Rev. Z. A. Mudge. In the evening there was a special revival service in the vestry, which was largely attended and very interesting.

Newton Cottage Hospital.

The regular meeting of the trustees was held at the Hospital on Monday, the 19th inst. Fifteen members of the Board were present, the vice-president, Mr. Converse, in

The Treasurer's report showed a deficit on current expense account, and a balance of $456.43 to the credit of the Building fund.

The finance committee reported that a circular had been sent to several citizens, setting forth the needs of the hospital, and asking for contributions to the building fund, but as yet but few responses had been received.

The Executive committee reported that in accordance with the recommendation of the Medical Board, they had elected Dr. F. W. Webber a member of the medical staff.

The committee had received a communi-in place of Dr. J. H. Bodge resigned.

The committee had received a communication, asking that measures be taken to have boxes placed in the railroad stations for the reception of old linen, books and other articles for the hospital, and referred the matter to a sub-committee.

The matron reported the number of patients admitted since the June meeting of the trustees, 33. Number since the opening of the hospital, 124. Number in hospital Sept. 19th, 10.

The resignation of Rev. B. K. Peirce, D. D., as a member of the Board, which was received at the June meeting, was accepted, as Dr. Pierce stated that his numerous engagements made it impossible for him to attend to the duties of a trustee of the hospital. Mr. A. D. S. Bell was then elected to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Dr. Peirce.

A vote was passed, requesting the secretary to prepare and transmit to Miss Fletcher, a nurse who is soon to leave the service of the hospital to engage in private nursing, an expression of the appreciation of the Board of the value of her work in the institution.

It was voted that the Finance committee, with such ministers of the city as they may associate with them, be requested to take charge of the arrangements for the collections on Hospital Sunday.

The statement being made that a large item in the current expenses of the hospital was for milk, Mrs. E. J. Collius, a member of the Board, at once generously offered to give a cow to the hospital, and the Building committee were instructed to prepare a suitable building for its shelter. There is plenty of pasturage on the hospirounds, and quite a large bill for milk will be saved to the institution by this cift.

grounds, and quite a large bill for milk will be saved to the institution by this gift.

Mrs. Bishop referred to a method she had seen in operation for collecting money for a hospital in England by means of a so-called birthday contribution, and thought it would be well for our hospital to try a similar plan.

A committee, consisting of Mrs. Bishop, Mrs. M. L. Bacon, and Miss Emerson was appointed to take the matter into consideration, and with full powers to put in operation such measures as they may deem best for the collection of a birthday fund. The idea is, that each member of a family shall put in a box provided for the purpose on his birthday a number of cents equal to the number of years of his age.

This plan, while taxing each one to a very small amount if generally adopted, will add quite materially to the income of the hospital, and will be a pleasant way for every one to celebrate his birthday by doing a kind act for others. Our citizens will hear from the above committee in regard to the matter.

The Trustees hope it will be kept in mind by the people of Newton that it costs considerable more to run a hospital than can be obtained from the board of patients. We need about $4,500 a year from the voluntary contributions of our citizens, and subscriptions to the building fund for the proposed new wing to the amount of $5,000 at least. All remittances should be sent to the treasurer, Mr. Geo. S. Bullens, Newton, or 100 Franklin street, Boston.
